THE LEGISLATURE.

Governor Rickards Dies His First Victory
The Legislature's Victory Bill

Two of the New County Bills approved
A New Bill Regarding County Money.

HELENA, Feb. 7. Gov. Rickards sent to the legislature yesterday his first vote. It was on the bill fixing the number and compensation of the officers and employees of the legislature. The governor stated that he had no objections to the provisions of the bill, except such as the constitution interposed to one of its features. That feature is the one which made the pay of the speaker pro tem of the house and the president pro tem of the senate $10 a day. The constitution provides that no member shall have his compensation increased during the term of service by any act passed by the legislature of which he is a member. The pay of members of this legislature was fixed by its predecessor at $6 per day. The fixing of the pay of the pro tem presiding officers at $10 a day, in the governor's opinion amounted to an increase during the term of office. The increase was made by an amendment added in the senate. A new bill, with the objectionable part eliminated will be passed. The governor approved the bills creating Flathead and Valley counties. Among the bills introduced was one by Representative Gray, of Stillwater, proposing an amendment to the constitution regulating the manner of proposing legislation for the assembly and approving it afterwards. It is known as the initiative and referendum. The people of whatever percentage of them may be decided on as necessary, are to initiate legislation, and when it is enacted a majority of the voters can approve or reject. Another bill by the same author takes from the state treasurer or the county treasurer whatever opportunity they may have had to reap any personal benefits by depositing the public funds in bank. It allows all banks to compete for the business of acting as depositories for public funds, provided the successful one pay out less than six per cent interest for the privilege. The house passed several bills, including that which originated in the senate, allowing all school districts to issue bonds for school purposes, to an amount not exceeding three per cent of the assessed valuation of property. All public building bills were reported from the committee on state institutions. They are for the agricultural college at Bozeman, the university at Missoula, the school of mines at Butte, and a soldier's home at Glendive, all of which have already passed the senate; and these for locating the penitentiary at Billings, and the normal school at Dillon, which originated in the house. A day will doubtless be set for considering the bills. Some work was done in committee of the whole, mostly at the night session. Among other bills passed on favorably were the following: Fixing the hours of labor for engineers in mines; providing that three citizens, but no county officers, are to constitute the board of county appraisers; exempting from assessment the property of widows and orphans to the amount of $1,000. Steps were taken toward getting a state seal, by the appointment of a committee to act with a similar committee from the senate to select a proper design.

When Gov. Rickards read his message to the legislature the first week of the session he estimated that the requirements of the state for the present and the next fiscal year would amount to $451,300. Since then he has gone over the matter more carefully and yesterday he sent in a message revising his estimates. He thinks that for the present fiscal year the state will need $424,005, and for the next fiscal year $441,105. In these estimates are not concluded what may be needed for new offices created during the present session, or other items depending upon legislation; nor the necessary expense of the legislature, and the contemplated enlargement of the penitentiary. The figures were intended to be a guide to the legislature in making appropriations.

The senate did nothing yesterday beyond routine business, save in the passage of the bill extending the term of existence of corporations. In the joint assembly there was no relative change in the vote.

The Contractor's Story.

OMAHA, Feb. 6. A special from Hermon S. D., to the Bee, says that Edward Stenger, of Stenger & Humphrey, beef contractors, just in from the camp on Pass creek, says the bodies of Bennett Kelly & Logan will arrive tonight and be landed here. James Mason and William Kelly, boys 17 years old and grown in this creek, were killed and taken to the camp by the Indians and buried in the hills. The bodies of the boys were found on the night of the 2nd by the Indians. The bodies were found in the hills. It is supposed the Indians had side arms concealed on their persons, and after partaking of the hospitality of the camp, murdered the whites in cold blood. The report that the men were having a drunken frolic is most emphatically denied by Mr. Stenger. The Indians stole four saddles, sixteen horses, and killed a span of work horses. Two Stieles and two of his hand are dead by the Indian police and friendly Sioux. Two Stieles' band, comprised two families of outlaws, which had been run from several camps. They seemed to belong to no regular tribe, and lived by themselves.

The Helena Post.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. The secretary of war has approved the Kessler site at Helena for the new Montana military fort. It is near the Broadwater hotel and contains 1,000 acres, forty more than the law required.

