W. S. Gehr returned last night from a several weeks' hunting trip on Howe Sound. Camp was made about half a day's steamer ride from Vancouver. Little hunting was done on account of the continual rain. The first afternoon the party spent in the woods two deer were seen, but after that time no hunting was done on account of the dense underbrush being filled with water. Mr. Gehr thinks this would be an ideal country for hunting in the summer time, but is too late in the season for it now. They caught quantities of fish and had more flounder than they could use.

THOMAS ASKS FOR NEW TRIAL

was devoted first to an outline of the defense by Ira Thomas which was read immediately after the Judge ruled against his motion for a verdict of not guilty. The first witness for the defense was Noel Totten, the husband of Mrs. Beebe's daughter. It was a monotonous hour and a half while he was on the stand. What was the object of the many questions of the defense was a mystery both to the prosecution and to the court, but all efforts to stop these seemingly immaterial questions had little more effect than to delay the progress of the case. It was therefore decided to allow the attorney to have his way and ask whatever questions he might see fit.

Will Tabor, Mrs. Beebe's grandson, was the next witness and he brought out nothing of importance.

The saw mill operator, Mr. Schmitt, who purchased the logs from the Totten and Beebe homesteads, tried to tell that the Suttons could just as well have used another road, but an objection by the state was sustained.

Mr. Totten was recalled to the stand and testified that the gun used by his wife to shoot Jim Sutton was his property for seven years, and he possessed it, therefore, six years prior to his marriage with Mrs. Totten. During that time it reposed mostly in his trunk but since last May his wife has used it constantly in killing birds, hawks and varmints about the place.

A little merriment was introduced by the attorney to lighten up the rather dry proceedings when Attorney Reeves asked the witness if he ever noticed a hawk roosting on a tree on the left hand side of the road as you go up the canyon. The court did not restrain the laughter which pervaded the room.

AFTER THE LAST SUFFRAGE RIOT IN ENGLAND.

THE OFFICIAL ELECTION COUNT

Woman Suffrage Carried Two to One—Fuller's Count Increased 100.

The official returns of the late general election are now compiled and on file with County Auditor John Godfrey. None of the comparative results are materially changed, except possibly on commissioner for the first district. E. M. Gillette is elected by a hundred less than was announced.

It is a noticeable fact that the vote on the constitutional amendments ran about one-third of the number of ballots cast for candidates. This shows conclusively that voters overlooked this important matter. It is therefore possible that the election returns on woman suffrage is not representative of the true sentiment of the citizens of the county. The same is perhaps true of the balance of the state.

Following are the totals: For the amendment to Article VI of the state constitution relating to qualifications of voters, 554; against, 207.

For the amendment to section 10 of Article III of the state constitution relating to the succession to office of governor, 528; against, 99.

The socialists of this county did not poll a very large vote. Coates, the congressional candidate, obtained the largest number of ballots of any of the socialist nominees.

Following are the official returns for all candidates:

INSURANCE AGENTS ORGANIZE

They Prefer Association to Better the Existing Conditions.

Insurance agents in the cities of this state have organized a state association. At a meeting recently held at North Yakima plans for the association were discussed and officers elected.

Spokane local agents actively promoted the formation of a state association. The association was formed for the purpose, among other things, of bringing about cleaner practices in the insurance business; better ethical relations and to prevent rebating.

The following have been named as officers: I. H. Binnie, of Spokane, president; Seth Morford, of Seattle, vice president; E. L. Ensign, of Spokane, secretary and treasurer. The executive committee consists of Keo. C. Goodman, of Tacoma; L. O. Janek, of North Yakima; W. R. Paxton, of Walla Walla, and C. A. Hibbard, of Everett.

It is the intention to later organize a Northwestern association, to include Washington, Idaho, Oregon, California, Montana, Wyoming and Utah.

RAILROADS WOULD RAISE RATES TO COAST POINTS

Northern Pacific; the Gould lines, including the Western Pacific and the Denver & Rio Grande; the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, although nearly every railroad in the United States more or less directly will be affected.

Spokane Attorney's Views. Spokane, Nov. 29.—The proposal of the western railroads to raise the coast rates instead of lowering Spokane rates in order to conform with the long and short haul clause is in effect an acknowledgment that the celebrated "water competition" plea is a myth.

