VERMONT NOTES

News Items of the State Gathered Here and There.

PELLEY ON WORLD TOUR.

W. D. Pelley, whose successful adventures in the field of fiction are not his first romantic wanderings, after a brief and successful experiment at running the Evening Caledonian at St. Johnsbury, is to embark about June 1 on a world tour in the interest of a magazine for foreign trade and missionary magazines to write up life in the Orient as he has written of life in New England. Mr. Pelley, who used to be on the Bennington Banner, and who a few months ago bought the Caledonian at St. Johnsbury and has been making a great "go" of it, is about to enter on another phase of his kaleidoscopically successful career. Most of his articles will be published in serial form in "World Outlook," the international missionary magazine, and in The Asia Magazine, which is devoted to American trade interests in China, India and Japan. A series of articles will also appear in The Saturday Evening Post and will spend another month in The American Magazine and The Adventure Magazine.

Leaving Vermont about June 1 he will spend a month in the far west, familiarizing himself with western country, sailing from Vancouver for Yokohama on or about July 1. He will spend two months in Japan and move on into Manchuria and Korea where he will spend two months each. From Korea he will travel down through northern China to the coast and sail for India and Kilpin's country where he expects to put in three months. From India he will go to the island of Ceylon where he will spend another month. This will take him well into 1918. If the fighting in Europe has ended by that time he will move down into Mesopotamia, Turkey and the Holy Land, and Egypt, and then on to Uganda, East Africa through to South Africa. From South Africa he will return northward to Europe and England, back to New York. If the war is not over, he will go from Ceylon to the South Sea islands, after which he will turn homeward via Hawaii. The trip is to consume one year and all expenses are met by the board of business and missionary organizations who are sponsoring the trip. On the conclusion of the articles in World Outlook and The Asia Magazine, they will be gathered into a book which will be published on the subject of Small Town Life in Foreign Countries. Mr. Pelley, after being given a special permit from Washington to make the trip on account of our present relations with foreign countries both allied and enemy. The idea of the men who are sending him on the trip is to get an understanding between the common people of the two countries by means of book and magazine articles and he was chosen from among a large number of nationally known writers for the task.

Mrs. Pelley and little daughter will accompany him, living in Japan while Mr. Pelley is penetrating into the back country of the continent. The arrangements are being made in St. Johnsbury for the sale of a part interest in his newspaper to a person who will not be entirely unconnected with it.

A BUTTERFLY VISITOR.

Equality is said to have deserted the ad-alley of the Barre Times composing room when a butterfly which had been shrouded in its mysterious cell for many months, left the cocoon and perched on the tip end of the foreman's case. The chrysalis from which popped the queen of the ad-alley arrived in the mail of a printer last fall and was deposited in a box in the composing room while the printer awaited developments.

MOTORS IN CRASH.

A automobile collision occurred Sunday just north of the Central Vermont underpass between Royalton and North Royalton, between cars driven by Richard Dodge of Vergennes and Benjamin Noble of Windsor. After the collision, the sheriff's department took five bottles and a jar of wine, two bottles of beer and a bottle supposed to have contained cider from the Dodge car. One member of the Dodge party was at the South Royalton House for the night and the other three were provided for at the lockup.
