THE CONVENTION IN THE NINTH

How "Cyclone Jim" Marshall Was Nominated.

The Convention Called to Order by Rev. J. E. Wood—A Permanent Organization Effected—Judge Marshall Placed in Nomination by Judge Duncan—Wild Enthusiasm Greeted His Remarks—"Cyclone Jim" Was the Idol of All Present—His Nomination Was Made Unanimous.

RICHLANDS, Va., Aug. 17.—[Special]—Convention called to order at 12 noon, and opened by prayer from Rev. Mr. J. E. Wood, of St. Paul, in an eloquent appeal, rounded up that it was a part of the Divine dispensation to remove the mighty from their seats and exalt the humble and meek; which same reminder acted as suggestive inspiration, leading the thoughts between the lines, to the inevitable removal of the mighty Benjamin and inauguration of the humble and meek "Grover," March 4, 1893.

Mr. H. A. Routh, of Lebanon, in a sensible and enthusiastic address, welcomed the convention on behalf of the people of Richlands. The following officers were then named: W. A. Raider, Bristol, temporary chairman; Hon. M. B. Spenser, Lee county, secretary; J. D. Harrison, Richlands, sergeant-at-arms. The usual committees were appointed on credentials, permanent organization and resolutions. Adjourned to 3 o'clock to hear reports of committees and partake of some of Manager La Bar's good provender, at Hotel Richlands. A word about the hotel and its competent manager while we are waiting. The true test of a hotel man's ability is to observe him in action. Manager La Bar proved equal to the occasion in every particular, handling the large crowd of hungry Democrats in a masterly manner. The handsome and well equipped hotel was filled from basement to garret; coats worn in every available spot at night and at meal time the commodious dining hall was besieged by an eager, anxious throng, and yet Manager La Bar moved quietly around, looking to the comfort of every one, dropping a kind word here and there and impressing the guests very much in the same manner as an able sea captain does the passengers on board ship.

I devote this space to good words for Manager La Bar because of a sense of gratitude shared, I am sure, by the entire delegation. Convention reconvened at 3 o'clock and the committee on permanent organization reported. Permanent chairman, W. E. Bierns, Russell; secretary, W. H. Tomney, of the Glade Spring Citizen; sergeant-at-arms, J. D. Harrison, Richlands.

