All the very funny pictures of Charlie Chaplin's doings for the screen producers, this new one, "The Count," which is at the Dixie tonight is said to be the best yet.

The announcement is made by the Grand theatre that the new $10,000 organ which is being installed there will be ready for use Saturday.

Miss Stella Heck, who has many friends among show folks on account of her pleasing personality and her efficiency in serving hungry thespians while she was a waitress at the Roush House, and later at another local restaurant, has accepted a position in Pittsburg and left for that city yesterday. Stella was not only good to show people, but to every other patron even including us poor newspaper guys. Our motto is: "Don't bite the hand that feeds you."

But speaking of Miss Heck's departure we are reminded of a little incident that served to demonstrate how popular she is in Fairmont. She and a friend were promenading along Main street one evening for the first time in each other's company. There were nods to the right and left, greetings from store doorways and a smile of recognition from across the street. It was just like the President of the United States heading a parade, so it seemed to her escort. He was raising his hat almost before he had put it on. This was so continuous that on returning home he told her that the next time he loaned her his presence on the street he would be hatless. He held up to the right and left, greetings from store doorways and a smile of recognition from across the street. The Great Richards who was at the Hipp last week, reports big business at Martinsburg, where he is playing a week's engagement.

Miss Virginia Abbott who has been at the Hippodrome Theatre for five consecutive years told us last night that the number of tickets sold for last night's performance was the largest during her career as ticket "salesman." "Some seats," she said, "that we never wished to sell on account of their inconvenient location were sold last night in answer to requests that amounted almost to pleadings. And the standing room was never sold to a like extent. I really ought not to have sold so much of it but if you had heard how the people insisted you could better understand."

And then we looked inside. There it was—the biggest, the best-dressed—and yet really cosmopolitan crowd we have ever seen at this popular house. But there was a big reason for it all. "The Two Orphans" is being presented by the Lewis-Oliver players in a manner that we have not seen equalled since its historic presentation by Kate Claxton. What slight advantage this once famous actress naturally possessed and developed as a star of course, must be acknowledged, but as a whole—giving individual scrutiny to the work of every member of the present cast—we are brave enough to go on record as saying that the Lewis-Oliver production in costuming, scenery, and all things else, is flawless. The Monday performance was witnessed by a big house, and the public's judgment was recorded in an even larger attendance at the second night.

"Easy" Wilson got out of bed before we did this morning and hurried off to Clarksburg to play his little drum in the big parade. We never saw "Easy" in uniform but if he had on anything like we saw a straggling drum corps dressed in, we are indeed sorry that we didn't get up an hour earlier.

Chas. Hopkirk is now exploding harmony and getting music out of a piano at the same time in a Hagerstown, Md., theatre. Hoppy finds Hagerstown has many strange sights. There are places there that have railings running about shin high along the fronts of counters in well lighted stores. There's nothing like them in Fairmont. OLD STAGER.

MORE EVIDENCE OF P. O. FAT FRYING

More McCormick Denies Stronger Becomes Case Against Democrats.

(Special Dispatch to West Virginian) NEW YORK, N. Y., October 11.—The Democratic National Committee is in trouble over the discovery of its attempt to extort Wilson campaign funds from postmasters and other federal officeholders. Chairman McCormick undertook at first to deny utterly that any such attempt was being made. He said the charge was "arrest nonsense and absolutely untrue."

Then he learned that the Republican National Committee had proof that the charge was true. Thereupon Mr. McCormick sought cover by making public a letter written by the State chairman, instructing the bagmen how to violate the law and escape the penitentiary and announcing that he and the rest of the Democratic National Committee repudiated it but a great deal more is needed from Mr. McCormick in the way of explanation and denial before the case is closed.

Something is needed, also from Postmaster General Burleson in whose State, Texas, this attempt at extortion was made. Something is needed also from D. O. Roper who resigned the office of first Assistant Postmaster General to become a member of the Democratic National campaign committee, cited by Mr. Ridgway as authority for the extortion scheme.

When Mr. McCormick has given due attention to this case from Texas, he may be ready to take up the case of the State of Washington and issue a repudiation of the bagmen who are so active in collecting assessments from federal office holders there. He may find time to explain the difference in the rate of assessment in Washington from that in Texas. After that perhaps Mr. McCormick will take advantage of the opportunity to tell what Mr. A. T. Schmitt of Louisville, Ky., is doing in the way of stimulating postmasters and others to join the Wilson "permanent organization" and to contribute to the cause. Mr. McCormick may explain whether this is the organization that is to keep a record of the "Loyal" who contribute and the "Disloyal" who do not contribute. Mr. Schmitt happens to be the postmaster of Louisville and is in a specially favored position both for influencing other postmasters and for other work which in view of the provisions of the law alluded to by Mr. Ridgway requires a delicacy of touch. The emphatic manner in which Mr. McCormick denied responsibility for and repudiated the extortion game in Texas sets up the national presumption that he will take a similar course regarding these in Washington and Kentucky cases. And when he has settled them there will be several others for him to tackle. Mr. McCormick is likely to be fairly busy in the repudiation line.

ELIMINATED ALL HIS TROUBLES

Nerv-Worth Did the Work for O. N. Bartlett—He Tells Crane's Drug Store.