This is the comment of H. M. Stephens, attorney for Spokane in the historic Spokane rate cases, on new advices from Chicago that the railroads are preparing to fight for a general raise of 25 per cent or more in Coast rates instead of a reduction in Spokane rates.

Attorney Stephens points out that if the railroads can hold the coast traffic at rates 25 per cent and more higher than those in force at present they will have successfully proved that water competition does not affect the situation at all. Therefore, he argues, the sole justification urged by the railroads for charging Spokane and other inland cities as much or more than Coast cities is absolutely without basis in fact.

CARL JONES NOW IN ILLINOIS

Did Some Effective Advertising in St. Paul Church.

"Clinton, Ill., Nov. 22. "We left home for the east on the 17th inst. Of course, we thought our first duty was to boost for Wenatchee, and, of course, we had some apples with us which we gave away, but I want to tell you of a little advertising we did that some might say was a little irregular.

"We were in St. Paul Sunday, and in the morning started out to find a church. The nearest one was the Central Presbyterian. We went in and were met by the pastor, Rev. Harry Wilson, who told us he was going to give a short talk to the children on 'An Apple Seed'. He had a Hoover apple which he thought was very fine, and when he learned we were from Wenatchee, he was very much interested. I told him if he wanted an apple for demonstration I would get him a real apple. So I went to the station and got one from my grip, a large, fine Rome Beauty. I learned also that he was a college chum of Bishop Hughes, so I gave him the bishop's description of the valley and its products when he said we raised 'plums as big as peaches, peaches as big as apples, apples as big as cantaloupes, cantaloupes as big as pumpkins, and pumpkins as big as all out doors.'"

"Well, before he finished he gave the above and showed the big apple and told the people we raised such apples by irrigation and told them where. He preached a good sermon afterward, so I guess the little boost didn't hurt the people.

"I see here a few western apples of rather common stock. Eastern apples such as we would pack in our choice grade, plus the worms, are selling at 60 cents a peck. Surely our apples should be introduced in this section and I think it can be done profitably. Grain crops are all the very best and farmers are holding out for better prices, making money a little tight. The country is generally prosperous, but is not moving to the front like the northwest.

"We are having a good time and will enjoy our visit, but I know we will be glad to get back to the H. of the B. R. A.

"CARL JONES."

Mr. Otto Paul, Milwaukee, Wis., says Foley's Honey and Tar is still more than the best. He writes us: "All those that thought it think it is the best for coughs and colds they ever had and I think it is still more than the best. Our baby had a bad cold and it cured him in one day. Please accept thanks." Wenatchee Drug Co.

LOVETT TOUCHED BY BLONDE

Cashmere Apple Grower Learns Ways of Bad Seattle.

Seattle, Nov. 29.—When the shades of night presaged the fog end of Turkey day, F. M. Lovett, an apple grower of Cashmere, wound up at Pioneer place. F. M. was quite lonesome.

He wished somebody would start something. Somebody did. She was a flashy little blonde.

She flashed a pair of those "Oh-you-kid" eyes at F. M. and he fell for it with a bump.

It was really easy for the nifty little blonde. After they hooked up conversationally, F. M. learned that Peaches and Cream was Mrs. Theresa Allen, "a show girl."

"I'm not one of those 'chorus girls' but a show girl," quoth Blondy with spirit. "There's a difference, you know."

The apple grower didn't know that difference and didn't care a hang. He is 50 years old.

Blondy steered F. M. into the Breakers cafe. They were puny, looking good cheer right merrily when suddenly Blondy threw in the agitation clutch, at the same time whispering staggily:

"There's an old sweetheart of mine. He's awfully jealous of me, but I don't care. I want to show him that I'm with a good sport. Lead me your sparklers, just to show him that you're not a four-flusher."

F. M. was game. He gave her two diamond rings and a $400 stockpin. The flaxen-haired siren got a long distance call. Would Mr. Lovett excuse her?

Sure. F. M. lingered until they began to put the chairs on the tables. "I'm waiting for a lady," he murmured when they ordered him out. Lovett waited at the entrance until dawn.

Late yesterday afternoon he sought the police.
