USED A HATCHET.

A Laborer Kills His Wife and Children and Sets Fire to the House.

A Young and Handsome Mother Kills Her Babe and Commits Suicide.

—A Railroad Accident.

PITTSBURG, July 26. Early this morning the fire department was called to extinguish a small blaze in the house of John Smouse, an ignorant laborer. They found the bodies of Smouse's wife and two small children, who were evidently murdered and the house fired to conceal the crime. Smouse was arrested. The surviving child, five years old, says her father killed her mother with a hatchet. Jealousy is supposed to be the cause.

Jumped the Track, Killing Three Persons.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 26. A south-bound freight train on the Ohio Valley railroad was wrecked this morning near Morganfield, Ky., about thirty miles south of this city. The engineer, fireman and a brakeman were killed. Wm. Davis, brakeman, was thrown from the cars to the ground and caught in the debris. When the cars took fire he was pinned under a freight car and was burned in an almost unrecognizable mass. Frank Threlkeld, fireman, was caught in the engine and crushed to death. Engineer Vandren's body was burned to a crisp.

The wreck was caused by the engine striking a cow. The engine was thrown from the track and six cars behind piled on top of it. Fire from the engine ignited the mass of freight cars. The bodies of two of the unfortunate victims were dug out of the ground from under a car of wheat. Both of their heads and shoulders were burned off to the lower part of the body. The monetary loss is estimated at $25,000.

Hungry Miners.

BOONE, Iowa, July 26.—Boone had a visit from 150 Colorado miners yesterday on their way east. They captured the Chicago & Northwestern fast freight at Council Bluffs and took possession. The railroad company made no attempt to eject them, but carried them on. The authorities were notified that the men were coming, and further, that they were hungry, having had nothing to eat since the day before. Arrangements were promptly made to give them a meal, and when they arrived about 1 o'clock they were fed on the ground east of the round house. The city authorities had ordered 100 loaves of bread, 100 pounds of bologna sausage, 40 pounds of cheese and 50 gallons of coffee. The men were nearly famished. They were an orderly set, and took the first train out, the railroad company permitting them to ride.

Cholera in Italy.

LONDON, July 26.—The London agent of the Associated Press received a letter from the agent at Rome saying that he telegraphed last Saturday the fact that officials in Naples had reported four cases of cholera there the early part of last week. This telegram was never delivered, and no doubt it was suppressed. In Naples and Rome the newspapers are silent on the subject of cholera in any part of Italy, though it is well known it exists in several places. Pilgrimages have been prohibited and cordons of troops enforce the prohibition.

Tramps and Trampmen Fight.

VERMILION, S. D., July 26.—A fight with revolvers took place here last night between a freight crew and tramps. The train was loaded with tramps. The crew tried to get them off, using guns. The tramps returned the fire and were not dislodged. Fifteen to twenty shots were exchanged. No one was hurt.

A Murder and Suicide.

BUFFALO, July 26.—At Clarence Center this morning Mrs. Henry Mayback, wife of a harness maker, and a handsome young woman, cut the throat of her seven-months-old baby and then her own. She left a note saying she feared the baby would die and wanted to go with it.

A Southern Lynching.

SWANSEA, S. C., July 26.—The house of Archie Sighthler was entered by two negroes. One of them named Hantry was caught and it is reported was lynched. A posse pursued the other.

Married a Western Man.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 26.—Last evening Miss Mattie, only child of Dr. Benj. C. Blodgett, director of the Smith College school of music, was married to Robert Manning Palmer, of Seattle, Wash.

To the Credit of an Outcast.

It was one of those hot days when even the mercury rises in wrath and tries to escape. A very much dilapidated gentleman leaned in a bewildered sort of way against an electric light pole in Bowdoin square, and a blind man would have known that he was badly jagged. He seemed proud of it, too, for besting little snatches of popular ballads to the hurrying throng, who momentarily expected the arrival of a patrolman and the dilapidated gentleman's removal to "the cooler."