The fish commissioner has selected the Davies site for a fish hatchery, near Bozeman, Montana. It contains eighty acres and has the necessary water facilities.

NO CONDITIONS ATTACHED.

HELENA, Feb. 7. The first news of the definite location of the post was received in Helena Sunday by H. M. Padden in a private telegram from Commodore Power. It was just generally known around the city yesterday, but there have been so many delays in the matter that people generally were slow to credit it until it was officially announced. Mr. Power's telegram concluded with the statement that the Helena committee should be prepared to make the transfers, indicating that the location was made without any opposite conditions being attached.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. The Panama investigation was begun today. Chas. C. Cole, secretary of the American committee of the Panama company, testified that he disbursed about $100,000 for the purchase of materials, etc. Mr. Thompson was not about the office much. Witness was of the opinion that the formation of the American committee contributed a great deal to the success of the Panama canal loan in France. Robert G. Ingersoll received $75,000 and Shellabarger & Wilson $25,000 for their services in assisting the American company to obtain possession of the Panama road. These attorneys did not appear in any litigation, but Ingersoll appeared before a congressional committee for the company to state matters in their true light. The books of witness showed no authority for the appointment of counsel.

Deserving Praise.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if unsatisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. John Wright, Druggist.

The Idiot.

Some men haven't any more finesse than a horse block has. Detroit has one of that kind. Possibly there are more, but one, at least, is on record. Not long ago he was calling on a young woman and birthdays came up for discussion.

"You wouldn't think I was twenty-two, would you?" asked the young woman with a mild simper.
"Indeed I wouldn't," he replied earnestly.
"About how old would you think I was?" she simpered again.
He studied a moment.
"About thirty-two," he said innocently, and she went down in a heap. -Detroit Free Press.

Growing Good Taste.

"An evidence to me," said an observant merchant recently, "of the growing good taste in the community is the tendency I have noticed now through several holiday seasons of a disposition to buy the best rather than the most for the money expended. The rich buy really exquisite and valuable things more than they used to, and those of moderate income want small, choice things rather than showy and much for little effects. Merchants have undoubtedly recognized this, and directly at least, for year by year the stock of desirable trifles has grown." -New York Times.

Whisperers of Society.

There are certain windows on Broadway which attract more curious crowds than other windows, and yet the curious ones rarely go in and buy. These windows are those wherein are displayed the photographs of celebrated women. Most of the people one sees in front of these windows are portraits of famous or at least titled British women, some of them said to be beautiful. The "duchess," "duchess," "princess," "marquise" and "madame" are all there, and as a rule pretty much all in sight. I don't know whether our noble female friends across the water had these portraits taken for this purpose, but it would certainly be very gratifying to feminine vanity to know of these never ending crowds of Broadway admirers.

And the most peculiar thing about it to me is that you will rarely see any good looking women studying these professional beauties. These involuntary tributes remain in that the women who are always peering into the diamond dealers' windows never wear diamonds. It is the worship of human nature of what is beyond hope of possession. We value most highly what other people have - unless it is poverty and the other wise undesirable. -New York Herald.

The Stars in the Heavens.

The naked eye can only distinguish stars up to the sixth magnitude, some 8,000 in all, and yet you often speak of the stars as being "innumerable." The next class stars of the seventh magnitude are twice as numerous as all those of the other six magnitudes combined, there being somewhere between 16,000 and 20,000 of them, and those of the eighth magnitude number not less than 30,000. The best telescopes of modern make only reveal stars up to and including those in the fourteenth magnitude, about 40,000,000 in all. If you could get a view of the whole starry heavens at once, your unaided eye could only discern some little twinkling points of light, but the astronomer, with his telescope and photographic apparatus, means to make a map giving the exact location of 40,000,000 such specks of brightness. -St. Louis Republic.

A Spur to Time of Battle.

An English admiral being about to engage a Spanish vessel, thus addressed his men: "My good fellows, never let it be said that we, who live on prime beef and mutton, were beaten by those who have nothing to eat but oranges and lemons." -Exchange.

Incident to Be Polite.

An Athenian woman is so polite she apologizes to her cook for the trouble she causes her when she wakes her up in the morning. -Athenian Globe.
