WHAT THEY WEAR IN PARIS.

BY BETTY BROWN.

This "Purple Lady" was gowned by Premet and I am presenting a sketch of her ladyship to show one of the new Paris models in afternoon gowns. The chiffon velvet of skirt and collar are in the deepest, warmest tone of purple. The underbust and the sleeves are orchid tinted Georgette crepe. The same material forms pan-

I've done to you. Can you forgive me? I'm so sorry for it all." He held out his arms. "Dearest," he whispered, "this is worth the misery of a thousand years."

WHAT DAME FASHION IS DOING.

BY BETTY BROWN. Are skirts to be longer or shorter? Neither Paris nor New York seems to know, and they will probably not issue any final decision. The length or brevity of a skirt depends much on the person who wears it, and on the material used also on the general lines of the gown that each designer must be a law unto herself and make the skirt to become the wearer rather than to please Dame Fashion.

Most of the new evening gowns are two-toned, and two or three materials—tulle, lace, chiffon—are used in their creation. The orchid shades are

HEALTH HINTS

Tuberculosis is almost always a house or indoor infection. It is rarely or never caught out of doors where the sunlight, which is the best sort of disinfectant, quickly kills the germs.

Thus there is great danger from living with careless, dirty consumptives, and especially in dark, damp, dirty or ill-ventilated houses, sleeping and living rooms, workshops, factories and stores, which have become infected with the germ by the sick people's careless spitting habits.

The germ, which is a microscopic, rod, invisible to the unaided human eye, is found in millions in mouth and throat discharges from very early in the disease and it is through these discharges almost alone that it reaches others.

Fortunately when people spit out of doors the danger is not quite so great since sooner or later, the sunlight will destroy the germ. But when they spit indoors, as a great many do, where the sun cannot get at the germ and kill it, it may remain alive and active for a long time.

People who spit in this way are thus a terrible danger to all who live with them or those who stay in the places where they live or work. Many people do not know that they have tuberculosis, but think that they had only a "bad cough" when they already have the disease, and are bringing up the germs in their spit.

Every one therefore who spits or coughs should be just as careful about his spitting as if he knew he had tuberculosis.

If those with germs in their sputum spit on floors and sidewalks the sputum will be ground under foot, blown around as dust in the air, and inhaled of other people and will finally reach their lungs.

HEALTH QUESTIONS ANSWERED

B/H. O.—"I cannot break by child of the 'slouching' habit. Can you offer me any suggestions?"

It is possible that the child's spine (you do not give age) is becoming deformed. If a physician finds this is not the case, discipline should keep the child erect.

500 MOTHERS HELP IN FIGHT FOR BABY!

leading all others, though a lovely color for a brunette is the new shade of bronze.

Pockets pouch out on almost every one-piece gown. Some of them are just make-believe patches with not even a place in them for a "hanky."

Plaid hosiery came in for sports suits, but girls who never golf are wearing plaid stockings.

Perfectly Cut Diamond.

A properly cut diamond has 58 facets, including the table and culet; the 32 facets above the girdle should be 40 per cent of the girdle and the angle from the girdle to the table should be 35 degrees and from the girdle to the culet 40 degrees. A perpendicular line drawn from the center of the table to the center of the culet will be one-third above the girdle and two-thirds below.

Becked by 500 mothers Mrs. Anderson appealed to Health Commissioner Emerson and Mayor Mitchell of New York for restoration of her baby son, taken from her home to a hospital for contagious diseases.

He Is No Benefactor.

He who allows two weeds to grow where one weed grew before is an everlasting benefactor to mosquito kind, but not much of a civic praiser nor promoter of public health in his home town.—Brownsville Herald.

Romances.

Romances are written and read not because they are either true or untrue, but because regardless of actuality they give relief to the unused emotional pressure of our hearts.—George Soule in the New York Republic.

Patents.

Applications for letters patent must be made to the commissioner of patents, Washington, D. C., and signed by the inventor. The time required in securing the patent depends upon the invention and the facilities that the applicant has for proving his case.

A GUINEA HEN ON MILADY'S HAT, FALL FAD

Now comes the "Blue Bird" hat. It is a smart style of dark brown panne velvet with a guinea hen set at a jaunty angle on the crown front. The angle is one of the important points of the fad.