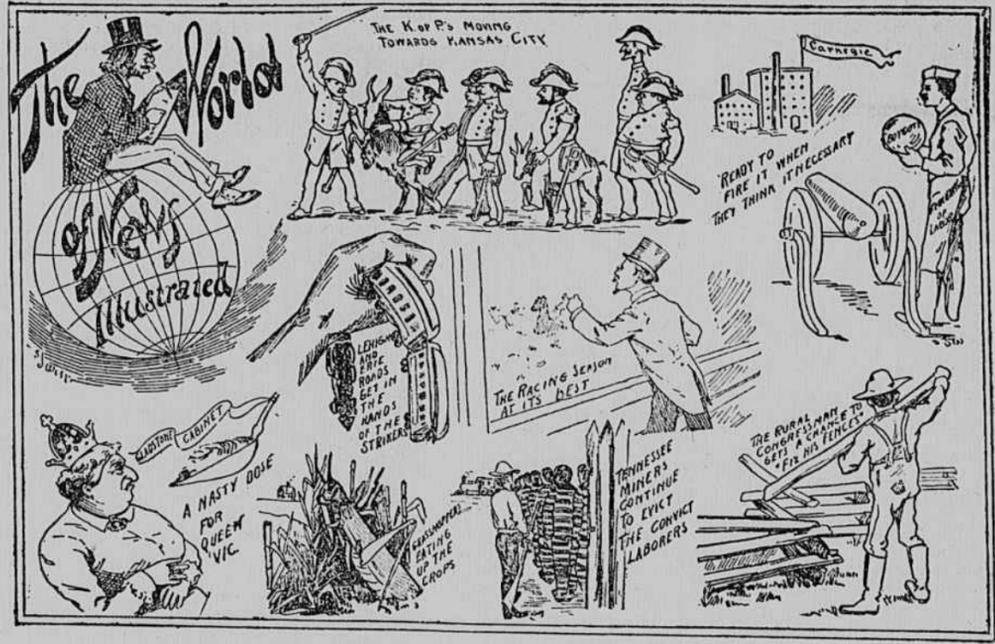

A part of the report of the committee on permanent organization was to request the representatives of the press to act as assistant secretaries, being one of whom, your correspondent was accordingly elevated to the "platform" of the Democratic party, from which eminence he gazed into the glad faces of the multitude and felt proud. Committee on permanent organization was instructed to conduct the permanent chairman to the chair, which was done amid the usual applause, and then came as bright and appropriate a speech as it has been my good fortune to hear. Many Roanokers know Mr. Bierns as the genial and able attorney of the Norfolk and Western Clinch Valley division; also as a stockholder in many of Roanoke's enterprises and a subscriber to THE TIMES.

W. H. Towney, editor of the Glade Spring Citizen, filled the office of permanent secretary at the convention in a highly creditable manner, and proved a worthy successor to the able temporary secretary, Hon. M. B. Spenser, from Lee county, member of the State Legislature. At the close of the brief and pointed speech of Chairman Bierns, the secretary called the roll of counties. Bland being first on the list, yielded to Lee, and Judge Duncan, mounting the platform, threw his whole soul into the work of placing Hon. James W. Marshall, of Craig, in nomination.

Judge Duncan admitted in graceful and gracious words that he had been swept into the stream of popular demand for the gentle zephyr from Craig, and that even the "Congressional bee" buzzing in his, the judge's bonnet, took its flight in the face of the swarm hovering over the devoted head of "Democracy's idol and the people's choice, James W. Marshall."

The speaker did not have to pause for a response. The pent-up enthusiasm arose in one mighty shout, one prolonged yell, not a "rebel yell," but the patriot's loud acclaim, and it must have been a proud moment for our senator when he heard peal after peal of Democratic joy ring out, and the echo send back as though responsive nature bade him speed on to victory. What a moment this! Not one the result of conspiracy, connivance or contumely; not the result of political wire-pulling, but coming to answer a people's call, a people who are learning to think, a people who have awakened to the realization of their power and who are shaking off the manacles of party heelers and party bosses.

Marshall is a man of the people, and his "Lilly white hand" has never known an undertaking not for his people's good. But I must not speak too much, though the enthusiasm of this day makes me almost irrepressible. At the subsidence of the wildest convention scene I ever witnessed the chairman called for order, and a motion was made and many times seconded to make the nomination by acclamation, and then again rolled up that thunderous consent and continued until the association began to "thunker" after the "Marshall" of the day, and then the commitee, consisting of Messrs. Jackson, Jordan and Hamilton, was sent to notify the nominee.

At this interesting juncture some one called for "Smith," and to my surprise only one man arose, and as he deployed front into line and began, "Gentlemen of the convention, I saw why it was that none of the other Smiths had responded, for there is but one 'Smythe' in the Ninth congressional district, and that is our own 'Governor' Smythe, the founder of the 'Headlight,' he the final regenerator of that same able exponent, and to-day the most sanguine editor, developer and patriot in this grand mountain region. This same Smythe came as near filling my ideal in a five minute speech as any Democrat this day, and I haven't yet forgotten the resonance of his voice or the logic of his utterance.

But here comes the "Cyclone" and don't he loom high? Don't he step high, this war-horse of Democracy? This standard bearer of a stardard party; and as he rolls along in the wake of the committee the ground begins to tremble, the thunders of Democracy begin to roar and the elemental prodigy is among us, swinging his mighty arms and crushing the hosts of Benjamin; smiting the Philistines hip and thigh, and as a result of this tremendous onslaught we found hardly one Republican or People's party man on the field.

As an all around orator Jim Marshall carries off the palm; he is entertaining, he is instructive and will be an unique figure in the next Congress, for there is no earthly doubt as to his ascendancy for the survival at the latest demands his election, and with him will come "Grover" and "Frances" and "Baby Ruth" and all the rest of the family, and wont we have a big time in Washington on the 4th of March, 1893? E. A. P.

AN ASSIGNMENT.

The Cricket Match.

