Old Welsh Dishes Are Favorites on English Prime Minister's Table

LONDON, England, July 10.—What's the old saying about the way to a man's heart? Mrs. Lloyd George, wife of the prime minister of England, must have learned it long ago. At any rate she has kept to the old Welsh traditions of good cooking and knows the secrets of her husband's favorite dishes.

Here are four of Lloyd George's favorite dishes from recipes prepared by the first civilian lady in the British empire:

His Favorite Soup. The white parts of 8 or 10 leeks, and 4 potatoes, 3 pints of milk, half a pint of white stock, a small piece of margarine or butter. Method: Slice the potatoes and leeks very thin, put in a saucepan with two tablespoonfuls of water and a little salad oil or other fat. Simmer gently till tender. When quite soft, pass through a wire sieve and add milk and stock. Pepper and salt to taste. The soup should not boil after the milk is added or it will curdle.

His Favorite Pudding. One pound flour, 1 pound of seedless raisins, one-half pound of suet, a pinch of salt. Mix all together and moisten with milk. Put the mixture in a basin and boil (or steam it) for two hours. Serve with sauce or sugar.

His Favorite Tea Cake. One-half pound flour, 1 ounce of butter, 1 tablespoonful of sugar. Rub the butter into the flour, add the sugar. Mix with the milk to a stiff dough and roll into thin round cakes. Bake on a frying-pan, turning them over so as to brown both sides. Serve hot buttered.

His Favorite Currant Cake—"Bara Brith". Two pounds of flour, one-half pound of butter, 1 pound of raisins, 1 pound of currants, one-half pound of lard, one-quarter pound of mixed peel, 1 pound of sugar, 2 eggs, 1 packet of baking powder, 1 nutmeg, (one-half a teaspoonful carbonate of soda, some milk. Method: Rub the butter and lard into the flour, add the other ingredients, mix with sufficient milk to make rather a stiff dough. Divide into two or three cakes and bake in the oven.

Most people think that about the only typical Welsh dishes are stewed leeks, and the well-known Welsh rarebit. But here are four very old Welsh recipes which may be interesting to cooks who want to try something new. The Welsh names of the dishes are given, as prepared in Lloyd George's native town of Criccieth in Wales.

"Brwas". Crumble a teacup of white bread, put it into a basin, add a little salt, 1 teaspoonful of good drippings. Cover it with boiling water, let it remain for a few minutes, then crumble a little crisp oatmeal, then add it lightly on the top of it, not too much to make it hard.

"Sicw Gwyn". Cover a basinful of oatmeal with 1 quart of cold water and half a teacup of buttermilk. Leave it to steep for two nights, then pour off the water. Put the thick portion through a sieve, adding another pint of cold water to it. Put it in a pan with a little ginger and sugar to taste. Boil for ten minutes, stirring it all the time.

"Torth Gwl". Two basinfuls of white flour, 2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder, 1 cup of egg powder, 2 tablespoonfuls of sugar, pinch of salt, quarter of pound of butter or margarine. Put in a pan with cold water and free from the flour; also rub in the butter, then mix all together with a little milk, roll out and bake on a griddle.

"Llymru". Three basinfuls of oatmeal, 2 quarts of water, 2 teacupfuls of buttermilk. Cover the oatmeal with the water and buttermilk, let it remain for two nights; then pour off the water, add a little fresh water to it and put it through a sieve. Then put it in a pan and when it begins to boil, add 2 tablespoonfuls of white flour to it, mixed with cold water and free from lumps. Boil it all together for 10 minutes, stirring it all the time.

party leaders that there is no longer any need of the leaders holding off dealing with the situation that confronts them. Opinion of the party has grown strong of late that the sooner the problem is taken up and disposed of, the better it will be. It is held by a good many that it is better to have any party worse than any of the preceding ones. Judge Morgan's managers have committed, they were committed as much on the Montgomery side as they were on the Morgan and of it, not to mention the Grosscup point in the triangle. No one had any doubt on the irreconcilabilities alleged by Montgomery several weeks ago. It is pointed out, has been made by Col. Grosscup. Judge Morgan's managers have stated that they have good grounds for estimating that 20,000 Democrats and Socialists entered the Republican primary to vote for Montgomery, but since their candidate has a majority of 2006 and no action that has yet been taken by the Montgomery opposition has been able to reduce by a vote, to estimate, they are willing and ready to let it go at that. But they think it time that the fact should be proclaimed that Judge Morgan is the regular party nominee, nominated in the regular way, has as clear a title to the nomination as any man who won in the primary, and it is due him to be set before the party public by the party leaders in the right light. If there is to be a bolt, a "trench" or third party, other leaders say that the sooner the party is known and understood by the party the better it will be. It will draw the line between those who are trying to bolt and those who are trying to stay at the party in West Virginia, even at the risk of defeating the party's presidential ticket. It will urge to early separate the sheep from the goats and to make clear what will have to be done in the way of organization and campaigning. Mr. Montgomery has personally promised Senator Harding, whose personal friend and political adviser he is, that he will do nothing in West Virginia that will jeopardize the Republican presidential chances. He has given his pledge his honor to do so. Mr. Montgomery is now at Magnolia Springs, O., where he went to take treatment for rheumatism.

