

OLD CHURCH BELLS.

Those of Southern California Missions.

Some of them have tolled for almost a century—Historic Bells of the Ancient Spanish Religion.

"Many thousands of eastern tourists in southern California have looked with awe inspired by their supposed antiquity at the mission churches built by the Spaniards, when the land which now makes up this state was a dependency of that nation. These antique-looking buildings are interesting enough without any fictitious tributes, and while they represent an epoch that is past, and a rule that is overthrown, they are not so very ancient. In fact," says Los Angeles correspondent of the New York Tribune, "men are yet living here who were rankish youngsters when the buildings were begun. However, antiquities are created very young sometimes. A newspaper here recently commented on the destruction of an 'historic' building in Redlands. That town is one of the largest and busiest in southern California, but the building in question, as well as the town, is only five years old, yet it was in a way historic, as it was the first house in the place.

"But to return to the matter of the quaint Moorish-looking mission churches scattered through southern California. They are somewhat primitive in design, and look as if they might be centuries in age. Another cause which has led to considerable error as to the respective years in which they were erected is the confounding of the dates of the founding of the missions and the subsequent erection of the church building itself.

"B. A. C. Stephens, of this city, has been a profound student of California, and from him I learn the following facts: The mission church building at San Luis Rey was erected in 1802. By the way, this is the most interesting of all of them, and is more nearly in the condition and amid the surroundings which characterized these churches in the Spanish regime than any other. An Indian mission was built in 1804, and San Juan de Capistrano and San Fernando in 1806, San Buenaventura in 1809, San Diego in 1813, and Santa Barbara in 1820.

"Thus the venerable-looking building at San Gabriel is only a little over eighty-eight years old. Recently eastern tourists in Los Angeles have been attracted by some beautifully illuminated pictures of this building which were sold as souvenirs in the stores in this city, and on which the date of erection was printed as 1771. This serious error marred the value of the otherwise finely executed pictures. The year mentioned was the date of the establishment of the mission of the Archangel Holy Gabriel, on the El Monte Powlans, at what is now called the 'old' San Gabriel mission. This cold, damp locality was productive of too much malarial fever among the priests, and several earthquakes damaged the poorly constructed buildings, so that three or four years afterward the holy brothers moved several miles northward to the present beautiful site on the warm, dry uplands, at what is now known as San Gabriel. Here they first erected an adobe church which in 1801 was replaced by the present stone and rubble structure. In this building ex-Gov. Pio Pico, who is now, at the age of nearly ninety-three, a resident of West Los Angeles, began his long public career first as an acolyte in the year 1809. "There are many others yet living who were here when the San Gabriel church was built.

"Even the bells are of the present generation. Mr. Stephens tells me that he recently climbed to the belfry and copied the inscriptions on them. So the often written story about Spanish ladies casting their jewels and golden ornaments into the melting pots to assist in making the mission bells is not true as to the one made by Mr. Holbrook, and probably not as to the other three. The same tradition is associated with the bells in every Spanish mission in the Americas. Neither are the bells ancient, as one was made in 1823 and the other in 1830. The undated ones do not seem to be any older than the ones which bear the year in which they were made.

"But the west knows, and cares little about time, and California particularly has a right to be contemptuous of the slow rate of progress in other localities. In less than fifty years it has developed from a Mexican province into a great state, and the growth in that time has amounted to what it would have taken centuries to accomplish elsewhere. The missions are not ancient in years, but in what they represent sentimentally they are, in the language of the day, 'out of sight'."

"The late Duke Maximilian, father of the empress of Austria, was one of the most simple and affable of men. One day, as he was traveling on the train between his country residence and Vienna, he fell into conversation with a banker from Stuttgart. "Are you going to Vienna?" asked the duke. "Yes, to see my daughter. She has just been married." "Ah!" said the duke; "mine has just married, also. Was it a good match?" "Excellent! And that of your daughter?" "Not bad, either." "My daughter married the Banker Goldschmidt." "Mine, the emperor of Austria."

WITH MILITARY TITLES.

GEN. BEAUREGARD, register of the treasury, writes from California that his health has improved very much. He does not contemplate resigning his position.

GEN. BEAUREGARD built the first cable railroad in this country. The road was constructed just after the war and extended from the city of New Orleans to the suburb of Carrollton.