Owing to the threatening weather the attendance of both members and visitors was small. A closely contested game was played between teams captained by Joseph Langstroth and James Devon, respectively, which resulted in a victory for the latter team by the small majority of two runs. The scores were 36 to 34. Next Saturday another game will be played by the married and the single men, when the former hope to wipe out their defeat of a week ago.

The Death of J. W. Walthall.

John W. Walthall, the young man who was killed at Coal Creek in the fight between the rioters and soldiers, was a first cousin to Silas Walthall, an employe in the Norfolk and Western offices. Young Walthall was 22 years of age and was employed in the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad offices in Knoxville.

AT COYNER'S SPRINGS.

A Brilliant Character Costume German Last Friday Night.

COYNER'S SPRINGS, Aug. 20.—[Special]—These springs have been in the lead this season with the german, but it was reserved for last Friday night to outshine all previous efforts. This was the first fancy dress and character costume entertainment of the season, and this brilliant night will long be remembered by those who were so fortunate as to be present.

Promptly at 10 o'clock the fine band of the talented Prof. Bellezza struck up the opening march, selected for the occasion, and the following couples in costume and evening dress entered the ball room, led by Mr. Will H. Fry, Jr., and Miss Elsie Payne:

F. C. Morgan and Miss Mary Alexander, E. S. Fry and Miss L. Stockbridge, J. A. Turner and Miss Alice Foster, M. C. Murphy and Miss Quackenbush, L. H. Simmons and Miss Gugenheimer, W. Falton and Miss Alice Boyd, Jas. Payne and Miss Susie Williams, W. W. Williams and Miss Frances Moss, Arthur Woodson and Miss Lena Alexander, H. C. Storkey and Miss E. Sexton, J. P. Barbee and Miss Cottrell G. Figon and Miss Mary Fry, R. L. Stone and Miss Elsie Wimbish, A. C. Bawore and Miss Maggie Lawson, A. C. Goodwin and Miss C. Flournoy, P. Payne and Mrs. Everett, J. S. Greene and Mrs. Kemp, W. P. Pottzman and Mrs. Shackelford, W. B. Moss and Mrs. Moss, T. A. Chaffin and Mrs. James, W. H. Horton and Mrs. Saabye, L. Mossken and Mrs. W. C. Williams, D. B. Fry and Mrs. F. B. Carhart, W. B. Briggs and Mrs. Moorman.

Stags—Edward Lyle, A. Neal, B. Hunt, L. J. Lauer, E. Randolph, James Wren, John Trout, R. L. Hoffman, Dr. R. F. Watson, Hugh W. Fry.

Among the most noticeable costumes were: Miss Mary Alexander, as "Helen of Troy," leaning on the arm of Paris, in the person of Mr. F. C. Morgan. Helen of Troy was never so lovely as this beautiful blonde, robed as a Grecian maiden, in white and gold, made resplendent with diamonds. Miss Maggie Lawson, one of Virginia's fairest daughters, whose happy ringing laugh enlivens all who hear it, in a gown of pink crepe de chene, decorated with streamers of every conceivable color, held the floor as the personification of "Folly."

Then next to burst upon the admiring gaze of all, like the gentle blush of the coming day, was the graceful form of Mrs. W. C. Williams, robed in a gown whose colors were tinted with the dawn. Here and there lingered, as loath to part with the night, a tiny star nestling in the folds of her raiment. Surmounting a crown of stars upon a queenly head rose a bright particular star soon to be drowned in a flood of light,—this was "Morning."

Morning and day have passed away, then comes "Night," "Sable goddess from her ebony throne in rayless majesty stretched forth her leaden sceptre o'er a slumbering world," in the person of Mrs. F. B. Earhart, who, though robed in its blackness, retained all the redeeming features of its loveliness, made brilliant with stars overhung by a silvery moon. Such was her prototype this night at Coyner's. Two noticeable and attractive characters were the "Tamborine Girls," who were so artistically dressed and portrayed by the Misses Efferotta Payne and Laura Stockbridge.

Who will ever forget Miss Alice Boyd as "Baby," with Mr. Will Follet as "Nurse"? Every body wanted to kiss the darling baby, but "the nurse wouldn't let them 'you know." Though perfect, his friends deny his ever having been in the business before. Who could have represented "Little Miss Muffit" with more perfection than Mrs. Dr. Moorman? Priscilla, the Puritan maid, was reflected in the sweet face and gentle bearing of Mrs. W. N. Everett, and in this throng of gayety "Priscilla again passed before us in all her gentleness." "Little Susie Williams was really "Queen of Hearts," with Master James Payne who paid court to her majesty as "George Washington."

