MILES CITY, MONTANA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 26, 1893.

PRICE FIVE CENTS

McINTIRE MERCANTILE COMPANY.

TO-NIGHT the MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York City, will present a scene of Oriental splendor upon the occasion of a grand reception and ball of Mecca Temple, Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

There are 120,000 members of the Order in the United States, and 4000 in New York City. Upward of $30,000 will be spent to give splendor to the demonstration.

CASH!

We have tried the credit system to our entire satisfaction. It may be a good thing for some people, but it does not agree with us. Perhaps we got an overdose. At all events we need a change, so we will try the cash system as a restorative, it being highly recommended by the great dry goods houses of the east. They were not the giants they now are until they took this medicine—Spot cash.

Of course we must sell goods cheaper than before. Everything must stand a reduction of 10 to 15 per cent, which will materially lessen expense of living to our customers, but in the end we make as much money as before, and are saved the annoyance that a book full of uncollected bills brings.

We ask our customers to give us their assistance and support in maintaining a dry goods store where goods can be purchased at eastern prices—for cash only.

The cash system will be adopted Feb. 1st.

KHEDIVE DEFIANT.

Egyptian Hostility to the Rule of Great Britain said to be rapidly increasing.

English Concentrating Troops in the Mediterranean. Bad Blood Manifest in France.

LONDON, Jan. 24. The latest dispatches from Cairo state that the hostility of the khedive toward the English shows no signs of abating. In answer to the threat uttered by Lord Cromer, to the effect that a complete change of regime might be necessary in the event of resistance to British authority, the khedive replied that he only yielded to force. The khedive has been strengthened in his attitude of antagonism toward the English by deputations from the provinces headed by local officials hostile to British control. These deputations have addressed the khedive in flattering language, congratulating him on his opposition to the English.

Some surprise was expressed yesterday at the news from Cairo that Lord Cromer had expressed himself so confidently in regard to the prompt suppression of any outbreak that might occur. Today's advices give the grounds for Lord Cromer's confidence. His lordship is assured of the entire fidelity of the native Egyptian army to the British cause, and with the British army of occupation co-operating with the native troops, it is believed that any attempt at insurrection would be promptly crushed. A Cairo dispatch says that Lord Cromer called upon the khedive this morning to inform him that the British cabinet had ordered an INCREASE IN THE BRITISH GARRISON at Cairo. The dispatch does not say how the khedive received the news, but no doubt is felt that it had a profound impression in dissipating any idea that Mr. Gladstone intended to abandon Egypt.

Major General Sir Francis Wallace Grenfell, of the Egyptian army, who is now in London, was at the war office today in consultation with the Right Hon. H. Campbell Bannerman, secretary of state for war. It is officially stated at the war office that both Sir Francis Wallace Grenfell and General Kitchen, the sirdar of Egypt, who has complete authority over the Egyptian troops, unite in guaranteeing the loyalty of the native soldiers to their English officers.

For this reason, chiefly, the government, acting largely upon the advice and opinion of Sir Grenfell, will, for the present, limit the amount of British reinforcements to 1,000 men, but arrangements have been completed to draft 10,000 men on three days' notice from the British garrisons in Malta, Cyprus and India, into Egypt. The British troops on their way to India to relieve British regiments about to depart from India, are to be detained at Port Said until advised to proceed. The British could, therefore, in a short time, bring to bear against any insurrection in Egypt and assuming that the native army would remain loyal, a total force of about 30,000 would be under British direction.

ABOUT 15,000 TROOPS

SENSATION IN FRANCE.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—The sensation in France over the action of the British in Egypt is increasing. The course taken by England is looked upon as proving the determination of Great Britain to persist in the occupation of Egypt. The newspapers unanimously call upon the government to vindicate the rights of France.

Judge Lamar Dead.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 24.—The death last night at this place of Justice Lucius Quintus Curtius Lamar creates a vacancy on the supreme bench of the United States.

The death was sudden in the extreme. Mr. Lamar had been ailing for some time, but appeared to be gaining in health. He came from Washington a month ago and was at the residence of W. H. Virgin, of Pineville, a suburb of this city.

Yesterday afternoon at about 3 o'clock Justice Lamar took his overcoat intending to go to the city, but he was met at the door by a friend, Dr. Llewellyn, with whom he returned to the sitting room. At that time and during all the afternoon he was in good spirits, and at dinner 6:15 last evening he seemed to have a good appetite. Dr. Llewellyn left the house about 8 o'clock and a few minutes later the justice was seized with violent pains in the heart and died about 9:15.

