HEADLINERS TONIGHT

Stock Productions Hippodrome... The Price She Paid Picture... Nelson... Last Twenty-Four Hours Princess... The Weakness of Strength Dixie... A Woman of Steel Ideal... The Crimson Stain Mystery

MAURICE COSTELLO and the charming Ethel Grandin are at the head of the cast of "The Crimson Stain Mystery" the first chapter of which opens at the Ideal today. As suggested by the title the story is steeped in mystery, through which runs a strong love narrative. Albert Payson Terhune is the author and the production was directed by T. Hayes Hunter. This serial, "The Lass of the Lumberland," and the "Shielding Shadow," which were all started at this house during the week gives the Ideal three very attractive features for weeks to come. All are of intense interest and have strong scenic backgrounds.

One of the big attractions of the season at the Grand will be James Kyrle MacCurdy's latest play of New York life, "A Little Girl in a Big City," said to be one of the most sensational and thrilling plays of the season. A big scenic outfit is carried and an excellent company is promised by the management. It is booked for next Wednesday, matinee and night.

During the short season of musical comedies which will be inaugurated at the Hippodrome week after next the Lewis-Oliver players will go on tour, playing a part of their repertoire in other cities. Upon their return, which will not be many weeks delayed, there will be several additions made to the personnel of the company and a series of high-class copyrighted plays will be given. Mr. Lewis is now away looking to the details of the plans for the future.

"Last Twenty-Four Hours" is a rollicking comedy which helped to add to the fame of Robert Hilliard some years ago when he was the talk of the continent while starring in this play. It is now to be seen on the screen at the Nelson today in an Essanay production with Richard Travers and Marguerite Clayton in the stellar parts. The story is that of a husband whose wife goes away on a visit and returns home unexpectedly. During her absence the husband loses himself among his friends and associates of former days. He lands in the police court where the entertainments are unraveled and everything ends happily. There are many laughable situations and its screen production is as irresistibly funny as the stage play.

Last night was a big one at the Hippodrome. A full house enjoyed the very clever performance of "The Price She Paid" by Mr. Milton, Mr. Glance, Mr. Karioff, Miss LeRoy and Miss Beland, who are the only members of the Lewis-Oliver Players appearing in the play. The parts are evenly balanced and each one calling for such rare skill that it has the semblance of an all-star cast. Mr. Milton and Miss LeRoy come in for a greater share of the heavy work but the comedy parts are delightfully well handled by Miss Beland and Mr. Glance. The slide show feature was the big meat market and we take it that this event is popular with the patrons of this house. With the exception of about a half dozen people who probably had to catch a car for their homes, the entire audience remained to witness the after show. And it was right profitable, too, for many of them. Three butchers were kept busy cutting the choice meats that were handed out to holders of lucky numbers. But you didn't have to be a winner to enjoy it. Amusing incidents were continually cropping out and it is quite evident that the management has struck a popular chord.

Edmund Breese and Evelyn Breat are starred in "The Weakness of Strength" at the Princess today.

Miss Edna Grandin, of the Lewis-Oliver Players, is in Chicago on a short visit to relatives and friends in her home town.

Next week's bills at the Hipp are "Is Any Girl Safe?" for the first half and "The Sweetest Girl in Dixie," for the grand finale. After that comes Williams' "Yankee Doodle Girls." OLD STAGER.
