

EXPLOSION AT POWDER MILL

Robin Hood Ammunition Co.'s Loading Room Swanton Blows

ARTHUR MULHERON KILLED.

These Other Employees Seriously Injured—No Explanation of What Caused Accident—Wrecked Building of Small Value Financial Loss Small.

Swanton, Aug. 7.—At exactly two o'clock this afternoon No. 1 short shell machine in the loading room of the Robin Hood Ammunition company exploded with terrific force, three other nearby machines following in quick succession and every quick eye in the village turned in the direction of the plant saw for a few seconds a great ball of yellowish green smoke, high in air, fringed with flying timbers and debris.

The top and west side of the building, a light one-story affair about 20 x 40 feet, was blown off the concrete breaking windows in the main building and in other nearby buildings.

Arthur Mulheron, son of John Mulheron, right foot blown off and arms and limbs fractured, was expelled a 400.

Nora Luman, 18 years old, injured in back of head and outer plate of skull fractured; recovery doubtful; to have been married next month.

Nelson Blythe, right hand and arm badly injured and had scalp wound, condition serious.

Howard Tasse, vitreous puncture as from a flying bolt from right shoulder blade and spine; right side of face and neck full of the dirt shot, No. 4. Taste was bending over a box of shells placing a cover over the work on the machine. His condition while not critical, serious.

Nellie Howe, severe scalp wound, but not serious.

Jessie Kirby, wounds about head and left arm; severe but not serious injuries.

No explanation can be given of the cause of the explosion. It simply happened and only a lot of theories can be offered.

BLOWN 50 FEET IN AIR. Young Mulheron was on top of the building placing a supply of powder in the overhead receiver of the machine that first blew up. He went up in the air 50 feet or more and landed among some rubbish in the rear of the building.

Only a comparatively small amount of powder is supposed to be stored in these loading machines at one time and the supply is placed in small storage receptacles above the roof and fed to the machines through small tubes as a precaution.

Fortunately the small fire that started was quickly extinguished.

The injured were attended to promptly by Drs. Allen, Cross and Norriss, all of whom happened to be within quick call.

Intense excitement prevailed until parents and friends learned just who the injured were.

The financial loss is small.

TROLLEY CARS COLLIDE HEAD-ON AT RUTLAND

Four Seriously Injured and One Fatally—Motorman Praised for Bravery Protecting Passengers—Crew of Extra Jumped.

Rutland, Aug. 7.—In a head on trolley collision at Rutland tonight two trolley cars collided, at least one fatally, and seven or eight others were cut by flying glass or bruised. The cars on the Rutland Railway Light & Power company line, which collided, were a westbound passenger car extra with only one motorman W. P. Richmond and James Develock, conductor, aboard. The extra was following a regular eastbound car which passed the other only three minutes before the accident and the collision is said to be due to the failure of the conductor of the eastbound to report the extra following him.

The trolleys met with a terrible crash on a sharp curve and the ends of both cars were badly smashed. The conductor and crew of the extra jumped and were not hurt but motorman A. A. Farnsworth of the westbound was stuck in his post and was crushed down by flying timbers. He is now at the Rutland City hospital in a critical condition, suffering from a fracture of the base of the skull and a fractured leg. Farnsworth is married. He was squeezed between two cars and badly hurt a few weeks ago. He is loudly praised by passengers for the way he stuck to his post, even when he saw the collision was inevitable, to protect the wife of General Freight Agent George Cassidy of the Rutland railroad, and four children, who occupied the front seat.

THE PASSENGERS INJURED. One of the Cassidy girls, Lora, aged 12, was shocked by electricity so that she was unconscious for a few minutes. She will recover. It is a mystery how Mrs. Cassidy and the children escaped death as the car front was crushed in on to them. Mrs. Cassidy is suffering greatly from nervous shock.

Claire Coolidge, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Coolidge of this city, was severely cut and may lose an eye. Miss Mary E. Dacelle of this city, a nurse, has a broken leg and fractured arm.