Lake Park where they will spend some time at Sunset Cottage where Mrs. Pryor and children are spending the summer. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Pryor are all ill with whooping cough.

The babies were measured and weighed and the mothers told how to keep them well. On next Tuesday morning from nine to twelve o'clock another clinic will be held at this clinic Dr. C. L. Holland will be present and talk with the mothers.

Record Crowd At Carnival Friday

A record crowd was present last night at the carnival in South Side park, which is the local post of the American Legion are holding for the benefit of the building fund. Early in the evening hundreds thronged the grounds, and still they came until between nine and ten o'clock it was almost impossible to make way through the crowd.

The shows are giving excellent satisfaction, and all seem to go uniformly patronized. There are no objectionable features such as are usually found in attractions of this nature, and the large number of women and children who have been attending all week, are an indication that the show has been well recommended.

A matinee will be held this afternoon, and it is expected that an immense crowd will be present when the carnival closes tonight.

directors the various stunts of his show, including various poses and the difference between the Hawaiian and Oriental dances. Chief of Police Moran who had seen the show was called upon to express his opinion. Chief Moran did not object so much to the show as he did to the persistent failure of the management to carry out his orders.

When the show was granted permit to come to Fairmont, Mayor Conaway questioned the management particularly concerning the "For Men Only" shows, whereupon the manager promised that there would be no such shows. While the show is open to women, the city officials contend that it is not a show to which one would want to take his wife and family.

Monday of this week, the first day of the carnival, Chief Moran visited the oriental dancing show and asked that certain parts of the show be cut out. Wednesday he returned and as soon as he entered the tent, the act was stopped, and announcement made that the show was over. Again last night Chief Moran visited the show and found the acts being carried out in violation of his previous orders, whereupon he summoned the manager of the show before Mayor Conaway for the hearing this morning.

The manager of the show claims that he was instructed to cut out the oriental dance and did so, and last night was sitting on the Hawaiian dance, which is somewhat similar, and yet "as much different in some respects as day and night."

Mayor Conaway expressed his opinion regarding the matter by stating that he did not believe such shows to which a man could not take his wife and family are a benefit to the community.

"If the young people of this community go to the Devil, they are going without my assistance," said Mayor Conaway, in conclusion.

G. O. P. COMMITTEE

will be established, and the campaign be gotten under way. Parkersburg and Clarksburg are the present known candidates for headquarters.

The most important subject that will come before the meeting, however, is to consider the threat of a third ticket. The Nonpartisan League of West Virginia has a third ticket in the field, headed by Samuel B. Montgomery for governor, who failed to win the nomination over Judge E. P. Morgan in the Republican primary. Judge Morgan was nominated on the face of official returns by a majority of 2006. That is his lead after all recounts and canvassing by the official boards had been completed.

Montgomery has never, so far as the public knows, conceded Judge Morgan's nomination. Shortly after the primary, and before the heat and smoke of the battle subsided, he made charges of fraud which have never been substantiated and claimed to have been cheated out of victory. There are some cases pending before the Supreme Court at Charleston bearing on these charges.

Mr. Montgomery met in a party conference held here last night, and it was decided at that conference to give him ample opportunity and plenty of time to avail himself of his rights and privileges at court, and substantiated his charges there if he desired to. In view of that, it was the sense of the conference that State Chairman Baker should delay calling a committee meeting as long as possible. That explains why no meeting has been held. But it is felt now by the party leaders that the committee should meet, organize and get down to work before the end of the present month, and now comes word that Chairman Baker is to issue the call.

A strong sentiment has grown up, especially since the Chicago convention and since Senator Harding has proved himself such a master mind as a party harmonizer, among the West Virginia