LIEUT. PEARY will have a rival in Arctic exploration this coming summer in Frederick Jackson, who takes a British party up to Franz Joseph Land and who thinks he will there have land up to the eighty-fourth parallel of latitude, possibly further. Thence he proposes to proceed in dog sledges.

GEN. RAELEIGH BRINKERHOFF, of Mansfield, O., will succeed Gen. R. B. Hayes as president of the National Prisoners' Aid association. He was a volunteer in the union army and rose to the rank of brigadier general. He has for several years been first vice president of the National Prisoners' Aid association.

GEN. BEAUREGARD was one of the numerous confederate commanders whose services were sought by foreign governments after the fall of the confederacy. In 1866 he was tendered the command of the Roumanian army, and the khedive twice offered him the generalship of the Egyptian army. All these offers Gen. Beauregard declined.

PEW AND PULPIT.

The Aintes of the native Presbyterian church at Sitka, Alaska, give more liberally per capita than any other church in the denomination.

A PRESBYTERIAN preacher in Indiana has adopted the circuit-riding plan. He has eight appointments each of which he visits once in three weeks.

The Methodist church at Mount Vernon, N. Y., after raising a debt of $14,000, felt so good that it also raised $600 to help the Baptists build a new chapel.

During the past twenty years over $53,000,000 have been expended in restoring cathedrals and churches in England, and over $48,000,000 have been spent in building new churches.

REV. TRAVIS S. HAMLIN, D. D., of Washington, D. C., the eminent Presbyterian pastor, asserts in the Congregationalist that "there is a great deal of vital, practical piety among our public men. The notion that they are all corrupt schemers is a fetich unworthy of intelligent Americans."

The book committee of the Methodist church of the United States has finished its session. It adjourned to meet next year at Cincinnati, where a fine new building will be dedicated. Reports of the book agents showed sales in the east last year to have aggregated $1,075,451, an increase of $15,000 over the previous year.—Christian at Work.

MAKERS OF MUSIC.

A SYMPHONY composed by Prince Henry, of Reuss, has just been produced at the famous Gewandhaus concerts in Leipzig, and thus another member is added to the ranks of royal composers.

A NIECE of Mozart, Frau Josepha Lang, died at Vienna a short time ago, at the age of 73, almost in poverty. During her latter years she was practically supported by admirers of the great composer.

PROF. FREDERICK NICHOLS CROUCH, the venerable composer of "Kathleen Mavourneen," and "Dermott Ashmore," leads the orchestra during the singing of his song "Mavourneen," and, despite his eighty-five years, is in excellent health.

MANY popular society ladies of New York belong to the Ladies' Mandolin club, and are devoted to the little instrument. Mrs. J. Lyle is said to own the handsomest mandolin in this country. It is made of beech and rosewoods and inlaid with exquisite designs in mother-of-pearl.

GOSSIP OF WRITERS.

GLADSTONE is said to earn by his pen fifteen thousand dollars a year.

TOLSTOI is busy writing a book upon the people and religions of Japan.

C. R. CARTER, the Lawrence county (Mo.) murderer, who has been twice sentenced, has written a book entitled: "Twice Under the Gallows."

Mrs. Brown was asked why she didn't write a book on temperance, like "Uncle Tom's Cabin" on slavery. She replied: "I have thought of doing so, but it would be too dreadful to read."

Mrs. ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON is a portly, gray-haired woman, who was a grandmother—and looked it—when she married this second husband. Her son Lloyd, who collaborated with Stevenson in the ghastly tales: "The Wrong Box" and "The Wrecker," was a middle-aged man before he began to write.

COMMERCE OF THE SEAS.

DURING 1892 17,296 vessels arrived at the port of New York.

SHIPMENTS of about 20,000 turkeys were made from Canada to England during the last holiday season.

SHIPMENTS of pineapples from Queensland to San Francisco are to be made under the auspices of the colonial department of agriculture.

EXPORTS of Falkland island wools amount to nearly 4,000,000 pounds annually. There are also yearly shipments of 20,000 frozen carcasses to England.

NOTWITHSTANDING that every year from 5,000 to 6,000 ships go up and down the River Seine carrying 2,500,000 tons of goods, it is said that there is no map of this important French stream in existence.

MUTTON CHOPS.
