

The Only Safe and Sure Investment is the Soil

Such is the safe and sound advice of men like J. J. Hill the great railway magnate, as well as Forrest Crissey one of America's greatest farm experts, who says:

"Put aside from your prosperity a farm; buy some land. When the day comes that you are ripe in experience, judgment and real mental capacity, but are not wanted as an employee because you are more than 60; then you will be in a position to work for yourself, to draw dividends on your own abilities, and probably better dividends than you ever drew before. A man who has a farm and has the power to think can always hitch the two together and make a life job, and a good one, too. Thousands of men right now are soaking away farms. It's good business. If you are wise, follow suit." Such advice as that of Mr. Crissey should make an impression on any reader. Another thing is the fact that in a few years farm land is going higher. Good land is scarce

There is positively no land in the northwest that combines as many good qualities, both as to soil, climate and market location as does the