Hundreds of people from this city went to see the wreck and most of the injured were brought here in automobiles. Traffic was delayed about two hours.

It is the practice for conductors on the street railway line to notify each other in passing if there is another car following. This is the only sys-

MONTEPILIER WOMAN HORRIBLY MANGLED.

Impossible at First for Daniel Sexton to Identify Wife's Remains—She Was Run over by Train.

Montpelier, Aug. 7.—Mrs. Daniel Sexton, aged 23 years, was horribly mangled and killed by the Central Vermont train on its way from Barre shortly after eight o'clock this morning. In what is known as the stone shed district of this city she was walking down the track and in getting out of the way of an up train on the Montpelier & Wells River railroad was run down by the Central Vermont train. The noise of a freight car striking in the neighborhood helped to drown the warning whistle.

Engineer Joseph Derry had almost brought his engine to a standstill when he struck the woman, but she was hit with enough force to knock her down, and the engine passed over her body without stopping. Death was instantaneous.

IDENTIFYING THE REMAINS.

Several women were reported missing and it was two hours before she could be positively identified. Mrs. Sexton went to the undertaking rooms but owing to the condition of the body did not see her at first. He looked at one hand and a ring and declared that it was not his wife. Then he went back to the house to hunt her up. The neighbors seemed to think she was the one killed, so he returned to the undertaker's and they positively identified her. Her face was not cut badly, although she had a severe scalp wound which covered her features with blood.

Mrs. Sexton was on her way down to the home of James Doyle when struck by the train. The train men think that she was making a delivery of supplies and trains coming in both directions and did not know which way to move.

Besides a husband she leaves a mother and two brothers and two children, one four years and another 14 months old.

FELL FROM CAB ASLEEP.

R. & M. Freeman Can't Explain Serious Injuries Any Other Way.

Brattleboro, Aug. 7.—William Seefeld of Charlestown, N. H., was brought to the memorial hospital here this morning suffering from a fractured skull and a compound fracture of the left arm at the elbow besides body bruises which he received at Putney this morning. Seefeld, who is a fireman on the Boston & Maine railroad, was working on an engine which was running free between Bellows Falls and Springfield, Mass., and was side tracked at Putney. The engineer left the cab.

Seefeld recovered this afternoon and states that he remembered falling from the engine while sitting on the seat of the cab. That is all he knows for sure. It is supposed that as he stepped to a passing car and fell out of the window and was hit by a passing car as he fell.

A gash five inches long was made in his head but only the outer plate of the skull was fractured. Unless complications set in he will recover.

PAPER MAKERS' BIG STRIKE IS SETTLED.

Business Interests at Bellows Falls Halt Outcome with Relief—A Compromise Effected on Three-Tour System.

Bellows Falls, Aug. 7.—The paper strike is settled in the news that is given out to-night. It was the result of a series of conferences between officials of the International Paper company and of the Paper Makers' union, beginning in New York last Thursday and ending in Bellows Falls yesterday.

At the New York conference Thursday the company agreed to put the three tours on January 1, 1908, on such machines in the Fall Mountain plant as in its opinion could be operated with profit under the existing system and shut down such machines as could not be operated with a profit. President Garret of the union asked the company to make the date September 1 instead of January 1, but the company refused.

At a meeting of the strikers Saturday evening the January 1 proposition was turned down, the vote being 107 to 4. President Cary, who came to Bellows Falls Friday, then met with the New York office of the International Paper company and A. N. Burbank and W. A. Whitcomb came to Bellows Falls Thursday afternoon. A conference was held that evening and another yesterday forenoon. The result was the following agreement:

THE OFFICIAL AGREEMENT.

It is mutually agreed between the International Paper company and the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers, Pulp Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers that the Fall Mountain mill will start operations immediately under conditions as hereinafter set forth, when operations ceased, and furthermore, that upon Monday, October 14, 1907, the two-tour system will be discontinued and the three-tour system adopted at the Fall Mountain mill. It is further understood that there shall be no discrimination against any department.

GRAND ISLE COUNTY COURT'S THREE CASES.

