STAGE GLINTS.

It is rumored that John Stetson will star Ruth Carpenter in "Catherine" next season.

Next season Corinne will appear only in Gill and Frazer's new burlesque, "Eन्द्रik Hudson."

Mme. Tavary has engaged Payne Clark as the leading tenor for her opera company next season.

E. H. Sothern will next season produce a play written for him by Robert Buchanan and based on the life and times of Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

The venerable curiosities of the Boston Museum have been given to the National Historical society, and the space they occupied will be used for offices.

Charles Frohman has announced that in so far as possible his Empire theater, New York, is to be devoted to the production of plays by American authors.

John Drew will have next season a new play by Henry Guy Carlton, and one which Henry C. de Mille had nearly finished at the time of his death.

Richard Harlow, who plays the part of Queen Isabella of Castile in Rice's burlesque "1492," does it so well that he is alleged to have aroused the jealousy of Theresa Vaughan, the prima donna of that company.

Joseph Brooks, manager of William H. Crane, has contracted with J. H. McWicker to place a stock company in the latter's theater in Chicago each summer, beginning next May, the contract to run for five years.

Mr. Brooks supplies the players and plays. The first work to be produced will be by Augustus Thomas.

POSTOFFICE ANNALS.

B. C. 550—Cyrus of Persia erected posthouses and established a regular system of couriers. Both private and public dispatches were forwarded.

B. C. 299—The courier system which now prevails in China was put in operation.

B. C. 31—Augustus introduced the system of regular carriers throughout the Roman empire, mainly for the use of the government. Merchants and citizens were allowed on payment of large fees to send business and friendly letters by the imperial messengers.

800—Charlemagne established a system of weekly couriers throughout the extent of his empire and of daily messengers between the principal cities. Much use was made of these couriers by merchants and bankers in spite of the great cost of sending letters.

1156—The University of Paris established a system of foot messengers, who bore letters for its thousands of students from every country in Europe and brought them money from home.

1470—Louis XI first established posthouses and relays of horses between important parts of France. This act was said at the time to be due to his intense eagerness to hear news of any kind.

1481—During the war with Scotland in the reign of Edward IV post stations were established from London to Scotland, and riders on horseback, changed at every station, brought intelligence of all that went on in the army.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

FASHION'S FANCIES.

Women with delicate complexions and dark hair and eyes look admirable in pink fabrics and trimmings.

Some of the picturesque flower-crowned hats in vogue, Sir Peter Lely and director styles are triumphs of French art and grace.

Spanish effects and also Italian mixtures are on the special list of fashions this summer. In the latter style of dress red of course prevails.

Red silk gloves, which, strange to say, were adopted last summer by many women who were otherwise noted for their unvarying and refined taste in the minutest detail of their gawing, are again on sale.

Bridesmaids' costumes of white lace, trimmed with more ribbons, are always becoming and exquisitely dainty, and white lace hats trimmed with fine jeweled pins and white lace platings are worn with these gowns.

The appearance of a few persons is improved by the addition of a ruff, but in spite of the heated season and notwithstanding the flowing negligee order of things in summer gawing the ruff will be adopted because it is new.

Pink figured surah silk, with full sleeves of pink summer satin, a rose ruffling of the same at the foot of the skirt and a Louis Quinze sash tied at the back in full bows with very long ends describes some charming dresses just sent home to the prospective wearers.—New York Evening Post.

RAILROAD TIES.

George Gould has admitted that the Grand Trunk was offered him, but at a figure beyond his calculations.

James Graham, formerly an engineer on the Michigan Central, has been appointed master mechanic of the Cleveland, Lorain and Wheeling, at Lorain, O.

A FACETIOUS VIEW.

VEGETARIANISM CARRIED OUT TO ITS LOGICAL END.

The Arguments of the Advocate of Vegetable Diet Applied to Some of the Recognized Evils of Life, and Some Startling Deductions Are Derived.

The beneficent physical, moral, social, financial and aesthetic advantages of vegetable food are insisted upon by the members of the vegetarian congress at Chicago, and each advantage is lauded as salutary in the highest degree. Professor Mayor, a well known classical scholar of St. John's college, Cambridge, avers that vegetarians suffer but little from thirst. They are "not free from cravings which the world without hears as the voice of instinct, strong, imperious, inexorable." He drinks a glass of lemonade at 7:15 p. m. "from habit rather than to slake thirst," and he sometimes takes a swig of milk at railway station restaurants "to encourage the dairy at the expense of the brewery." Thus, so far as he is concerned, thirst is abolished. He needs no drink of any kind.

The English soldiers and civil servants in the tropic stretches of Asia and Africa have only to follow Professor Mayor's example. Thus the value of vegetarianism to military science becomes evident. In fact, not merely the operations of the commissary department, but the whole art of war would be wonderfully changed and simplified if Mr. Thomas Atkins would forswear meat. Professor Mayor has not attained his victory over thirst without sacrifices, at which the grocer without meat eaters will grin. For instance, he takes the white of an egg, neat, without salt or pepper. Thus he avoids the incitements to thirst and keeps his palate in condition to receive with rapture that British vegetable, the Brussels sprout. Doubtless a vegetarian palate, long brought up on herbs and grasses and salads guiltless of condiment, becomes capable of receiving savory sensations from dishes of the simplest sort, and a turnip picked up in the furrow may be sweeter than a stalled ox tenderloin.

