The communications which appear elsewhere in this morning's JOURNAL both from reliable parties will be read with interest by local residents and may to some extent repair the damage done Miles City and Custer county, by the sensational reports appearing time and again in eastern publications from irresponsible parties. Both articles handle the same subject, but in an entirely different manner and in no wise conflict. Send a marked copy of this paper to your eastern business friends.

Fortune Favors Faith in a St. Louis Man. Many persons are made happy by The Louisiana State Lottery Company. Last drawing Fortune smiled upon Mr. Cornelius Beaunnon, a prominent and esteemed citizen of St. Louis, Mo., who has great faith in this Company.

For years he has invested in every drawing, and nine times out of ten he has drawn a prize. Last month he "went it alone," and came within one number of the capital. He this month purchased another ticket, and happily got one-tenth of No. 91,990, which drew $150,000, and at the office of the Company was given a check on the New Orleans National Bank.—New Orleans Picayune, Jan. 22.

Light for Everybody.

The dynamo has arrived. These are the glad tidings wired to H. K. Hitchcock, the expert electrician now at Billings, adjusting the electric lighting system at that place, and he will arrive at Miles to-morrow and at once commence setting up the additional dynamo of the Miles City Electric Light Company. This dynamo has been on the cars in transit to Miles for the past two months and owing to its delayed arrival many Miles City buildings have been denied the brilliant electric light. Now, however, there will be enough electricity generated to furnish light for the entire city. "Uncle" Cole, the veteran drayman will load the dynamo to-day and that staunch old steed "Baldy" will haul the 3,600 pounds of electric machinery to the station.

DEUTSCHER FORTSCHRITTS VEREIN MASQUERADE.

The Success of the Season.

High revel was held at the Rink last night from 9 o'clock until the wee sma' hours. The revelers were the multitude who attended the annual masquerade ball of the Deutscher Fortschritt Verein, for which grand preparations have been making for the past month. The ball was decorated handsomely with flags and garlands, festoons and flags, and over all the glare of two 2,000-candle power electric lamps, besides the hundreds of coal oil lamps which lighted up the remotest nooks and corners of the great hall, and the highly polished floor shone as a mirror. Upon the stage the glorious string band from Fort Keogh discoursed sweetest strains. At 9 o'clock the order was promulgated to form for the grand march and led off by Prince Von Bismarck, in disguise, the motley but brilliant array passed round and round, formed into single and double line, in and out and then the cry of form for the quadrille was heard and the dance proceeded merrily. There was at least fifty couples en masque and these were re-enforced after 11:30 by as many more who had not cared to wear the domino. Merrily, merrily to the sweet music the happy dancers kept time to the numbers in a more than rustic rhyme; knights gaily bedecked in glistening garments, beauties, witches, nymphs, Apolles, Shakespearian impersonations, demure and modest appearing Quakeresses, clowns, students, coons, ye son of Erin's Isle, China men and women, Japs and in fact every phase of human and super human life, winded and entwined in and through the many intricate figures of the dance, forming a pleasing picture of a moving panorama. The costumes were everything beautiful or ugly in design and finish, the colors of the rainbow being reproduced. When at 11:30 o'clock masks were discarded many surprises were in store for the many observers, and the dancers with amusement or disgust expressed on their features, discovered at a glance either that two young men had been dancing together and lovingly clasping hands, each thinking the other a lady, or, as was noticed in some few instances, two girls had been flirting each with the other. A grand change of partners was one of the most noticeable effects of the removal of disguises. The supper being announced the crowd surged into the restaurant addition, and a toothsome though substantial spread was awaiting the hungry, which with floods of amber liquid, wine and lemonade in abundance, satisfied the hunger and thirst of the guests, and the dance was again taken up. The brilliancy of the affair, and the degree of fun lookers-on shared with the participants was marked. Excellent management throughout was a feature of the occasion and general good order, which in an assemblage so large and mixed is difficult to maintain.

SARATOGA.

A Successful Presentation by Miles City Amateurs.

