IN HAWAII.

American Vessels Being Rapidly Ordered to Proceed to the Sandwich Islands.

Cleveland Has Selected Two of His Cabinet Officers and Needs More Rest.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29. The United States flagship Mohican, Rear Admiral Skerritt, sailed for Honolulu early this morning. The Rongerik is expected to leave tomorrow, and the Adams will leave Mare Island Tuesday. The greatest activity is seen at the navy yard.

The coast defense vessel Monterey, which has just been completed at the Union iron works, will be turned over to the government tomorrow, and taken to the navy yard at Mare Island, where she will be made ready for sea.

At a conference last night between the Hawaiian commissioners and representatives of firms interested in the Hawaiian trade, the commissioners explained the purposes of the revolutionary movement in detail and declared that on the day the queen was overthrown the only thing that prevented an outbreak among the natives was the landing of the sailors and marines from the United States steamer Boston. After a full discussion the business men present agreed to take action in urging congress to annex the islands.

The morning papers today devote great space to the Hawaiian matter. Interviews with business men, etc., show that views differ, but the press editorials are a unit in urging a determined policy on the part of the United States government, which will prevent any other foreign power gaining possession of the islands.

But Two are Chosen.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Jan. 24. It was learned today that Cleveland had filled only two positions in his cabinet with certainty, Carlisle for the treasury and Lamont for the navy. It was understood here last week that Bayard had accepted the state portfolio, but it now seems the report was premature. From one in close touch with Cleveland it was learned that the president-elect would probably select his former partner, Wilson S. Bissell, of Buffalo, for the attorney generalship. Among others, who it is said, are being considered for cabinet positions by Mr. Cleveland are Geo. V. Gray, of Indiana; Senator Morgan, of Alabama; Gov. Russell, of Massachusetts; Hoke Smith, of Georgia; Patrick Collins, of Massachusetts; and Don M. Dickinson.

In an interview today Cleveland said: "The date is now at hand when I must have more time to myself than since the election. Most of my time has been devoted to interviews which were not unpleasant and not unprofitable, but other things are now pressing which require my uninterrupted consideration. Say for me through the press that I shall be at my office in New York every day with perhaps one exception, during the week commencing Jan. 30 and after Feb. 4 I shall remain at Lakewood, where I hope to be undisturbed in the work which will imperatively demand my attention. I also especially desire that from now until the fourth of March letters be addressed to me at the Mills building, New York."

Carnegie's Position.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 29. For the first time since his return from Europe Andrew Carnegie consented to talk in regard to the Homestead affair. He said he desired to make one point clear at the beginning. Four years ago he retired from active business and no consideration in the world would induce him to return to it. The great error of Americans is that they endure the harassing cares incident to business until they break down, when they should be in their prime. He believed in retiring and giving younger men a chance. He had sold portions of his interests and was gradually selling more to such young men in their service as his partners find possessed of ability.

He was not an officer in the company, but only a shareholder, and to numerous appeals he received urging him to give instructions in regard to the recent trouble he says he had no power to instruct anybody connected with the company. The officers were elected for a year and no one could interfere with them. Even at the next election if he wanted to make a change he was powerless to do so, and he is sure he could not find one shareholder that would not vote and stand by the present officials.

Tisdale Unseated.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Jan. 28. The Wyoming senate tonight unseated one of its members, John N. Tisdale, by a vote of 9 to 7. Tisdale was elected from Johnson county in 1890 to the first state legislature. Under the Wyoming law one half of the members were selected by lot as hold-overs to the present legislature. Tisdale was one of this number. In 1891 Tisdale removed to Salt Lake City. He returned to Johnson county but once after his removal. This was in April last, when he accompanied the invasion into Johnson county by one of the leaders of the invaders. A protest against his retaining his seat in the senate was made, and an investigating committee appointed to take testimony. It developed that early last year Tisdale in an application for divorce swore that he was a resident of Albany county, where the divorce suit was brought. Later in the year in articles of incorporation of a business firm of which he was a member, he swore he was a resident of Salt Lake City.

New Gun Boats.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. In the senate the committee on naval affairs reported an amendment to the naval appropriation bill authorizing the contract for the construction of one battle ship of 9,000 tons, two armored coast defense vessels, one gun boat of 1,000 tons and eight first-class torpedo boats. Referred to the committee on appropriations. It fixes no limit of cost, but appropriates $2,000,000 toward the construction of the vessels, including $1,000,000 for armament and $2,000,000 for torpedo experiments and trials.

