At any rate Attorney Bell contended it was not served and Marshal Smith was communicated with and served the warrant. After some contention Attorney Bell managed to secure a preliminary hearing for Curtis, which is the usual procedure, but for some reason or other he claims the commissioner at first did not want grant it. Finally the preliminary hearing was set for Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Curtis entered a plea of not guilty to the charge.

Sheriff Glover gave chase, but his man escaped far rather than man nor handcuffs have been recovered.

Leg Was Broken by Five Story Fall

Word has been received in this city of the injury of W. L. Jacobs, who sustained a broken leg and other injuries when he fell down an elevator shaft from the fifth floor of a building in Washington, D. C. Mr. Jacobs is the uncle of Mrs. Albert J. Kern of this city. He is general manager of the Embrose Company, having his office in Washington. The elevator shaft is in a dark part of the building. It is believed that he came from his office, and thinking the elevator was on the same floor stepped off into the shaft and fell the distance of five floors.

HEAVY FIGHTING

advances at the southern and southwestern edges of the woods. There General Byng's men have taken Tadpole Copse which dominates the village, part of which the Germans still hold.

In addition to nearly 9000 prisoners the British have captured large quantities of war material. Fighting activity has been resumed in Flanders but on a small scale southeast of Ypres. Field Marshal Haig made a slight advance in the direction of Menin. German artillery fire is heavy on this front especially around Passchendaele.

On the Italian front the forces of General Diaz, in hand to hand fighting are holding up the strong Austro-German attempt to advance. On the Alpi plateau, west of the Brenta river, the Italians have checked an enemy encircling movement with the object of surrounding Monte Meletta, the advance point in this region. The enemy attacked after a strong bombardment but the Italian first army held to its position inflicting serious losses on the attackers and captured 2000 prisoners.

East of the Brenta toward the Piave river, the Italians still hold firm on the important Monte Grappa-Monte Tomba line in protecting the entrance to the Venetian plains. The fighting here is of the most desperate character. The Austro-Germans are attacking in mass formation aided by strong artillery fire. They have been unable, however, to make a dent into the Italian defenses in the last three days.

The bait of a separate peace offer from the Bolshevik government in Petrograd apparently has attracted the Central powers. According to a report from Stockholm an emissary has gone to Petrograd with offers of peace from Germany and her allies. It is reported also that General von Ludendorff, Field Marshal von Hindenburg's principle aid and the reputed strong man of the staff, have gone to the eastern front in connection with the Bolshevik offer of an armistice.

American government, officials regard the Bolshevik offer as an act that would place Russia in the list of unfriendly governments. The Russian government, through its minister declares that making a separate peace with the people of Russia would put them virtually outside the pale of civilized Europe.

Quell P. McKinney who had been in training at the officers training camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis, Ind., returned here this morning. Mr. McKinney was given a recommendation for the quartermaster's department and probably will not know for a period of ten days whether or not he has landed an officers commission. He was training in the officers division.

Mr. McKinney reports that all the Fairmont young men, Lawrence Cunningham, W. L. Doolittle and C. W. Garrett were given commissions in the infantry. Garrett drew a commission as second lieutenant while Doolittle was appointed a first lieutenant in the U. S. Infantry. Just what commission was drawn by Cunningham has not been learned as yet. He was detailed there until the middle of next week acting in the capacity as secretary at headquarters.

Mr. McKinney stated that the staff commissions were given out at this time and it will be some days yet before it will be known who received these.

There are five exhibits of fowls, including the standard varieties: Rhode Island Red, Plymouth and White Leghorns. The chicken coops were made by the boys who exhibited the chickens.

One of the features that would make Hoover look is the splendid array of canned fruit and vegetables which the girls' clubs of the county have exhibited. Miss Blanche E. Price county home agent, is in charge. There are eighty-nine cans of peaches, tomatoes, string beans, jelly, beets, corn and other relishes, watermelon preserves and pickles. In addition the girls taught by Miss Price have a splendid display of crocheted work. It is of a very fine character.

CALICO CORN

exhibit in general was better than usual. He says that the farmers are getting better acquainted as to what make the best specimens of various crops to place on exhibition. In other words they are learning what points are regarded by the judge when he passes upon the various products.

While apples are probably the best crop exhibited the corn is close second and is not far behind the apples in quality. The exhibitors of Funk's yellow dent and Reid's yellow dent corn are especially fine specimens. The corn exhibited is fine when the old spring and early fall are taken into consideration. The corn is well matured despite these unfavorable climatic conditions. There are eleven entries of yellow dent corn by farmers and they have also exhibited two entries of calicoed corn. There are probably six or eight entries of potatoes by farmers. They are peck entries and are very creditable.

