THE BIG FAIR.

Some of the Attractions Which Will Be Shown at Chicago.

The First Gold Nugget Found in California to Be on Exhibition in the Mining Building.

[From Our Regular Correspondent.]
CHICAGO, March 27, 1893.

One of the largest buildings on the exposition grounds containing a private exhibit will be the cold storage and ice-making pavilion. The capacity of the machines for making ice will be 120 tons of ice per day. Sixty thousand feet will be devoted to cold storage. It is estimated that 50,000 pounds of ammonia will be necessary for the process of freezing the ice. A special feature of the cold storage building will be a skating rink, which will be located on the top floor, and will be 85 by 100 feet in dimensions, thus giving the spectators as well as skaters ample room to enjoy the sport. There will be no posts to disfigure the ice, which will be six inches thick. There will be a balcony above the ice, where a band will be stationed to make merry music for the skaters.

A force of men are at work unwrapping some very peculiar exhibits for the anthropological building. The body of a child taken from a tomb in the land of the Incas in the interior of Peru was brought out in an odd-looking package yesterday, and others will be removed from their shrouds tomorrow. The utensils and implements laid away with the dead were also displayed for the first time. Numbers of knives, war clubs and copper ornaments of this strange people are being unpacked. Among the most ghastly objects were three human skulls. They are abnormally long and very ugly.

Many pieces of the pottery are considered more valuable some of them costing more than two hundred dollars. The foreigners at Jackson Park have come out of the winter in pretty good condition. They all agree that the season has been very bitter, cold enough to make the Eskimans feel pretty much at home. There has been very little sickness among the foreign colonies, perhaps because the visiting workmen were wrapped as carefully as a Peruvian mummy before venturing out doors. The Japs had a way of bundling up that left only their eyes visible. Their appearance was grotesque, but they are getting used to American barter, and can even retort in kind among their fellow workmen.

One of the most instructive exhibits at the Fair will be the different specimens of wood seen in the forestry building. One of the greatest difficulties encountered in collecting American forestry exhibits was the absence of historical data in regard to extent, variety and value of native forests. In Germany the science of preserving forests or constructing forestry is a great factor in educational institutions, and it should be the same here. Probably the first lesson in this science taught in this country began with the establishment of "Arbor Day." Many groves of trees growing in the prairie states are the results of its observation. The forestry building, like all the other buildings, have spaces set off for the exhibits of the different states and countries.

The pavilion for Brazil's exhibits in this line is now complete, and is composed of trees with their interlocking branches forming the walls. A rustic archway forms the entrance through which the display of dye and ornamental woods may be reached. Three hundred and twenty-one specimens alone come from the Brazilian forests.

Idaho will send a fine mineral exhibit in the shape of a shield. This is a fine piece of work and it is characteristic of the western ingenuity. It also represents the physical features of this state, as well as its staple products and industries. Magnesia stone is used as a foundation, upon which has been carved with great accuracy, the outlines of an Idaho canyon, while, on either side are ranges of mountains made of black marble. A tiny ribbon of white marble represents a river. The pedestal of the shield is formed of a sheath of wheat and the "Star of Idaho." The entire shield is of Idaho material, fashioned by the brains and hands of the people of this state.

One of the most interesting exhibits in the mining building will be the first nugget of gold ever discovered in California. It will be exhibited by Judge W. W. Allen, of San Francisco. It was picked up accidentally by James W. Marshall on the morning of Jan. 19, 1848. In addition to getting a concession to exhibit the genuine article in the mining building, Judge Allen has been granted a concession to exhibit and sell fine shingles of the nugget.

NOTES.

In the Midway Plaisance will be built a picturesque scene entitled "A Street in Cairo." Men and women from Kar-toun will figure in this display. Among them will be the dervishes, dancers and warriors, giving exhibitions of their desert life.

A Columbian Liberty Bell is being made for the exposition, and will ring for the first time July 4, 1893. It is a counterpart of the Independence Bell of Philadelphia, only that it will be larger. John Jacob Astor will exhibit as an inventor at the fair. Out of several patents which he has invented, he will choose his pneumatic road improver for the Columbian exhibit.

The Trial Too Great.

She felt that she had not sufficiently tested his love for her in making him wait thirty-seven minutes while she adjusted her hat.

When she took her seat beside him in the carriage there came over her an awful doubt lest his heart was not all hers. She resolved to try his affection.

"Plantagenet!" She threw her soul into the words. "—are you prepared to make a sacrifice for me?"

He instinctively gathered the reins in one hand and turned a startled face upon her.