SEVERAL CLOUD STORIES.

DROWNING AND GLUTTONY. A man with a purple nose was fishing for porgies off a wharf, and suddenly falling into the water a fellow fisherman of benevolent aspect promptly hauled him out, laid him on his back and then began to scratch his head with a puzzled look. "What's the matter?" asked the excited bystanders. "Why don't you revive him?" "There are sixteen rules to revive drowned persons," said the benevolent man, "and I know 'em all, but I can't just call to mind which comes first." At this point the drowned man opened his eyes and said faintly, "Is there anything about giving brandy in the rules?" "Yes." "Then never mind the other rules."

A Rhode Island deacon was inordinately fond of clams. When once he had attended a clam-bake he overtook his capacity and was sorely distressed, but his faith in prayer was unshaken. Leaving the party and going down on his knees behind a tree he was heard to supplicate: "Forgive me, O Lord, this great sin of gluttony. Restore my health and I will never eat any more clams;" then, after a judicious pause, "very few, if any. Amen."

CHEAP FOR BAIT.

Some young men from Boston applied to an old fisherman up in the country to see if he could get them some bait. He thought he could, and started off. Three hours afterward he appeared with a 10-quart pail full of angleworms. The boys were alarmed lest there should not be money enough in the party for such a wealth of bait, but they put on a bold front, and some one asked, "How much do we owe you?" "Well, I don't rightly know," answered the old man; "the ground is kinder solid and the worms is far down, and it's been hard on my back to dig 'em, but I've half a mind to go fishin' myself tomorrow, an' if you'll give me half the bait we'll call it square."

HE DREW THE LISK SOMEWHERE. It is related of Dr. Noah Hunt Schenck, of Brooklyn, who was an imposing looking man, with a fine voice, and a great man to get possession of a church oratory through his gifts of presence and oratory, that upon one occasion when he had a convention in good running order a rather insignificant looking brother made a motion that rather upset and disturbed the machinery. The doctor, equal to the occasion, immediately suggested an amendment calculated to restore the situation, and, striding down the aisle, shouted to the little man, waving his hand majestically: "Take my amendment, brother—take my amendment!"

The little clergyman braced up in the aisle, with his thumbs in his vest pockets, and energetically replied: "No, Dr. Schenck, I will not. I will take your pulmonary sirup and your liver pills, but I will not take your amendment."

A gentleman went to hire a horse of a lively stable proprietor who was very particular about his stock and always extorted a promise from his customers not to drive fast as a condition of letting. "You can have the horse," he said, "if you agree not to drive him fast." "Well," said the man, "I want him to go to a friend, and I am bound to keep up with the proposition if it kills the horse."—New York World.

Poker Terms.

"NOT COMING IN."—Life.

A Mistaken Inscription.

A friend of mine in a Pennsylvania town recently celebrated the day that rounded the quarter century of her married life. A number of acquaintances presented her with a large coffee pot, but imagine her chagrin to see engraved on the silver these words:

"To Mrs. —, on the anniversary of her twenty-fifth wedding."—New York Mail and Express.

Another Problem Solved.

Mr. Suburb—My dear, don't you think that instead of building a $10,000 house and putting in $500 worth of furniture it would be better to build two $5,000 houses and put $300 worth of furniture in each?

Mrs. Suburb—Of all things! What for? Mr. Suburb—So we'll always have one house to live in while the other is being cleaned.—New York Weekly.

Nothing Trivial About That.

Knowles—For what peculiar reasons are some divorce grants in America being granted to me because his wife caused her clock to strike.

Bowles—That's a trivial enough reason.

Knowles—Well, not exactly so. You see, the clock struck his head.—Jewelers' Circular.

The Case Fully Explained.

"Why don't you go home for your noon lunch?" inquired the city man.

"Because," answered the suburbanite, "I don't reach my office soon enough to be able to return home sufficiently early to get back again in time to start home for my dinner."—Chicago Tribune.

An Ingenious Burglar Alarm.

M. Brain, a Paris bootmaker, has an ingenious fashion of catching persons who manifest an intention to appropriate any of the goods exposed for sale outside of his shop. When ever he goes to his dining room for meals he ties the end of door selection of boots and shoes to an electric wire, which communicates with an alarm. Recently an intending thief was caught in the act of trying to annex a pair of "elastic sides." The alarm sounded and the bootmaker was on the alert in time to point out the fast disappearing culprit to a policeman. M. Brain lost several pairs of shoes before he tried the "electric bell arrangement."—Chicago Herald.
