America's Most Famous Woman Publicist to Be Heard Here

IDA M. TARBELL, America's Most Noted Woman Publicist.

WHEN the Lyceum course brings to our city attractions of such commanding merit as Ida M. Tarbell, perhaps the most noted woman publicist of the world, it demonstrates anew its right to be classed with the great educational influences of America.
Miss Tarbell needs no introduction. Her work has provided her and endeared her to the thinking people of this country. A forceful writer, a constructive thinker, a seer of visions and a doer of deeds, Miss Tarbell has won her place in the affections of all true Americans. When her researches led her on to the trail of corporate business years ago she did not hesitate to say the words that were then unpopular and to point out, with the vision of a prophet, the rocks ahead of the business bark of America if certain tendencies were not corrected. She believed and she had courage to express her convictions that no true democracy could exist where an autocracy of wealth held individual endeavor at bay. Strangely enough, for once a prophet has received honor in his own country, and Miss Tarbell is today recognized as a foremost exponent of the propaganda of business justice which is remaking America.

In her lecture on "Industrial Idealism" Miss Tarbell discusses a subject with which she is thoroughly familiar, and you will be impressed by the absolute faithfulness of her deductions. Her sympathies are with the worker, but she makes plain her belief that the men who are helping to solve the workers' problem are the employers.

NEELY TELLS WOMEN OF THE MOVIE BILL

Advices Club Members to Cooperate With State Federation.

Congressman M. M. Neely who yesterday addressed the Woman's Club of Fairmont on the subject of the bill pending in Congress for the establishment of a National Moving picture censor board told his audience that if the people of the United States and particularly the women of the country wanted such a board, they could have it by taking the matter up with congressmen from various states.

He stated however, that the women must get together and unite on what sort of a censorship they wanted first. As a local organization he advised the ladies to get together, the membership, taking it up with various clubs of the state and urging the State Federation to take the matter up with other state Federations and thus bring a mighty power to bear on Congress.

Mrs. Frank Haas, chairman of the Moving Picture committee of the Woman's Club, outlined briefly the aim of their committee and introduced Mr. Neely. Prior to Mr. Neely's program, Mrs. George DeBolt who attended the State Federation convention in Wheeling last month told briefly of the business of the convention starting changes which had been wrought in the convention program.

The musical features of the evening were two numbers by Miss Hazel Bock, with Mrs. C. D. Mitchell at the piano, and a piano duo by Miss Amy Rogers Rice and Miss Olive McNeely. The latter number rendered on two pianos was excellent and a persistent call for an encore was rewarded with a duet.

Several members were received into full membership yesterday, namely: Mrs. Fanny H. Potter, Mrs. George Amos, Miss Pearl Hodges and Miss Carol Powell. At the conclusion of the program tea was served by the hostesses who were Mesdames George Price, Claude H. Holland, E. T. Kelley and A. B. Smith.

An announcement of importance made before the club yesterday was the changing of the Music committee into a department to begin its work at once. A meeting of musical members approximately at 7 o'clock Monday night of next week at 7:30 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. when officers will be elected.

MRS. T. M. BAKER OF BAKER RIDGE PAYS TRIBUTE

Gives Nerv-Worth the Credit For Great Improvement in Her Health.

Here is an entirely new neighborhood endorsement of the unequalled family tonic which is doing so much good for suffering humanity in this city and neighborhood:

"Some time ago I got so I could not sleep and would lie awake for hours together without closing my eyes for sleep. I suppose it was caused from nervousness. I read what Nerv-Worth was doing for others so I decided to try what it would do for me. I got a bottle and before I had taken the whole of it I was sleeping better. I got a second bottle and now I am working on the third bottle and have been sleeping better ever since. I recommend its use and believe Nerv-Worth will do the work it is recommended to do."

ASK FOR AID FOR ASSYRIAN PEOPLE

Group of Near East Christians Are Badly in Need of Relief.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18. — Sixteen American Bishops have issued an Episcopate appeal for the relief of the Assyrian Christians, a group of Nestorian ofshoots of the Eastern orthodox church, scarcely known to the western world.

Headed by Bishop David H. Greer of New York and including the bishops of six states and of many cities, the Episcopal Dignitaries who sign the appeal bring for the first time to the attention of the country the story of the battle for life on the plateaus of Kurdistan of an entire people, a struggle which went on practically without the knowledge of Europe or America and which ended in the destruction of 100,000 Christian Tribesmen and the reduction to destitution of 100,000 more.

The Assyrian Christians are of Syrian origin and are related racially to the Syrians. For centuries they have lived along the borders of Turkey, Persia and Russia, chiefly in the high ranges to the east of the Tigris valley and north of Arabia. At the beginning of the war, according to the first news of any completeness which is just reaching America through missionary sources, the Turks and the Kurdish Tribes in Persia attacked the Assyrian Christians without warning. These latter, most of them herdsmen and farmers of sturdy stock and persistent traditions, were able in some cases to retreat to plateau fastnesses, selling their lives as dearly as possible, but failing to protect their families from the brutality of the Kurds and lower class Turks.

While the world was watching the more spectacular fortunes of war in western Europe and along the Russian front, an epic battle took place on the heights of Eastern Asia, as full of dramatic incidents and heroic fighting against odds, perhaps, as has ever occurred. The fragmentary accounts of this struggle, which was protracted for months, now reaching this country and England, indicate that when the full story is known the tragic history of Servians and Armenians will be found to have been duplicated in a region entirely out of the main path of the world war.

The most significant fact brought out in these reports concerns the needs of 100,000 refugees, chiefly women and children who, left to die by the Kurds and Turks, have struggled together in pitifully desperate bands to the lower villages of Kurdistan, where they are cared for by Russian and American and some spots German relief agencies. These agencies have sent appeals which have reached the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, 70 Fifth Avenue, which has undertaken to send supplies. Already more than $15,000 has been sent. A large share of this was contributed by the Rockefeller Foundation and most of it has brought rations of bread and salt for thousands of refugees. Some of the letters which have reached the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief and upon which the Bishops base their appeal tell of the present plight of these refugees.

One letter says: "Starvation is carrying them off mercilessly. Over one-third died last winter. 2,000 of them, tired of life, said, 'Let us return to our homes in the heart of Kurdistan, where we will either find shelter for ourselves or be buried with our fathers.' For two months not a word has been heard from them."

Another letter says: "Christians are living in barns and stables. They are so lean and emaciated that death will get at them wholesale."

Another says: "These people are dying for actual lack of nourishment. Those who are sick and those who are well are all huddled together under a few quilts. In some cases the wife

And his big baritone is very impressive in the singing of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," the famous old Civil War song. There's a breadth and resonance to his voice that fits the spirit of the old song to a "t," and the support of the Orpheus singers has added to Mr. Whitehill's fine record.