We hope that Professor Mayor will now go on to the abolition of hunger. He has put thirst away from him, and there seems no reason why he should be less successful with its running mate. Of course he will be allowed to nibble a radish now and then from habit, even after he has conquered imperious, inexorable instinct. The economic advantages arising from the abolition of thirst would be very great, and Professor Mayor has it in his power, if he can get the world's hunger throttled, to add enormously to the wealth of the world. Still greater would be the saving if the world would eat vegetables from habit only. It's cheaper to keep a cow than a man. We are afraid, however, that the majority of men would go on perpetual strike if the necessity of eating and drinking were removed, so that there would be a loss of wealth after all. But what's the use of being wealthy if you can become healthy and virtuous by eating vegetables only.

The profound moral which vegetarianism holds for prohibitionists is obvious. "The consumption of flesh," says a vegetarian resolution, "creates a thirst for intoxicating liquors and should be abandoned by all who desire to promote temperance reform." This goes to the root of the matter. Prohibiting grapes and corn and hops and apples wouldn't be enough. There will always be some intoxicant as long as men continue to be subject to the demands of thirst. Here's the real good cure, the elixir of temperance, the pill of prohibition. Prohibition and garden "sass," one and inseparable, now and forever! Nor is intemperance the only evil which will not and cannot grow in the garden. Dr. Paul Foster of Berlin is confident that the adoption of vegetarian principles will "end the war between the poor and the rich, solve the social problem, complete the work of religion and in all ways ameliorate the unhappy condition of the human race."

Reflect upon these things, erring carnivores, and think that every time you order a beefsteak at the butcher's, you are ordering unhappiness, the deterioration of the human race and the debasement of society. Go to the grocer's and buy a peck of potatoes and some cucumbers and a plug of tobacco, and carry peace and potency of social regeneration home to your cook. Who can tell that the future of Europe may not be peaceful if Professor Foster can induce the German emperor to live upon string beans and asparagus tips for a few months? Will anybody pretend that Ezzeleino might not have been a man as mild as milk if he had been restricted to a diet of spaghetti in his youth? Does anybody suppose that Jeffreys lived upon olives?

In addition to the moral, physical and economic advantages of vegetable diet there is the aesthetic advantage. Mrs. Bruce, the English woman whose paper on "The Aesthetics of Vegetarianism" was read at the congress, believes that "meat eating is opposed to idealism, while vegetarianism has much to offer that connects it with the highest and best in life. The highest aspect of vegetarianism is aestheticism. It is full of vital truth and beauty." We now see why Mr. Oscar Wilde ate huckleberries when he was in the United States. Using the term aestheticism in its larger sense, we see why Emerson ate beans and why, judged by results, so many of his disciples seem to have lived on cabbages.—New York Sun.

Avoiding Wrinkles. Many wrinkles may be avoided by the woman who will take some pains with her expression when she is by herself. She who bends over her book, her desk or her sewing with knitted brow and compressed or working lips need not be surprised if her face refuses to smooth itself when she turns to other employments. It would cost her very little trouble to avoid such tricks of feature.—Harper's Bazar.

Absentminded, but Valuable.

"That clerk of yours," sharply remonstrated the customer, "sold me a pound and a half of butter yesterday for three pounds."

"He's a little careless sometimes," said the grocer blandly, "but you mustn't mind that. It's only his weight."—Chicago Tribune.

It is not right to slay without good reason; it is doubly wrong to kill a man during the breeding season. Slay the cyster party if you must slay something—slay the pig, and—but, he's a good natured pig! Live in peace.—Ozark.

On account of extremely dry air and a large percentage of clear days, the ice evaporated almost as soon as it falls in Wyoming. Thus, not only can it be successfully grown without irrigation, except in a few favored places.

The largest ball in the world is in the Kremlin, Moscow. Its height is 41 feet 4 inches; its circumference, 67 feet 4 inches. Its weight is estimated at 43,772 hundredweights.

The first savings bank was instituted at Berne in Switzerland in 1287. It was intended for servants only. In 1792 another was opened at Basel for persons of any class.

Colonel John S. Mosby, the "Horse-Lee" Confederate, is practicing in San Francisco. He is nearly 60 years old, but stands straight as an arrow and is full of vigor.

Pronounced in English fashion the names of foreign places, or persons, which have become Anglicized, as Paris, Vienna, Napoleon.

Attention

In time to any irregularity of the Stomach, Liver, or Bowels may prevent serious consequences. Indigestion, costiveness, headache, nausea, biliousness, and vertigo indicate certain functional derangements, the best remedy for which is Ayer's Pills. Purely vegetable, sugar-coated, easy to take and quick to assimilate, this is the ideal family medicine—the most popular, safe, and useful aperient in pharmacy. Mrs. M. A. BROCKWELL, Harris, Tenn., says:

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills cured me of sick headache and my husband of neuralgia. We think there is No Better Medicine, and have induced many to use it. Thirty-five years ago this Spring, I was run down by hard work and a succession of colds, which made me so feeble that it was an effort for me to walk. I consulted the doctors, but kept sinking lower until I had given up all hope of ever being better. Happening to be in a store, one day, where medicines were sold, the proprietor noticed my weak and sickly appearance, and after a few questions as to my health, recommended me to try Ayer's Pills. I had little faith in these or any other medicine, but concluded, at last, to take his advice and try a box. Before I had used them all, I was very much better, and two boxes cured me. I am now 80 years old; but I believe that if it had not been for Ayer's Pills, I should have been in my grave long ago. I buy 6 boxes every year, which make 210 boxes up to this time, and I would no more be without them than without bread."—H. H. Ingraham, Rockland, Me.
