COUNTESS CASSINI.

It was when Count Cassini had his fateful conference with Li Hung Chang at Peking, long before the Boxer trouble. The count's interpreter was away, for Li's call was unexpected, and as the Chinese statesman could not speak Russian and the Russian diplomat did not understand Chinese the conference came to a deadlock. The count's niece, who had picked up something of the language, stepped into the breach, and the affair was arranged to the satisfaction of both parties.

The Chinese empress loaded her with presents, the czar's government made a note of the service performed, and when there was a question several years ago of the young lady's precedence at Washington, where the count was then ambassador, the czar himself confounded her rivals by making her a countess. This was something like rapid promotion for the lady.

The announcement that Eleanor Robson is shortly to become the wife of August Belmont, the wealthy and famous New York financier, has recalled the splendid work on the stage of this actress. Her first appearance, in 1897, as Marjory Knox in "Men and Women" at the California theater, San Francisco, was in a large measure purely accidental. She was traveling with her mother, who was playing an important role in the production, when the actress playing the part of Marjory Knox was taken ill. The management was in a sorry plight, having no understudy. Miss Robson volunteered. She went on without previous experience and with only a few hours' study and made a decided impression.

This determined her choice of a profession. Hitherto she had expected to be a painter. She played a wide range of characters and made a marked impression. Her classical roles were Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet," Kate Hardcastle in "She Stoops to Conquer" and Constance in Browning's "In a Balcony."

Two of the strongest of Miss Robson's character parts, the memory of which will be prized, are Salomy Jane, from Bret Harte's story, and Glad, in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow."

Inez Milholland, whose name has so frequently been seen in print of late in connection with the woman suffrage movement and the shirt waist strike in New York, is the daughter of John E. Milholland of New York and London, and a background of wealth has not lessened her charm. Her bronze hair, large blue eyes and well modeled features made her a classic type.

From the first she has thrown herself into the woman's freedom movement. Her sister Vida has shared her enthusiasm and marched with the parades, but she has left to her more dashing sister the public speaking.

At Vassar Inez kept President Taylor on the rack, inciting miniature equal rights resolutions among the students. When the suffragists of the state journeyed to the capitol at Albany for their annual hearing on woman and the vote the president temporarily forbade Miss Milholland to accompany them, fearing her presence would accentuate the rumor that the college was a center of the woman's rights campaign.

Senak Thieves Get Into House.

During the absence of Geo. Sheidemantel and family from their home on Miller street, sneak thieves entered the house yesterday and took several articles and a small amount of money. This is the first case of this kind that has happened in this valley for some time with the exception of one which happened a few days ago. It is evident that there is a band of thieves who have floated into the valley, but by careful watching it is believed that they can be found and arrested.

Stratford Man Fears Fruit Is Killed

E. D. Cox, of Stratford, is in the city this morning and he states that he fears that all of the fruit in that region has been killed by the recent cold weather. There will be no peach crop, he says, and possibly no apple crop. He was surprised to find that Wenatchee valley had not been affected.

Limit Sale of Tickets.

We, the excursion committee of the Wenatchee Commercial club, find it necessary to limit the number of Mansfield-Waterville excursion tickets to 110. These tickets may be secured from the secretary of the commercial club. All reservations must be made before eight o'clock Tuesday evening.

Obituary of Charlotte Scudder Utley.

Charlotte Scudder was born in Farmington, Oakland county, state of Michigan, in 1828. She was married to Uriah Utley in 1852. She with her husband moved to Kingston, Wis., the same year. Seven children were born to them, of whom five are living, namely: Mrs. T. M. Luce, of Oxford, Wis.; Marshall and Eugene; Ira Utley, of Minneapolis, Minn.; Mrs. T. E. Wilson, of Wenatchee, with whom she has made her home since coming west. Three of the sons were unavoidably prevented from being at their mother's funeral. Mrs. Luce's husband being sick prevented her also from being present. Sister Utley was taken ill about six weeks ago, and although she had medical attendance and all the loving and affectionate care and ministrations on the part of her daughter, Mrs. Wilson, and her husband, she gradually failed and at 5 o'clock on Thursday evening, April 7, 1910, she passed peacefully away like one falling into a restful sleep.

When but a child she sought the Saviour, and united with the Methodist Episcopal church, remaining an active, consistent member until the Lord called her to himself.

The hymns selected by the leader were favorites of our sister, who now, among the redeemed, sings in nobler strains. Her remains were laid away in the Wenatchee cemetery, Saturday, April 9.

WENATCHEE THEATRE

This week at the Wenatchee theatre:

Frederick, the great magician.
Miss Alice Robinson, famous soprano.

The greatest religious and historical feature films. Five chapters on the Life of Moses.

Chapter I. and II.—Monday and Tuesday.

Tuesday Noon Dinner Tomorrow.

Tomorrow the Tuesday noon dinner of the commercial club will be due again. The ladies of the W. C. T. U. have the work in charge.

L. H. Slade, of Waterloo, Iowa, is one of the new arrivals in the valley. Mr. Slade arrived in Wenatchee Sunday morning and it is probable that he will make his permanent home here, and if he does his family will follow him later. Mr. Slade states that there was an early spring in the middle west this year. He is acquainted with a number of others from his locality who expect to leave for the west soon.