Did you go to hear "Saratoga"? If you did we think you will agree with us that it was, all things considered, an excellent performance. The production of such a play was indeed an ambitious effort for a company of amateurs. Its selection was made purely on the merits of the play, without considering the difficulties that must arise or the dramatic obstacles to be surmounted before a degree of perfection suitable to a public presentation could be reached. The parts that read so smoothly carrying so much wit, humor and satire, acted like the very Old Nick when first entrusted to human representatives; the touch-and-go rapidity of the dialogue, the rapier-like keenness of the repartee, the elaborate situations involving the absolute necessity of being in just such a spot at the proper time all combined at the earlier rehearsals, to make the amateurs feel that Saratoga, although a most delightful play, was not exactly adapted to amateur representation; but little by little, and step by step, progress was made, and the rough corners rounded off until order came out of chaos. A play like Saratoga is rarely seen off of metropolitan boards. It requires too many people of an even high grade for traveling companies to produce; a support, such as is usually accorded to the leading people of itinerant companies would fall far short of filling the numerous characters that require not only proper dressing but an ability to appear at home in a society role, and while the Miles City amateurs may have been a little outre in purely technical points appertaining to the profession, we feel justified in pronouncing the representation of Saratoga as literally correct, as to the atmosphere of good breeding and refinement that the author intended should pervade it, as is possible outside of stock companies in large cities. The cast embraced ladies and gentlemen from our best circles, used to amenities of good society and thoroughly at home in depicting it. This happy feature made the technical defects less glaring, and when to it is added the really elegant costuming of the ladies, the irreproachable dress of the gentlemen and the artistic furnishing of the stage, the success achieved in the re-resentation can be readily accounted for. It must not be understood, however, that to society manners, rich costumes and correct surroundings is solely attributable the good results attained, for there were a number of ladies and gentlemen in the cast who stand in need of very little instruction to enable them to distinguish themselves above the ordinary run of professionals. Notably Mrs. Logan, Mrs. Swerdlger, Miss Bissonnette and Miss Campbell among the ladies and Messrs. Batchelor, Wiley, Logan, Whitney and Campbell among the gentlemen, and while these shone more brightly by reason of their prominence, the minor parts committed to the rest of the company received equally effective rendition. Where all did so well, individual mention is scarcely called for, and a criticism of friends and associates, even if divested of all personal feeling, would scarcely be fair. We therefore refrain from putting into cold type our critical opinion of the merits either pronounced or relative of the dramatic ability of the ladies and gentlemen who combined have given us such a delightful entertainment, leaving it for the friends of each to believe that he or she excelled, and that if the JOURNAL had openly expressed its candid opinion it would have said the same thing. We feel at liberty, however, to compliment the ladies one and all on the elegance and tastefulness of their attire, and when it is considered that some of them appeared during the evening in no less than four complete changes, each of them a marvel of good taste and richness, it will be seen that in this alone, no small task was allotted to them. Public opinion accords to Saratoga the most pronounced success ever attained by Miles City amateurs, which opinion the JOURNAL most heartily endorses, with the hope that at not too rare intervals, we shall be favored again with as truly enjoyable entertainments as Saratoga.

In an isolated community like ours such occasions are bright oases in the uneventful tenor of our existence, giving us pleasurable anticipation before and delightful retrospection after their culmination. Notwithstanding the hard times and the general blue feeling pervading the community, an audience of nearly three hundred people were present, evincing by their enthusiastic plaudits their unqualified approval of the performance.

Smith Brothers' Memorial Farewell.

TO THEIR LOST BROTHER AL. Beloved brother, thou art gone. No more to meet or greet us here. But again we hope to meet In yonder bright, celestial sphere.

Dear brother, thou from earth hast passed, Thy pilgrimage below is run; Still with submissive hearts we breathe, And cry, "O God, thy will be done!"

But then 'tis hard to give thee up, And lay thee in the ground so cold, 'Tis hard to part and say "Good bye," And leave thee in the ground to mold.

For our affection so kind and true, From boys of tender years, And when we think of thy warm heart Our eyes are filled with briny tears.

Dear brother, we will miss the here, We'll miss thee from the heart and home, But hope we'll meet thee over there In that celestial world to come.

Dear mother, too, she'll miss the oft, No more she'll meet thy warm heart, Or journey with thee side by side To that resplendent land of rest.

O, yearning of our lowly hearts, To always dwell with the above, While on the tablets are engraved Your many deeds and acts of love.

Dear brother, tears are falling fast, How can we say a last farewell? How can we leave thee beneath The cold ground with worms to dwell?

Farewell! some day, dear brother, dear, We'll meet, no more to say farewell, With hearts so sad, so full of grief, We cry, "Farewell, dear brother, farewell!"

Physicians Have Found Out

That a contaminating and foreign element in the blood, developed by indigestion, is the cause of rheumatism. This settles upon the sensitive subcutaneous covering of the muscles and ligaments of the joints, causing constant and shifting pain, and aggregating as a colorless, chalky deposit which produces stiffness and distortion of the joints. No fact which experience has demonstrated in regard to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has stronger evidence to support than this, namely, that this medicine of comprehensive uses checks the formidable and atrocious disease, nor is it less positively established that it is preferable to the poisons often used to arrest it, since the medicine contains only salutary ingredients. It is also a signal remedy for malarial fevers, constipation, dyspepsia, kidney and bladder ailments, debility and other disorders. See that you get the genuine.

A CHILD'S SKIN

Ears and Scalp Covered with Eczematous Scabs and Sores Cured by Cuticura.

MY little son, aged eight years, has been afflicted with Eczema of the scalp, and at times a great portion of the face, since he was two years old. It began in his ears, and extended to his scalp, which became covered with scales and sores, and from which a sticky fluid poured out, causing intense itching and distress, and leaving his hair matted and lifeless. Underneath these scales the skin was raw, like a piece of beefsteak. Gradually the hair came out and was destroyed, until but a small patch was left at the back of the head. My friends in Peabody know how my little boy has suffered. At night he would scratch his head until his pillow was covered with blood. I used to tie his hands behind him, and in many ways tried to prevent his scratching; but it was no use, he would scratch. I took him to the hospital and to the best physicians in Peabody without success. About this time, some friends, who had been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, prevailed upon me to try them. I began to use them on the 15th of January last. In seven months every particle of the disease was removed. No spot or scab remains on his scalp to tell the story of his suffering. His hair has returned, and is thick and strong, and his scalp as sweet and clean as any child's in the world. I cannot say enough to express my gratitude for this wonderful cure by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and wish all similarly afflicted to know that my statement is true and with exaggeration. CHARLES MCKAY, Peabody, Mass.

Oct. 6 1885. I have seen Mr. McKay's boy when badly affected with the Eczema. He was a pitiful sight to look at. I know that he has led our best physicians, and did all a father could do for a suffering child, but availed nothing. I know that the statements he has made as regards the cure got his boy by your CUTICURA REMEDIES are true in every particular. WILLIAM J. MCCARTHY, Foster St., Peabody, Mass.