Twenty boys of Paw Paw district have exhibited four and a half bushels of walnuts, which they are going to forward to the soldier boys at Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va., after the show today. W. E. Tomblin, the district superintendent of Paw Paw schools, will send the walnuts to J. V. Sullivan, of Charleston, who is secretary of the Council of Defense.

Inclement weather today has effected the attendance, but even at that hundreds of people visited the display during the morning and many more were expected this afternoon.

Nine Mothers Ask Court for Pensions

Nine applications are on file today before the county court for mothers' pensions. If the court does not pass upon them today it will no doubt fix the time to act upon them.

Mrs. S. E. Rogers Dies Tib Morning

Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Rogers aged 66 wife of the late John W. Rogers died suddenly this morning at 4:30 o'clock at her home on Pennsylvania avenue. Mrs. Rogers had been in declining health for some time, but had been no worse than usual in the past few days and no immediate end results were expected. Early this morning members of her family awoke to find her very ill and she died in a few minutes.

She is survived by her husband and eight children. No funeral arrangements have been made pending the arrival of relatives from a distance. Undertaker R. C. Jones has charge of the funeral arrangements.

MINERS IN THIS

(Continued from Page One.) $1,582.23 which was tendered the Red Cross by the committee. The superintendents of the various mines exerted energy in that campaign which is bringing them in for high praise.

New Mines Discouraged. There have been enough things to discourage the opening of new mines in the Fairmont-Clarksburg region with the action of the National fuel administration yesterday which practically places new mines under direct government control inasmuch as it provides regulations governing their operation and fixes prices at which the output may be sold. The announcement contains the statement that "development of further new coal properties during the war will be discouraged on the grounds that old mines can be operated more efficiently."

New Developments. Among the newly developed coal properties which go to increase the tonnage of the Fairmont branch of the B. & O. are two mines owned by the Connellsville Big Vein Coal Company, near Chateau, above Ice's Ferry on the Cheat river in Monongalia county. They are on what is known as the Chess tract which was purchased some years ago by the Kendall Lumber Co. The Cheat Haven and Bruceton Railroad, controlled by the owners, convey the output to the B. & O.

Clarksburg Calls Off Next Week's Meeting. The coal men of Clarksburg and vicinity dine at the Waldor hotel once a week and cordially welcome visitors from other districts, hardly ever lunching without one or more Fairmont visitors. These weekly gatherings have grown to be very enjoyable affairs as well as being valuable in the way of keeping operators and superintendents posted as to what is going on and encouraging co-operation among coal men. At the meeting held last Monday the day of these gatherings was changed from Monday till Thursday as the first day of the week is generally the busiest at the mines, owing to car supply usually being better on that day than others. It was at first planned to have next week's meeting on Thursday but at the time the fact that that was Thanksgiving was forgotten so Daniel Howard, of the coal men's committee in that city has sent out an announcement that the next meeting will take place Thursday, December 6.

Coal Regulations. The priority board has been requested by Dr. H. A. Garfield to revoke the order requiring all shipments of coal from middle-west fields to go to the lakes in order to supply New England with coal; the order will take effect Nov. 30.

Conditions at Nearby Points. From information which reaches J. Walter Barnes, fuel administrator, it is learned that Hazel-Atlas Glass company, which has plants at Wheeling, Clarksburg and Grafton, is not using coal at any of its West Virginia plants but recently installed a fuel gas producer at its plant at Washington, Pa. and is a little anxious about the coal supply there as jars for all sorts of containers for foods used by packers are manufactured. Also that the Wheeling Stove & Range company has a small foundry at Wheeling where coke is used, which has been procured in Pennsylvania, unless an additional supply can be secured in the near future that concern will be forced to shut down. Again that J. M. Reynolds, of Yates, near Grafton, has ordered coal from the Litz-Smith Fuel company, of Huntington, which would make it appear that coal is shipped further than necessary in West Virginia in some instances.

Need Typewriter Administrator. H. H. Rose, executive secretary of J. Walter Barnes has been on the job all week but has been unable to secure a stenographer or rent a typewriter. He jocularly suggests that a typewriter administrator will be needed next in West Virginia.

The case in question involved certain parcels of land situated in that city the property in question involves a sum of approximately $75,000. Attorneys H. L. Live by, James A. Meredith and M. L. Sturm of Fairmont were here for the case.

The case of the state against railroads condemning property on both sides of the river was decided in favor of the state.

