CLASSICS OF THE WORLD!

HANDY FORM FOR THE POCKET.

26 Superb Little Volumes in substantial enamel paper covers. Perfectly Bound.

WE take pleasure in announcing to our readers that we have made a contract whereby we can furnish them with standard books at absolutely less than wholesale prices. The books which we offer are by world famous writers and are printed from absolutely new type specially made for these works. The books are BOUND BY AN ENTIRELY NEW PROCESS which does away with the old style of thread or wire binding. Each leaf is bound into the book separately and amalgamated with the whole, allowing the book to lay perfectly flat when open, giving ease and comfort to the reader.

The Books are equal to any that you purchase for 25 cents each.

- 1. The Reveries of a Bachelor, or, A Book of the Heart. By I. K. MARVEL, (DONALD G. MITCHELL). How agreeable is "I. K. Marvel" in this gem of a book from his pen, how quaint, how humorous, philosophical, pathetic and charming. 2. Lays of Ancient Rome. By LORD MACAULAY (BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED). Macaulay's "Lays" are instinct with the very soul of poetry, and are full of heroic action and energy. Like Scott's spirit-stirring ballads, they have a fine picturesque quality, with graphic breadth, and great realistic power of expression. 3. A Cillploss Scandal, J. M. BARRIE. A new work by J. M. Barrie, author of that Scottish classic, "The Little Minister," which has had a phenomenal sale, may be expected to whet the literary appetite of every intelligent reader of high-class fiction. In stories of humble Scottish peasant life, Mr. Barrie is on his own special ground. 4. The House of the Seven Gables. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. This masterpiece of Hawthorne's is full of the imaginative charm of romance. In felicity of touch, its author is unapproached by any writer since his own day. The work is, perhaps, the purest piece of poetic prose in all the range of American literature. 5. Cranford. By MRS. GASKELL. "Cranford," in its charming miniature painting and sketches of character, recalls the best of Jane Austen's novels. It is a delightful picture of old world social life in an English country village, descriptive of the feelings, habits, opinions, character and social conditions of the little community. It is beautifully illustrated. 6. The Coming Race. LORD LYTTON. "The Coming Race," by Lord Lytton, is a clever and ingenious excursion into the realm of science, as the inventive mind of man may find it in the coming time. 7. Dream Life. By I. K. MARVEL (DONALD G. MITCHELL). There is a profound mental study in this world-wide American classic. It contains a series of very vivid and picturesque studies of individual character and feeling. 8. Frankenstein; or, The Modern Prometheus. By MRS. SHELLEY. Like Mrs. Crowe's "Night Side of Nature," Mrs. Shelley's "Frankenstein" is a book every one should read, its author has great imaginative power and a weird but original genius. 9. A Book of Golden Deeds. By C. M. YONGE. This is just the book to put into the hand of youth, circulating, healthy morality, and true manly and womanly sentiments. 10. Mosses from an Old Manse. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. Another delightful companion for idle hours is this collection of magazine papers, which Hawthorne entitled "Mosses from an Old Manse." Like all his works, it is distinguished for its simplicity and truth. 11. The Scarlet Letter. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. A romance of intense interest, exhibiting extraordinary power of mental analysis and graphic description. For an artistic exposition of Puritanism, as modified by New England colonial life, we have nothing like it in our literature. 12. Essays of Elia, by CHARLES LAMB. These charming essays are full of a gay humor, interspersed with many sly bits, happy puns and bright scintillations of wit; carefully elaborated as they are, they are written with the utmost ease and grace, and composed in a spirit of once delicate and unobtrusive.

