HEALTH HINTS

School authorities and teachers as well as others charged with looking after the health of school children will do well to memorize the standards of school hygiene and sanitation which have been established by the New York City health department's bureau of child hygiene. They are as follows:

- Classrooms should be large enough to provide at least 300 cubic feet of air space for each pupil. Each room should have direct sunlight at some period of the school day. Each child should have individual desk with aisles at least two feet wide between the rows. Dry sweeping and dusting must be prohibited and proper oil dressings provided for the floors. Pencils should be individual and collected at the end of each day, in separate stout manila envelopes, marked with the name of the child so that distribution may be made each morning. Adequate and free ventilation with the provision of air at the right temperature and degree of humidity is imperative. In the school building cloak rooms with individual-ventilated lockers, or hooks placed at wide enough intervals so that the children's outer garments shall not be in contact, are essential. Drinking fountains, clearly toilet and washing facilities and the elimination of the common towel are needed to further insure protection against infection in the schools.

STOP WOMEN AT WORK

At last we're going to be able to see part of the scenery as we slide across the landscape in trains. Women are washing car windows. What man doesn't know about the fine art of cleaning would fill a big book. But here's one, woman hasn't had much chance to show him up as a bungler except in the kitchen. Scores of women are now employed in Southern Pacific railroad yards polishing up the coaches and routing the ubiquitous microbe.

SCHOLARLY SERMON BY REV. DR. KOEHLER

Special Services at First Presbyterian Church Are Very Interesting.

Dr. Koehler preached a scholarly sermon last night at the Presbyterian church on "The Universality of Jesus Christ" and illustrated it from every department of human learning, especially did he have many beautiful and apt allusions to nature. Nature is universal, sun, stars, sky, mountains, rivers, and oceans, these are the possession of all, and can't be fenced in, so Jesus Christ is the friend and inspiration of all. Dr. Koehler is a great student and every night is presenting the results of his researches from all fields of knowledge to illumine the great and common doctrines of christianity, and makes the teachings vital and helped of every life. Dr. Koehler will speak every night except Saturday at 7:30.

Ice is Gorging at Morgantown

Reports from down the river shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon were to the effect that a big ice gorse had formed near the B. & O. depot at Morgantown and that the ice at that point was piled up at considerable height. The water was reported to have almost reached the B. & O. tracks. As far as could be learned no great damage was done in the town, although it was impossible to get into telephone communication with Morgantown.

NEWEST OVERCOAT IS MUCH WARMER

And why not an overcoat like this? It surely protects the soldier's knees and legs better than the flapping tails of the usual overcoat, and it would probably be less of a handicap to the soldier when he has to "move fast." A firm making soldiers' uniforms is showing it.

SUGAR

With a view to giving the public a correct understanding of the sugar situation, the following FACTS are presented:

Existing conditions are world wide in their effect, not in any sense local. Any consideration of the question of available sugar supply must take into account a series of extraordinary factors.

The immediate effect of the declaration of the European war was to cut off from the world's market the sugar of the Central Powers. About one-third of the world's total production formerly came from within the present battlelines of Europe. The Western battlefront passes through the sugar producing territory of France and of Belgium. In consequence, England, France and other foreign countries have competed with the United States for Cuba's cane sugar.

Not only did this cause an advance in the price of raw and refined sugar, but until competition was checked by the recent agreement among the Allies, it resulted in lessening the supply available to the people of this country last fall.

At the same time, an abundance of sugar—hundreds of thousands of tons—has been locked up in far-away Java, owing to the lack of ships to transport it. It is no more available than unmined gold. To provide ships to bring this sugar here—or to Europe—would withdraw them from the more important business of carrying our soldiers and their supplies overseas, as Mr. Hoover has pointed out.

The nation-wide movement to save the fruit crop last season greatly increased the use of sugar. While the quantity in the sugar bowl was for this and other reasons lessened, this sugar is wisely stored in food in preserved fruits, jams and jellies.

"Every jar of fruit preserved adds that much to our insurance of victory, adds that much to hasten the end of this conflict."

Because of the increased demand for sugar, more sugar cane has been planted in Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and Louisiana, the chief sources from which the United States gets cane sugar.

The reports from Cuba and Porto Rico make the situation more favorable than a month ago for a supply to meet the sugar needs of all who are dependent on this source—including this country, our soldiers abroad and the Allies.

We buy raw cane sugar in the open market and refine it. To the extent of our ability, we are co-operating with the Government to insure a fair distribution of cane sugar, to stabilize the price to the consumer and to prevent hoarding and waste. We kept our refineries working last fall so long as there was a ton of raw sugar to be had.

In order to make our output of refined sugar go as widely as possible, we distribute Domino Cane Sugars in convenient-size cartons and small cotton bags. These small-size packages make it easy for grocers to limit sales to actual needs and to prevent hoarding. They help to prevent waste in the home. Housewives can cooperate with this plan by asking for these package sugars.

It will be necessary for grocers and consumers to watch carefully their distribution and purchases during the approaching period of readjustment. The refineries are now starting up and supplies of raw sugar coming forward but it will take weeks, and possibly months, for the return of normal conditions.

In war-time and at all times it is our aim to safeguard the interests of the public we serve.