"An—anything?" For some reason he faltered perceptibly.

"—you want, my darling." "—Will?" She looked pleadingly into his eyes.

"—you die for me?" He breathes freer. "—Willingly," he declared.

"—Then?" She nestled still closer to his side. "—perhaps you will let me drive a little way."

Gently, but firmly, he told her it would be impossible.—Detroit Tribune.

All That He Wanted.

He had looked over the samples of the various goods in stock, and finally the tailor asked:

"Can't I make you a nice dress suit?" "—Naw," said the young man languidly. "—Naw, I think not. I nevah get my dress suits this side of the watah!"

"We have some very fine imported broadcloth," persisted the tailor. "Of course, but I prefer a London maker."

"We have a London tailor's tag that, by special permission, we put on our goods when desired," explained the tailor. "—Ya-as, but no one sees the tag, you know."

"Well, we have a special case for packing and carrying our dress suits when traveling that has a London tailor's name on it. Very handsomely gotten up, with the name in gold letters, and below it the inscription, 'Special Tailor to the Duke of Wildoats.'"

"Weally?" "—Certainly. Special arrangement, you know."

"Aw, well, I don't need the suit, but I'll—aw—take the case."—Detroit Free Press.

Compass Plants.

Several different countries—America, Asia Minor, Tartary, Madagascar and Australia—have shrubs and flowers which are, locally at least, known as "compass plants." The compass plant of the United States is the common "robin weed" of our western prairies, which has the long leaves near the ground set in a vertical position in such a way as to always present the edges to the north and south. This peculiar propensity of the robin weed is attributed to the fact that both the upper and lower surfaces of the leaves demand an equal share of light, something which can be said of but few known plants, the upper surfaces usually being much more sensitive to both light and heat than the lower. This demand for a share of old Sol's attention causes the leaves to stand in the manner mentioned above.—St. Louis Republic.

A Correction.

Mrs. Muscavado—The Newriches are people who don't know who their grandparents were.

Mrs. Rockoil—Oh, yes, they do, but they hope that no one else does.—Harper's Bazar.

Papa Tries It.

Mamma—And how did my little pet get to sleep last night without mamma? Little Pet—Papa tried to sing to me like you do, an I hurried up an went to sleep so's not to hear it.—Good News.

Ice Preserved Meat.

Ice has been used for preserving for more than a quarter of a century with the greatest advantage in the fishing fleet, of which it has entirely modified the work, but it was not till 1875 that it began to be seriously employed for the preservation of meat during its transport from America to Europe, nor till 1879 that the Holl, Coleman and Maslam refrigerators, which have rendered possible the trade in frozen carcasses, were introduced. American frozen fresh meat was brought into our markets in 1876, Australian in 1880 and New Zealand in 1882, and yet, though their communcations are so near to us, the three together now represent a third of all the meat sold in London.—Blackwood's Magazine.

The B—d—g H—s— Again.

Yakoby—Do they set pretty appetizing meals at your house, Madge? Madge—Appetizing? Oh, yes. A fellow gets up hungrier than when he sat down.—Indianapolis Journal.

A Fake Pas on the Seashore.

Stopped Him.

"I want a rhyme for lover," said he. "Give her," she suggested. "By Jove! I never thought of that," said the poet. And then he didn't propose.—Harper's Bazar.

Nothing to Worry About.

Professor—Wait, wait. You are playing that part too loud. Don't bang so. Maiden—Oh, don't worry about that, professor. The piano is a rented one.—Good News.

Homes at the World's Fair.

There is no reason why anyone should be deterred from visiting the World's Fair by reason of possible inconvenience and uncertainty attending the securing of satisfactory hotel accommodations.

The Northern Pacific Railroad will in due time publish low excursion rates to Chicago and return for this occasion, while its double daily passenger train service, including through sleeping cars of both classes (Standard and Tourist) to Chicago, will as usual be at the head of the list in every particular.

To help you in fixing in advance upon your place of residence while attending the World's Fair, we have placed in the hands of our agent at your station a book compiled by perfectly trustworthy parties, called "Homes for Visitors to the World's Fair." This little book, which you can purchase for fifty cents, contains a list of about 9000 private families who will accommodate visitors in Chicago during the time of the Fair viz: May 1st to October 30th; gives their names and addresses, and number of rooms each will have to spare. The book also gives a list of the hotels and their locations; has twelve full page large-scale maps, each representing a section of the city, so that with this information before him the intending visitor himself, can at leisure, select the quarter of the city in which he would prefer to stop, corresponding in advance with one or more families in that locality with regard to rates and the accommodations desired.
