

Evening Chat

"Good Lord! This is presidential election year ain't it?" ejaculated an elderly man this afternoon after he had pressed through a throng about a local drug store window where results of a straw vote were being posted and saw the names of Hughes and Wilson mentioned for the presidency.

The old gentleman is a resident of a remote section of Monongalia county and today was his first time to town in over ten months.

"Ummmm Ummmm—A-h-h!"

"Hot chestnuts meester?"

And you stop to buy a nickles worth. As your nickle jingles into Gus Hrones' little cash register at his stand on the corner by Comuntzis store, you may stop to wonder how many other good Fairmonters stopped today to get something to munch. About 216, according to Gus.

Since the roasted chestnut season started some three weeks ago Gus has sold over 1,500 pounds of the nuts from his little roaster. Everybody gets hot chestnuts, says Gus.

Some of the chestnuts are purchased from local persons who like to hunt the elusive burr dwellers, but the most of them come from a Clarksburg firm that gets them from Terra Alta. There are people in Terra Alta, says Gus, who make a considerable sum each year by simply gathering chestnuts for him to roast, for you to eat, and whose bulls that you carelessly throw on the office floor cause the janitor to cuss.

At the same time that bulbs are being planted out of doors, bulbs of the same and other sorts may be prepared for growth in the house. The housewife who is to grow flowers in this latter manner has several possibilities open to her. She may grow many of the bulbs in soil in window boxes or pots, in moistened fiber or moss, or among pebbles, and may grow hyacinths in water alone.

If soil is selected for the growing medium, the boxes or pots should be provided with a layer of coarse drainage material such as pebbles and broken pots, and then filled with light soil. Three or five bulbs may be placed small end up in a medium-sized pot, and should be covered with one inch of soil. After planting, the box or pot in which hyacinths or narcissi are planted should be placed out of doors and covered with about four inches of ashes or sand. The bulbs so planted should be left out of doors for from three to six weeks until a quantity of roots have formed.

If it is considered more desirable, the pots or boxes may be placed in a dark, cool room or in a cellar, without covering, and left until the bulbs have formed a mat of roots. If they then grow up sprouts from two to three inches high before the roots are formed they have been kept too warm. The soil must be kept well moistened, but not overmoist. After the root-forming period is past, the pots or boxes may be taken to a light, moderately warm room for flowering. If the room is too warm the stems will be long and weak. If cool they will be short and strong and make more attractive plants.

If the bulbs are to be grown in bowls of pebbles or moss, or in water, they should also be set in a cellar for several weeks before being taken to the room in which they are to bloom.

Alliums, scillas and the like need to be kept in a light warm place from the time of planting. Tulips are hard to grow in the house and should not be attempted except by experienced plant growers after receiving special instructions.

CHILD GETS SICK CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED
"CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS" CAN'T HARM TENDER STOMACH OR BOWELS.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold, or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle.