St. Albans, Aug. 7.—The summer term of Grand Isle county court will convene at North Hero Tuesday, August 13. Judge Allen C. Hall of St. Albans will preside with E. S. Pliny of Grand Isle and M. O. Kinney of Grand Isle as associate judges. Three cases have been set for trial by jury and it is understood that all of them will be tried.

The cases are those of Austin & McCarter vs. Delphine Langlois for failure to press and deliver a large quantity of hay according to contract, the plaintiffs claim that they advanced $15 to the defendant and never saw the hay nor their money. C. G. Austin & Sons appear for the plaintiffs and Furman and Webster for the defendant.

The case of Almida Holdridge vs. D. T. Tremblay, is an action of trover. It appears that one Richard Palmer, a son-in-law of the plaintiff, was sued and the defendant officer attached and sold a lot of property owned by Mrs. Holdridge. The officer was warned not to seize or sell the property, but went ahead and did so, hence the action. C. G. Austin & Sons are for the plaintiff and A. B. Rowley for defendant.

The other case is that of William and Florence Hyde vs. Joseph Bushey. It is expected that the term will consume about a week's time.

DAILY THUNDERSTORMS.

A Feature of Last Week's Weather in New England.

Boston, Aug. 7.—The weekly crop bulletin of the New England section of the climatological service of the weather bureau says:

During the past week the temperature varied little from that of the week immediately preceding. The windings, running about the same range from 48 degrees in Vermont, to 57 degrees in Connecticut, and the maximums were generally slightly lower than the maxima of the week before. There was little variation in the temperature from day to day, except that it became generally cooler on the 4th, 6th and again, and decidedly on the 20th. Cool weather continued in Vermont after the 20th. The highest temperatures were on the 24th and, except in Vermont, on the 25th and 26th.

Light showers occurred in Maine on the 20th and 21st. On the 1st and 2d light to generous showers occurred in Vermont, New Hampshire, and Western Maine. Light rain fell in eastern Maine on the 3d, and a light rain was general on the 4th. Excepting along the Maine coast, where the rainfall was above normal, and in the upper Connecticut valley, where, at St. Johnsbury, Vt., 2.68 inches fell, the precipitation was deficient. Thunderstorms somewhere in the district were almost of daily occurrence.

The sunshine was somewhat above the average, with the exception of the regions of the greatest precipitation, where it fell below the average amount.

G. W. Delamater Once Candidate for Governor in Pennsylvania Committed Suicide.

Broken Down by Grief. Death of His Father in May Followed by Sudden Death of His Son in June—Had Been a State Senator and Made a Hot Fight for the Governorship.

Delamater, Aug. 7.—George Wallace Delamater, once candidate for governor of Pennsylvania and State senator from Crawford county from 1877 to 1880, committed suicide today by shooting in his office in this city. Occupants of neighboring offices in the Diamond National bank building found him dead with a bullet hole in his temple.

Great news of the death of his father, George B. Delamater, at Meadville, Pa., in May and the sudden death of his son, James Scott Delamater in June at Conellsville, Pa., is believed to have been the reason for his suicide. Members of the family say that Delamater had become morose from sorrow.

Delamater, a bachelor, was 60 years of age, a successful lawyer, was connected with the Prudential Life Insurance company in this city and leaves a comfortable fortune to his family, having been heavily insured.

Delamater was born March 21, 1849, in Meadville. His education was received at Allegheny college and at the Harvard Law school.

He engaged in banking but his interests were diversified and generally successful. In 1876 he became mayor of Meadville and in 1878 he was a republican presidential elector for Pennsylvania. In 1886 he was elected to the State Senate and in 1890 he became the republican nominee for governor through the support of U. S. Senator Matthew Stanley Quay. The democratic candidate was Robert E. Pattison, and the campaign was one of the most bitter ever held in Pennsylvania. Pattison won but only by a narrow margin. Delamater turned against Delamater.

State Senator Christopher Magee led the local forces in the revolt against Delamater, and because of this split in the party, the democrats won.