- 13. Vicar of Wakefield. By OLIVER GOLDSMITH. This beautifully illustrated edition of a famous English classic will increase its attractions for those who recognize the claim it has, as essentially a "home book" for the whole reading world. Goldsmith has shed over the work the tenderest light of his genius, and the pastoral scenes in it are unrivalled, we had almost said unapproached, by any other writer of fiction. 14. Twice-Told Tales. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. Hawthorne, the most distinctly American and by far the most popular of our writers, has given the world an undying book in "Twice-Told Tales." They have all the felicity of expression, as well as the subtlety of thought and insight, which are the special charm of the author of "The Scarlet Letter." 15. Paul and Virginia. By BERNARDIN DE SAINT PIERRE. This idyllic story, by a classic French writer of the wholesome romantic school, is an immortal book, and has won a place for itself in the homes of almost every people who possess a literature and can appreciate the work of genius. 16. Story of an African Farm. By (RALPH IRON) OLIVE SCHREINER. Under the nom de plume of Ralph Iron, Miss Olive Schreiner has written an extraordinarily powerful story. Her novel consists of a series of studies illustrating the wild life of an ostrich farm in South Africa, and setting before the reader, with striking vigor, the problems which trouble a strong intelligence and an imaginative ambition, remote from any possibility of culture. 17. Lays of the Scottish Cavaliers. By WM. EDMONSTONE AYTON. These stirring ballads of Professor Ayton, of Blackwood fame, have their only rival in "Macaulay's Lays of Ancient Rome." Their popularity is lessened by the fact that they are to be met with in every school reader and in the repertoire of most elocutionists and platform declaimers. 18. Lucile. By OWEN MEREDITH (ROBERT LORD LYTTON). "Lucile," by the second Lord Lytton, late Governor-General of India and British Ambassador at Paris, is a novel in verse, with rhymed couplets, cast somewhat in the mould of Mrs. Browning's "Aurora Leigh." 19. Dreams. By OLIVE SCHREINER. Though unlike the "Story of an African Farm," "Dreams" has many of the characteristics which made Miss Schreiner's early work famous. The book is both interesting and suggestive, and, besides its high meditative qualities, is rich in the discussion of those mental and moral problems which this clever writer delights to propound to herself and lay before the thoughtful reader. 20. Black Beauty. By ANNA SEWELL. The tale well deserves its great popularity, for it is wonderfully realistic, and makes a strong appeal to those who love dumb animals and possess the instinct of common humanity. It is a book to charm and impress all who have to do with horses, especially those who seek to suppress that most senseless of all vices, cruelty to animals. 21. One of the Profession. A CHARMING THEATRICAL NOVEL. "I am very glad to have your story," Mary E. Wilkins writes in a note to the author of "One of the Profession," "and it interests me deeply. I know nothing of the dramatic life which you depict, and it has for me the charm of novelty, although the strength of the story by no means depends upon that. I have always felt that there was a great chance for good work in that field if the writer came who was familiar with it." 22. Sartor Resartus. By THOMAS CARLYLE. Few men have given a mightier impulse to the intellectual and moral life of his age than Thomas Carlyle. He is perhaps the most profound, the most dramatic, the most imaginative, and the most original writer of the century. With great acuteness of thought and a marvellously forceful power of description, he has enriched the literature of the time as no other writer has enriched it. Sartor Resartus (the tailor remade) is of the same unique type as Carlyle's own character. It professes to be a review of a German treatise on dress; but it is this only in an allegorical or metaphysical sense. 23. The Idylls of the King. By the late LORD TENNYSON. "The Idylls of the King" have won for themselves an abiding place in the political literature of the age. The work is a series of connected poems retelling the legend of King Arthur, Merlin, and the Knights of the Round Table, in which the poet not only restores the age of chivalry, purified and elevated, but gives noble expression to the aspirations of man, the hopes of religion, and the harmonies of nature. 24. The Pleasures of Life. By SIR JOHN LUBBOCK, BT. This is one of the most instructive as well as the delightful books of the time. It is written with a student's devotion and interest, and the author's enthusiasm infects every reader. The book deals with the intellectual, the moral and the informing of the modern man, and will be found well nigh an education in itself. 25. The Lady of the Lake. By SIR WALTER SCOTT. This, the most popular of the great modern troubadour's poems, is of the same chivalric type as "Marmion," and the "Lay of the Last Minstrel," though it is more richly picturesque, as well as more interesting in plot. The same glow of national feeling breathes through the poem, the same felicity of description, the same light and color, the same instinct for and love of martial ardor, with many inimitable touches of tender passion. Scott's fervid patriotism and love of country are equally distinguishable in the poem and animates and illumines every line. 26. Mornings in Florence. By JOHN RUSKIN, LL.D. There is no greater writer of English prose than Ruskin; his diction is magnificent, while his feeling for the beautiful in art or in nature is unexampled. He is not only a versatile art-critic, but perhaps the most learned as well as the most enthusiastic exponent of architecture. His "Mornings in Florence" are charming studies of the beauties of the historic Florentine capital, told with a lover's interest in art, and with much elevated thought and inspiring reflection.

The Volume, which is Octavo in size, is printed on fine paper, and in large, clear, bold type, which can be read with the greatest ease. It numbers nearly eight hundred pages, and some idea as to the capacity of the volume may be derived from the fact that it weighs about six pounds, is 10 1/4 inches long, 7 1/2 inches wide and 3 1/4 inches in thickness. The binding is in fine English cloth with embossing from an original design in gold, silver and ink, making the work

A SUPERB EDITION FOR THE LIBRARY.

Magnificently illustrated in colors with flags of all nations and the portraits of all the Presidents; the seals of all the States, and numerous beautiful engravings, describing the growth and development of the nation. Never before has there been published a book so rich in historical incident, so instructive in its method of presentation, and so brilliant and fascinating in its narrative; and never has there been a time when it was so necessary that an American citizen should look back and trace the progress of his country, from its early, humble beginnings, to its present proud position among the foremost nations of the globe. But the book must be seen and read to be properly appreciated. All who improve the opportunity to secure a copy, will be convinced that the many encomiums so freely bestowed upon it are fully merited.
