Fairmont's Power, Light and Fuel Problems Solved By Efficient, Progressive Business Men

No organization in the upper Monongahela Valley has been quicker to anticipate the needs of the community and get ready to meet them than the Monongahela Valley Traction Company. In 1890, 28 years ago, a company of business men felt that Fairmont had grown to the place where it needed an electric service, and they put in a plant that they thought would be sufficient for some years to come.

A year later, advance symptoms of the need of a street car system were evident to those interested in Fairmont and electricity, and the plant was re-constructed to admit of the running of street cars. Things began to move faster and faster, and now there was a demand to connect up with Clarksburg by electric line. So in 1902 the project was actually started, and additional equipment added.

The war had been in progress for two years now, and the call for coal was forcing every coal development to the maximum production, and electricity for mining purposes received a wonderful boost with the result that the production of sufficient quantity again became a serious question.

A 50,000 KW Steam turbine plant was decided upon as being the ideal size plant, and Rivesville was picked as the most suitable place. $2,000,000 were appropriated for the plant and work was immediately commenced.

Some idea of the size of the company may be gained when we stop to consider that there are 1,000 people on it's payroll, and it does a business of $4,000,000 annually. It operates 178.60 miles of railway, of which 128 miles are interurban and 53 miles are city lines.

There need be no prophesy concerning the Monongahela Valley Traction company. It's past ought to indicate that it will be well in front of every normal need of the community it serves, and that it will spread it's activities only as it increases it's capacity to meet the demands made upon it.
