SPORT NOTES

Looking over Michigan's football record for the season we agree with Coach Yost in his denial that he will lose five stars.

Chicago will be as soft as New York yet. They are having wrestling matches and six-day bike races there.

The report that $34,000,000 were paid in baseball salaries in 1915 shows there is money in baseball all right, but the owners don't get it.

Freddy Welsh and Ted Lewis are not fighting in this country instead of in Europe because they lack nerve, but because there are no gate receipts in Europe.

All Kale is to box in New York. That's a name for a boxer.

Alex Aberg, the Russian-Finn, says he won't quit wrestling until he has made a million dollars. We don't believe there are that many suckers in the world.

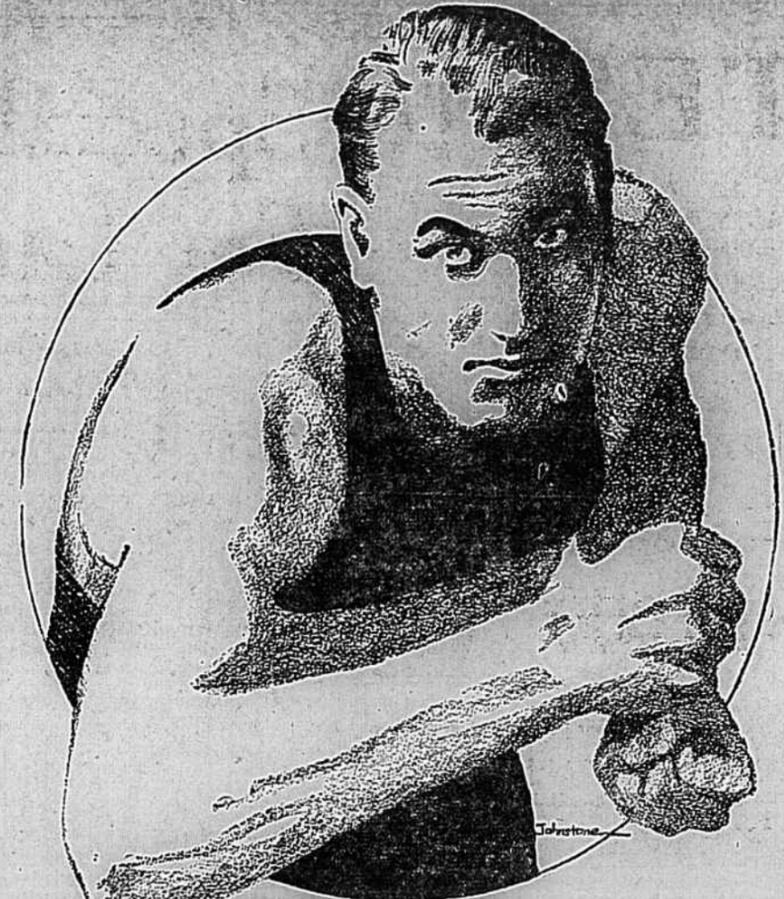

Kansas City and Buffalo have lost their Fed league franchises. Some fans in the two cities evidently didn't know they ever had 'em.

Harry Davis and Chief Bender are touring the country as trapshooters. Having shot their bolts, they are experienced shooters.

When I asked our class to name the chief difference between the sun and moon, one boy said the sun is bigger and healthier than the moon because he goes to bed earlier.

HERE'S THE MAN WHO'LL TACKLE WILLARD; HAS LONGEST REACH.

Fred Fulton

BY BROWN HOLMES.

The man slated to be the first to meet Champion Jess Willard probably will be Fred Fulton, a giant from Rochester, Minn. Willard has signed for a fight in New Orleans in March, and Fulton is being groomed as his opponent. It will be Willard's first fight since he knocked out Jack Johnson.

Fulton is something of a newcomer, but has advanced rapidly, mainly through use of long arms and legs that make it possible for him to keep opponents away from him and a terrific wallop.

Fulton has the longest reach of any man in the ring. When his arms are spread out he spans 84 1/2 inches. Willard had the biggest reach until Fulton came in. He spans 83 1/4 inches.

The Rochester man measures 6 feet, 4 inches and weighs 220. Willard measures 6 feet, 6 inches and weighs 243. Fulton is a whale of a man, but the only thing he has on the champion is reach.

The best information regarding Fulton's punch comes from the report that he floored Art Pelky 13 times in a recent bout. Prior to that he knocked out Jack Moran, Jack Lewis and Tim Logan. None of them is a star performer. Fulton claims to have upset Willard in an exhibition bout at Rochester last spring.

The next bout in which the new big heavy will figure will be with Andre Anderson at Milwaukee, Nov. 17. His manager, Mike Collins, is taking him along slowly, meeting the lesser lights of the heavy class and gradually taking on better men. He hopes that by spring Fulton will be ready for Willard.