Miss Elsie Wimbish, in an exquisite robe of pale green, with a bow and arrow, impersonated the goddess of the chase, "Diana," and among the brilliant character gems of the evening was set with splendor in its diadem. The clear olive complexion of Miss Hortense Gugenheimer, her soft dark eyes, shaded beneath long lashes of night, with raven hair, robed in red, she mingled with the merry throng as a lovely "Gypsy Maiden." The litho and graceful form of Miss Edith Quackenbush, robed in white and gold, with her magnificent hair in two long and graceful plaits, impersonated in the perfect type a "Greek Maiden."

A fairer living picture than the little "Swiss Peasant" in the person of Miss Florine Alexander will ne'er cross our vision again.

Among the gentlemen in character costume we particularly note Ed. Fry as "Gypsy King," Will Fry as "Page," Bland Fry, "Uncle Sam," R. L. Hoffman, "Louis IV," J. F. Wren as a "Cadet," Gerald Figon, "Jockey," A. R. Bowde, "Bassanio," and Arthur Woodson, "English Swell."

The following ladies were present in evening dress: Mrs. Shackelford, in white crepe de chene; hand-painted chiffon and diamonds; Mrs. Moss, pink silk and diamonds; Miss Moss, canary silk, white lace and diamonds; Miss Lena Alexander, in cream India mull.

CARS MOVING AGAIN.

THE SWITCHMEN'S STRIKE IS PROBABLY OVER.
BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 20.—[Special]—Nothing of an exciting nature occurred to-day in the railroad strike. The Central cleared its yards of freight without difficulty. The Erie and Lehigh Valley sent eastward five or six trains each, and shifted a good many cars from their yards to Western connections.

This was all done under the protection of the militia. The Lake Shore road westward is still blockaded and is the worst sufferer now. Grand Master Sweeney, of the switchmen, threatens a strike by the firemen on all roads centering in Buffalo, and although he has used this threat for several days it has not until now caused much uneasiness. Conferences between representatives of the switchmen, firemen and trainmen are constantly being held, and a sympathy strike is very much dreaded.

The opinion is expressed that unless such a strike does occur the battle is lost to the switchmen. New men are constantly arriving to enter service and the officers of the roads assert that if it were not for the violent interference of the strikers they could handle all their business without difficulty. Nothing can be done in any of the yards at night as yet, and no attempt at night shifting is being made. Trains were moved at Waverly by the help of the militia who lined the railroad tracks.

A Wreck on the B. & A. Short Line.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20.—[Special]—By the derailment of a coach of a passenger train on the Baltimore and Annapolis short line, four miles from Baltimore, late this afternoon, one unknown colored woman was killed and fifteen persons were injured—three probably fatally. The train to which the accident befell consisted of one fruit car, combination passenger and baggage, and one day passenger coach.

Just after passing Cliffsford, while running at a speed of 35 miles an hour, the sliding door of the fruit car dropped from its fastenings and, striking the rear truck of the combination car swung it from the track. The passenger car following left the rails altogether and rolled down an embankment, making a complete derailment. Near the track where the derailment occurred was a colored man and his wife picking up loose coal. The woman was crushed to death and the man knocked senseless. A relief train brought the injured to this city.

Smallpox in the Catskills.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Smallpox has broken out in the summer boarding house of Elijah Utter, at East Durham, in the Catskills. There are about twenty guests at the house, all of whom have been quarantined by order of Health Officer Conklin. All have been vaccinated. The appearance of the disease created considerable excitement.

The Weather.
Forecast: Virginia fair, preceded in northeastern portion by showers to-night, warmer, variable winds.

THE STRIKE IS NOW OVER.

The List of the Killed and Wounded.