MACHINERY DOES

established and all men desiring to do so, may live right on the job. Many houses have been built to make comfortable rooms for all workmen. One large frame building is used exclusively for the kitchen and dining room. A cook is employed to prepare the meals and three times each day the men assemble at the dining room to eat. The very best meals are served and at the most reasonable rates. At present there are only about forty men boarding at the camp, but as the work progresses this amount is expected to increase to several hundred. Preparations have been made for accommodating additional men.

The men work from 7 o'clock in the morning until 5:15 o'clock in the evening. After this time they enjoy themselves at camp. The workmen seem to like camp life.

At present there are only about one hundred men on the job. Many of these live in Fairmont and go back and forth on the street cars. For their benefit the Monongahela Valley Traction company has added an extra car to the schedule. The special leaves Fairmont at 6:15 o'clock each morning arriving at the camp at 6:45. At 5:15 in the afternoon after they have finished work they have a car waiting at the camp ready to take them back to Fairmont.

Viewing the operations at the power plant site, one is impressed with the labor saving machinery that is used wherever profitable and possible, saving as much labor as possible in these times of great labor scarcity. From the time the concrete materials are loaded on barges until they are mixed and in place in the forms as concrete, only four men are employed, tending the mixer and feeding it cement. The old method of hauling the materials to the mixer and hauling the concrete away together with the additional men used in mixing the concrete, would involve the employment of some thirty men, where, with the machinery now being used, but four men do the entire work.

All gravel and sand is being delivered via barges on the river from Point Marion by the McClain Sand and Gravel Company. It is then hoisted into the barges sent through locks, measured and mixed almost automatically. As it is mixed it is poured into a large bucket, hoisted to the top of a 150 foot tower and distributed by chutes to all parts of the job.

A siding now being constructed brings the concrete up to a large cement house, which has just been completed for the storage of cement. Another smaller track leads from the cement house to the cement mixer, entirely eliminating the wheelbarrow.

Other railroad side tracks to accommodate the great number of cars of material to be used in the structure, some 600 or more are now being rushed to completion.

A machine shop where all the repair work is done is another big time and labor device. Most of the station chinery is sent direct from the factory ready for use, but instead of sending a broken implement back to the factory to be repaired, involving much time and the possibilities of a serious delay, repairs are completed right on the job. After the work is completed the machine shop will become a permanent part of the new power plant.

A store room has been built as well as a supply house. A clerk is in charge of the supply house and checks out every tool that is used. A pump house has been built and a sufficient supply of water is carried to all parts of the working field.

Stables have been erected right on the ground for the thirteen teams of horses that are now being used in the work. A small ten ton locomotive crane has been purchased and is used in unloading steel and doing general work on the grounds. All the wood work is done in the portable saw mill and carpenter shop, a building erected especially for this work. Another building is used as a toll shop and a blacksmith shop. Plans are being carried out for two parallel sidings that will extend along the side of the present railroad track.

All this work is merely preparatory for the constructional work that is to follow. Most of the buildings will be torn down as the work nears completion.

For six weeks, in fact since the work was first started, the workmen have just been getting ready for the work that is to follow. Monday morning the engineers are planning to begin their first actual constructional work, for it is then that the first concrete will be poured.

The excavation for the boiler room foundation is now about complete, this being the first excavation yet to be made. Upon the completion of this work the digging force will be switched nearer to the river and the digging of the large 350 foot trench begun, through which water will pass, going to the pumps, through the condensers and thence back to the river. This long trench will be 40 feet deep and is considered as one of the biggest jobs in the construction of the plant.

It is the present plan to complete the plant and have it ready for operation about December, 1918. If there are no unexpected delays the first steel work will be started about February.

The Riverside plant when completed will be one of the largest electrical power stations in the country. It will ultimately cover 90,000 square foot of ground, being 300 feet square. The section of the plant now being constructed is 300 feet long and 150 feet wide, covering 34,000 square feet of ground.

Keyser Gives Bond For a Hearing

Yesterday afternoon a deputy sheriff placed John Keyser under arrest on the charges of operating an automobile while intoxicated and for felonious assault. The prosecutions were entered at the instance of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Charles E. Miller before Justice Conaway. He has given bail in the sum of $400 to appear for a preliminary hearing on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. It is alleged that on Friday night of last week he collided with the automobile of Forrest Swisher.

Morgantown Men Judging the Show

Exhibitors at the county agricultural show today were judged by E. L. Lively, teacher of agriculture at the Fairmont State Normal School, who passed on the corn and the apples; W. H. Kelly, boys club director, of Morgantown, and Dr. C. A. Lueder, of Morgantown, judged the potatoes, fowls and other exhibits. The corn prizes will be hard to judge as it is reported that the specimens are about even up.