GRIDIRON GOSSIP

The two greatest fighters in the country in football are no other than Williams and Amherst. But there was no joy for Amherst in its victory this year. Williams has played eight games to date. They won the first one, then stopped. Amherst knew and Williams knew what the outcome of this game would be and the old-time rivalry was shown in the yelling only, the players of the teams staging but a side show.

Washington-Jefferson plays Bethany next Saturday. This will add another win to Wash-Jeff's long list, but the Bethany players are going to fight hard. The Wash-Jeff team will not use its best players in this contest, as Polwell does not mean to take any chances with his players before the Lehigh game which the Red and Black look upon rather seriously. As far as Lehigh is concerned, that's Lehigh's lookout, but there is genuine sympathy throughout West Virginia for the Bethany players.

Next Friday Parkersburg will be the scene of a gruelling contest between West Virginia University and Marietta College. Marietta played Wesleyan 14 to 14 and the Ohio team is looking on West Virginia University as a worthy contender, but is confident that the Mountaineers will leave the gridiron amidst a family of glooms. While West Virginia is taking a fall out of Marietta, or vice versa, Wesleyan will have Davis and Elkins to trim on the Elkins ground. D. and E. displayed their best wares before the Wesleyan team Saturday at Clarksburg when they met Marshall College. Wesleyan will most likely win this contest, but five days later they will have to fight for their lives to hold off the onslaught of the West Virginia team.

What may be a tragedy to the Brown team was nothing more than a merry pastime for the scrubs of Harvard, but Brown beat Yale. Now watch Harvard send her scrubs against the Bulldog. Although the Harvard players expected an easy game and even did win the game easily, they were cautious enough to send Mahan and two or three other Harvard players to watch Princeton and Yale play. The purpose of watching the Bulldog-Tiger contest was to permit the spies to get Yale's plays so that Harvard could meet the Yale defense next Saturday. If Harvard's second team defeated the Brown team which in turn routed Yale, it is reasonable to suppose that Harvard's first string men should win from Shevlin, Hinkey & Co.'s Uhlans, but—Watch Yale!

The Carlisle Redskins sent the Dickinson team to the happy hunting grounds Saturday with 20 poison arrows sunk in its carcass. The Dickinson blunderbuss struck the aborigines 14 times which was not sufficient to crack the leathery hide of the wards of Uncle Sam.

The Indians have been working nicely in the past three weeks and the team that is to represent the school next year may make a large dent in the dope.

There is no sentiment in football. Syracuse Saturday muzzed up the prettiest little record that Colgate has this contest, but five days later they

INDIAN SAYS IT IS BEST TO DO MOST HUNTING SITTING DOWN

(This story on moose and deer is another of the series by an Indian, on game hunting. The Indian has had to depend on hunting and fishing for food. He is the greatest natural hunter. His tips are not only good for hunters, but interesting as nature studies.—Editor.)

BY BUCKAHTAY MOINGAM.
As Told To C. L. Gilman, Expert Hunter and Writer.

The moose is not afraid of wolves like Washkish, the deer, so acts different and must be hunted different. The moose lives farther back in the woods. He has longer legs, can travel farther and walk through swamps better.

The deer is afraid to sleep in the same bed twice. The moose is not. Maybe you see where a moose has laid down. No use to hunt there then. Maybe in two or three weeks he will be back. Watch for his tracks.

The moose likes to sleep on a side hill where he can look around. The moose can be followed better than the deer. He does not look behind so much. He is not so afraid.

Sometimes he will stop at the top of a hill to look back. If you were close you can shoot at him from the hill behind.

The he-moose takes longer steps than the she-moose. His horns break bushes and take bark off trees.

When white man hunts moose or deer he makes noise with his feet. If he looks to be quiet with his feet, he does not see moose or deer. Injun don't look at feet, just looks for moose and deer.

If you look for all of a moose or deer, you may never see one. You should look for his hair, for the sun shining on his horns or for something moving. Then, maybe, you see more.

When snow is on the ground, look for a rock or log that has no snow on it. That is, a moose or deer lying down.

Always you keep looking. Walk a little, look a lot. Look a lot more. And you should listen. You might hear him walking or biting off branches. Once I heard a gee-te-mo (squirrel) talking angry. I went there, very still. Gee-te-mo was cussing big deer. I shot him.

When you are still you can see easiest what is moving. If you are moving maybe he will see you first. My father's father told me it was best for me to do most hunting sitting down. My father's father was a smart Injun.

IN THESE DRY DAYS.
"Have you a good hair tonic?"
"Yes, here is one that is vouchered for by people who have drank it!"

"Fame," says the Indianapolis Star, "is a high ladder with grease on every rung."
"And," says the Boston Transcript, "an echo is the only thing that can cheat a woman out of the last word."