No Previous Experience. Traffic Cop (to autoist whose car has just been in a bad collision)—"That's the most complete smash-up I ever saw." Autoist (proudly)—"Thank you. And would you believe it, it's the first one I ever had?"—Puck.

MATCH MOTOR HAT AND COAT

There must be harmony between the motor bonnet and the motor coat. Smart motorists of the bonnet netted sex achieve this by making their bonnets of the same material that lines their coats.

Behold the stunning little hood of many colored plaid silk—a Fashion-Art sketch which shows how cleverly a coat lining may be contrived into a bonnet.

The veil is turquoise blue, an edging of blue beads.

TRUTH STRANGER THAN FICTION.

Redstar, W. Va.—"I am glad that I am enjoying better health now than I have in five years, and I give Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Favorite Prescription' all the praise. I also used Dr. Pierce's Antiseptic Healing Suppositories and they have helped me so much. The first time I wrote to you for advice, I was in such bad condition I did not think I could live very long. The doctors said I had ulcers of the stomach and some said I had consumption. I had taken treatment from four different doctors and got worse all the time. I had just about given up hopes of ever being well again. I could not eat anything—couldn't take a drink of water but what it would nearly kill me. My stomach was in such bad condition, I could not have my clothes touch me, but since using your remedies I can eat anything I want to and it does not hurt me. I am looking and feeling better now than I have in five or six years."—MRS. VINTON MILLER, Redstar, West Va.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery helps the stomach digest the food and manufacture nourishing blood. It has a tonic effect and soon enables the stomach and heart to perform their functions in a natural, healthy manner, without any outside aid.

Contains neither alcohol nor narcotics. Its ingredients are made public and printed on wrapper. It's a pure alternative extract made with glycerine from native roots and herbs.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

Your Child. It is almost as important to teach your child to be cheerful as it is to teach him to breathe deep and to brush his teeth daily. Being cheerful aids digestion, quickens the circulation, in fact, gives tone and vigor to the entire body. The cheerful child rarely complains of minor ailments.

Much Need for It. The people of India reverence the tree called Ficus Religiosa, or the Peepul tree, because they say you can never tell a lie beneath it. For this reason they always put it in places remote from where they sell anything. What a splendid thing it would be if it could be planted throughout our cities.—Selected.

Only Joys to Be Distributed. Bury your sorrows, but fling your joys right and left and let the world know you are not the agent for monuments. Remember that the living enjoy flowers, and not the dead.

CONFESIONS OF A WIFE

"I wonder, Margie," continued Paula, "if you ever met a man who hypnotized you at first glance."

"The late Elbert Hubbard once said that on one of his lecture trips he looked into the eyes of a woman in the auditorium and a flash passed between them, something that would ever after make her life different. He recognized she had felt the shock to her whole physical being as did he."

"I have never seen that woman since," he said. "I did not speak to her at the time, but oftentimes in the midst of something that woman's face appears, and my heart beats very heavily at the memory of it."

"Mr. Hubbard used this experience to illustrate the wonderful magnetic influence that sometimes exists between man and woman."

"I am not talking wholly, Margie, of physical magnetism. It must be something stronger than that. There comes a mist, a sudden shiver, and life is never the same again."

"Margie," said Paula suddenly, "it has been many years since I looked into the eyes of Ernest Lawton, and yet that first look still lingers. He saw me in the manager's office and he opened the door to the inner office he turned and shot back one parting glance fraught with meaning. I sat in a trance fully five minutes, only to be jolted out with, 'Miss Newton the Big Noise wants to see you.'"

"I felt my knees shake. I wondered if I could walk in that door without swaying. Then came Emma's words, 'Play the game, child; play the game. Remember you have to do this or leave the table.'"

"I straightened up and entered the inner room. A big, perspiring man sat there, his feet on the desk, and his hat on the back of his head. There was a slight look of curiosity on his face. Beside him stood Ernest Lawton hat in hand."

"You remember Ernest Lawton, Margie; he is one of the handsomest men of the stage."

"Both men spoke at once. The manager brusquely, 'What's your line?' The actor courteously 'Sit down, Miss Newton.'"

"Acting, I hope," I said in answer to the manager's question as I sank into the chair placed for me by Ernest Lawton.

"Don't you know?" was the manager's surprised query. "No," was my answer. "I have acted only in amateur theatricals." "The manager granted, 'She'll never do, Lawton. She's green.'"