This convincing statement was made some time ago. It is well worth repeating, especially when everybody is sweltering, for Nerv-Worth is a wonderful hot weather tonic.
Crane's Drug Store—I bought two bottles of Nerv-Worth in Grafton from the Grafton Drug and Chemical Co., while I was in that city.
My trouble was nervous indigestion, no sleep, no appetite, all run down, very nervous, gas on stomach and all the ills that go with such conditions.
After taking Nerv-Worth for a while and before the first bottle was used I began to get better and my health was good. All my troubles mentioned above are eliminated and I feel well.
I recommend Nerv-Worth to anybody suffering as I did.

BITS OF STATE NEWS

The first to be raised over the old federal building in Wheeling, in the year 1862, and the story of the ceremonies attending the celebration, featured in an open eating and social given by the General U. S. Grant Camp No. 9, Sons of Veterans, in their hall, Mutual Bank building, the other evening. Benjamin Exley, Sr., told the story of the flag raising, and proudly held up the emblem, now owned by John Richardson. "It was the biggest day Wheeling had ever seen," said Mr. Exley. "More than fifteen hundred people jammed the streets, and loud cheers when the mayor opened the ceremonies with an address. The flag was made by women of East Wheeling."

Increased demand for gasoline has resulted in the installation during the past few months of at least one hundred gasoline plants throughout the oil region of West Virginia in order that every drop of the fluid can be extracted from gas which heretofore has gone to waste. Many other plants are now in the course of construction while numerous old ones have been rebuilt so that their output has been more than doubled.

The new Scottish Rite Cathedral at Wheeling which was dedicated this week is a large rectangular block, 115 feet by 90 feet, reaching an elevation above the sidewalk of 120 feet. It is classical in design, having in the two street facades a colonnade set at the height of the third floor and supporting a heavy cornice and parapets. The ornamental materials used are buff brick, cement and terra cotta.

Above the entrance and at the level with the column base, there stands out on the main entrance cornice, a remarkable double eagle. It is made of terra cotta and is built of sixty-eight pieces, the whole weighing approximately nine tons.
The building is entirely fireproof, having a steel frame weighing more than six hundred tons. The floors are of a combination tile and reinforced concrete beams extending from beam to beam of the steel structure. The roof is of concrete with a water-proof coating.

On the first floor in the lobby, or rotunda, so called because of the circular colonnade, are eight columns supporting circular beams, which in turn, support the ceiling. These columns are of white marble, each shaft cut out from a solid block. The finish of the rotunda is white marble, contrasting with the rich dark oak of the various doors and windows.

Grouped around the rotunda are the various offices and other rooms of the secretaries and Masonic club, a commodious library and dining room. To the rear of the library is located the billiard room, furnished with six tables. Opening also from this section of the lobby is a spacious parlor for the use of the wives and women friends of the members.

The second floor is remarkable, largely from an engineering point of view. Here is located the banquet hall, 110 feet long by 62 wide, with the deep paneled ceiling, eighteen feet above. In the supporting of these great spans it was necessary to use large girders weighing from six to ten tons each. To the right of the banquet room are the kitchens, eighty-four feet long and twenty feet wide.

The third floor is designed for the use of the York Rite bodies. From the stair and elevator lobby, a long corridor runs from east to west parallel with the front of the building. Along the left of this passage are located two committee rooms, and a spacious lounging room. Turning to the right at the west end of the corridor are the various preparation and tyler's rooms for the two large lodge rooms. The larger of the two lodge rooms is 47 feet wide and 61 feet long while the smaller one is 35 feet wide and 57 feet long.

On a large mezzanine floor between the third and fourth floors, extending across the front of the building, is the business or common lodge room for use of the Scottish Rite bodies and Shrine. On of the same floor and along the west front of the building, but reached from the third or York Rite floor, is located the Knight Templar armory.

Of unusual interest is the auditorium with its stage, occupying the entire fourth floor. The auditorium is large than any theater in the city, having a width of 72 feet and a depth from curtain to front wall of 74 feet, and a ceiling 32 feet above the floor level. This room to the front is circular in form. On either side of the proscenium arch is located a box, the one to the left holding the choir and organ console and the one to the right being for the use of such dignitaries as may be guests of the lodges from time to time. Above this box is located the great pipe organ. The proscenium opening is a great moulded form, 32 feet wide and 1 feet high and back of this is the stage, as large as the usual stage in a theater. An idea of the size of the stage and equipment can be gained when it is known that there are 106 operating drops hung from the gridiron located 40 feet above the floor.

In the basement of the Cathedral are located six bowling alleys, heating plant which is capable of changing the air in the building twelve times an hour, space for a swimming pool, 20x54 feet, shower baths, locker rooms and electrical room.

The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, and doing well whatever you do, without a thought of fame.

Carefully Treat Children's Colds
Neglect of children's colds often lays the foundation of serious lung trouble. On the other hand, it is harmful to continually dose delicate little stomachs with internal medicines or to keep the children always indoors.
Plenty of fresh air in the bedroom and a good application of Vick's "Vapo-O-Bub" Salve over the throat and chest at the first sign of trouble, will keep the little chaps free from colds without injuring their digestions. 25c, 50c, or $1.00.