The Military Have Full Possession—After the Ringleaders, Who Will be Prosecuted—A Force of 100 After the Miners Who Have Taken Refuge Up the Valley—Frank Smith Avenged by the Killing of His Slayer.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 20.—[Special]—Little news has reached this city from Coal Creek to-day, both on account of quietness and the lack of telegraphic facilities. One wire to that place is again being used almost exclusively by the railroad. The killed are, so far as known: John Walthall, of Knoxville, Bush Givens, of Knoxville, both volunteers; Sidney Waterman, of Memphis, and Frank Smith, of Memphis, both privates at Fort Anderson. The killed among the miners is placed at ten, and the wounded at twelve.

The three hundred and fifty volunteers which General Carnes relieved from service this morning have reached this city and a meeting is now in progress at the courthouse. This city has been stirred to its core, but it is confidently believed that the trouble is over. General Carnes has with him 700 uniformed soldiers and with them he thinks he can hold the miners in absolute subjection. The soldiers are searching houses for arms and concealed miners, and are bringing in prisoners continually.

The Chickasaw Guards, under Major Chandler, supporting the military camp last night, were made targets for the sharpshooters on the bridge. Three volleys from the soldiers dislodged the miners. The soldiers were not hurt. Watt Erman's death was caused by the explosion of a howitzer at Camp Anderson. One hundred miners and fifty guns left Jellico yesterday to aid the miners here, but at Caryville they heard of the capture of the rioters and returned. Colonel Sevier will start with a force this afternoon and march to Briceville.

CHATTANOOGA, Aug. 20.—[Special]—The war of the Tennessee miners is about over. Gen. Barnes is in possession of Coal Creek and reports his entire ability to care for all the hostiles with the militia under his command and has ordered the volunteer citizens to return to their homes. Casualties among the troops and citizens amounted to five killed and about fifteen wounded. Frank Smith, of this city, who was killed while on scout, was avenged by the immediate killing of his slayer, Charles Thomas and William Mitchell were wounded, but not dangerously, by miners and their assailants were also killed, their guns and side arms captured and brought into Camp Anderson.

The miners' losses have not yet developed, but many of them must have been killed or wounded, as Colonel Woolford is certain that six of them were killed in the early morning attack on his column on their way to relieve Camp Anderson. Two hundred miners are now prisoners in the hands of the military. To the west, in the Squatchee valley, sixty of the ringleaders in the mob which destroyed the stockade at Inman have been indicted and, with 200 others, defy arrest. Judge Moon and Attorney General Brown are determined to bring these men to justice, and they will have the aid of a strong posse of citizens, if needed. It is likely that force enough will be put to their assistance to enforce the orders of the court.

COAL CREEK, Tenn., Noon, Aug. 20.—[Special]—An Associated Press reporter reached here last night and found quarters with the soldiers. The second detachment of Knoxville volunteers were the first to reach Fort Anderson. Captain Anderson was restored to his men before dark. The first action on the part of General Carnes this morning was to send out scouting parties of fifty each to search for the killed and wounded and see the miners did not mass. Fayette Gentry, an ex-policeman and brave man of Knoxville, was found near the scene of Major Carpenter's fight.

He was hit hard in the hip and left hand. He had lain on the mountain 24 hours, six of them in a drenching rain. He had been without food and water for 48 hours. The last body of citizens under the sheriff, those from Nashville, Chattanooga and Knoxville left here at 11 o'clock for Knoxville. The miners are also searching for their dead, but under flags of truce. It is said that ten dead and twelve wounded have been found, but the exact number is not known. A detachment of one hundred soldiers has gone up the valley to scatter or capture four hundred miners.

TROUBLE AHEAD.

The Pocahontas Strike Assuming a Serious Aspect.

POCAHONTAS, Aug. 20.—[Special]—Affairs here are rapidly assuming a serious aspect and if wise counsel does not prevail serious trouble will surely follow. It is learned upon good authority that the West Virginia miners have accorded financial support to the Pocahontas men. The strikers positively refuse to load the new cars. The strikers are thoroughly organized and threaten trouble if new men are brought in. This latter feature is the most serious as it probably means rioting. The merchants and citizens of Pocahontas are inclined to sympathize with the strikers and a prolonged and ugly struggle seems inevitable.

Alabama Prisoners Escape.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 20.—[Special]—During absence of the sheriff of Jackson county, Alabama, seventeen of the prisoners in Scottsboro jail made good their escape. Eleven of them have been apprehended, but among the six missing are two charged with murder.