Bright's disease with angonina peritis was the direct cause of Mr. Lamar's death, and is given by the physicians as being the chief complication in the case. The attack was very severe while it lasted, and the physician Dr. A. H. Parker, who had been in attendance, arrived only a few minutes before death. At this time Justice Lamar was unconscious and beyond medical aid. Restoratives were at once administered, but were entirely without avail. He died with his head on loving hands and apparently without pain.

He Can Never Recover.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 24. Mr. Blaine's condition remains practically unchanged, said Dr. Johnson, who left the patient at 12 o'clock noon. Mr. Blaine passed a restless night, sleeping the greater part of the time and has apparently lost no strength; neither has he gained any. Mr. Blaine is most of the time in a state of unconsciousness. A relative of the family, who was at the bedside of the patient during the doctor's visit this morning, said that Mr. Blaine had not spoken a word to the members of the family for more than a week. They share the belief of the physician that the sick man can never recover, even partly, and are resigned to the inevitable. His present condition, however, is not regarded as critical, and there is no apprehension on the part of the family of an immediate dissolution.

Plenty of Rest Is Necessary.

The best work, however hard, is always methodical enough to permit of timely rest and of regular nutrition, and the full recognition of this fact is a mere question of public utility which we hope to see more and more widely admitted into practice.—London Lancet.

—Answers.

She Was His Friend.

The man with a cluster of diamonds in his shirt was dazed.

The room seemed to whirl about him. He was conscious of nothing save that the cold and haughty woman whom he adored had of her own free will flitted to his side and whispered in his ear.

"Meet me alone," she had softly murmured, her sweet warm breath fanning his cheek, "in the conservatory."

A wild exhilaration thrilled him. He walked on air.

"She loves me, she loves me," was the thought that chased madly through his excited brain.

"Why does she thus speak to me?" he argued with his faint doubts.

As in a dream he sought the conservatory. There she stood, divinely radiant, rividing in beauty the rose and in majesty the lily at her side.

A smile illuminated her glorious countenance.

"My friend!"

Her voice was melodiously thrilling.

"I have a deep interest in you."

He would have fallen on his knees but for her sudden gesture of deprecation.

"I have asked you to come here," she proceeded kindly, "to tell you something which you ought to know."

"Speak," he cried, "and confirm my happiness or seal my doom."

She smiled gently.

"Yes, my friend!"

A look of profound pity invested her features.

"I will tell you. Your collar button shows above your necktie."

He managed to find words to thank her before she flitted back to the ball-room.—Detroit Tribune.

A Serious Drawback.

"Jack, my dear fellow, your cousin is a delightful creature! I wish I had her for a wife!"

"You needn't wish anything of the kind."

"What? Why not?"

"She can't play the piano."

"Well, you don't think she is any the worse for that, surely?"

"I said she could not play the piano, but the mischief is, she will play, notwithstanding."—Damen Journal.

A Great Success.

Maude—I was at the theater last night, but I didn't see the star, Miss Buskin. She was ill and unable to appear.

Clara—That was too bad. Without her the play must have been tame enough.

Maude—Not at all. Miss Buskin's new Paris gowns were displayed on wire forms, and people said that the play went rather better than usual.—Boston Transcript.

No Work for Him.

Philanthropist—What's the matter, my man?

Dejected Individual—I am one of those whose employment has been taken from them by the change in styles of woman's dress.

"What is your business?"

"Street sweeper."—Detroit Free Press.

Some Sport Left Yet.

New Yorker—The game out west is fast disappearing, as I understand.

Western Man—The officers at the frontier posts have not quit playing poker.—Texas Siftings.

Afternoon Tea.

There's a rumble of coaches outside, and a stir of damasks half smothered in velvet and fur. All blooming and dimpled, some gentle, some proud.

A light bearded, happy, insouciant crowd, who flock up the stairs, now by two, now by three.

To join in the revel of afternoon tea.

Through the mellowing dusk of the candle-lit room.

A faint scent drifts out as of roses in bloom. A clinking of china, a snatch of a song. Caught up by a riddle and floated along.

A current of chatter for fashion's decree. Keeps tongues on the wag at an afternoon tea.

With jesting and laughter they come and they go.

A fippant procession of beauty and beauty; their jests and their gossip enliven the air. So empty of earnest, so heedless of care.

That all the gay spirits among them agree. The more make the merrier afternoon tea.

But I am far wiser than they, for I feel That a cozy wood fire stirred up to reveal Two chairs and a table drawn into the glow.

And Polly to pour out the fragrant Pakee. The pink cup for her and the white one for me.

Is the only real way to take afternoon tea!