After a few minutes a man drove a dripping horse up to the walk, alighted and sought liquid refreshments in a neighboring hotel. The drunken man looked up and saw the horse shaking his head and exhibiting signs of uneasiness. In a twinkling he seemed to realize the cause, and to the consternation of bystanders and with considerable inconvenience for himself he made his way along the shaft until by a superhuman effort he released the cruelly tight bog check.

He laughed in a maudlin fashion as he made his way along the horse's side, and taking the big brown head in his hands he patted and smoothed the forelock and talked baby talk to the beast.

Such a man, in the condition he was in, would not be allowed to pray on the steps of a Boston church, and doubtless his police record is as long as his arm, but when the recording angel closed up his page that night and struck the balance he certainly contrasted it favorably with that of many another man who, in passing the drunkard, had thought that he should be clapped into the patrol wagon and exiled for a month. —Boston Herald.

After Dinner Speakers Must Be Born.

No man can hammer or drill himself into a good after dinner speaker. It is possible that a member of parliament, for example, may begin by being a very bad political speaker and may train himself by unrewarded diligence, unrequited perseverance, immortal self conceit and at the expense of his audience to be a really powerful parliamentary debater. We all know the stories about the first attempt of Sheridan and Disraeli, and in later days an example will occur to us of a public man no longer in the modest representative chamber who began by being the worst speaker the house of commons had ever heard, and who worked on to be a very telling and effective debater.

But nothing of this kind can be done by the after dinner speaker. If he is not born for the work, it would be utterly in vain he trying to outrage nature and force himself upon an unwilling after dinner public. Nobody cares for argument in an after dinner speech. Nobody wants to be instructed or even informed. Nobody wants to have a moral pointed—unless it is indeed by a pencil tipped with light. You cannot say of the after dinner speaker as you might of any other orator, "Well, I think his manner was bad and his language was poor, but you must admit that it was a marvelous piece of argument." No one wants even a marvelous piece of argument from an after dinner speaker. It would be as well to expect sermons from a skirt dancer. —London News.

The Czar's Opinion of an Official.

The czar studies carefully all documents put before him and is in the habit of making marginal notes of his decisions and views. These annotations are carefully treasured in the imperial archives, where they are accessible to the functionaries whom they may concern. Recently, in the margin of the report of a prominent official, the czar wrote, "What an ass!"

The individual thus characterized by his august master was in despair and begged the secretary of state, Polotsseff, to bring the matter before his majesty. "May it please your majesty," began Polotsseff, "to strike out these words here, 'What an ass!' so that they may not forever be on record in his archives." "Oh! Alexander III interrupted, laughingly, 'I quite forgot the archives.' And he took up a pen, ran through the words, "What an ass!" and wrote instead, "What a philosopher!" —San Francisco Argonaut.

A Young Woman's Reasoning.

"I am told, dear, that Jack Rattlepate spent most of his vacation in your back parlor. Aren't you giving him rather a dangerous amount of encouragement?" "Why, no, dearest, he is merely a boy. To be sure, he is a year older than I, but I shall be out next winter, while Jack has two years more in college, and it will be six years after that before he can earn much of anything. So practically he is six years younger than I, and that makes him 12. It is absurd to talk of encouraging a boy so young as that." —Harper's Bazar.

It Should Be in Every House.

J. B. Wilson, 371 Clay st., Sharpshooters, Pa., says he will not be without Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, that it cured his wife who was threatened with pneumonia after an attack of la grippe, when various other remedies and several physicians had done her no good. Robert Barber, of Cooksport, Pa., claims that Dr. King's New Discovery has done him more good than anything he ever used for lung trouble. Nothing like it. Try it. Free trial bottles at John Wright's drug store.

The Stage in England.

The Standard says it is not to be denied that the art of acting in England, like the art of playwriting, has suffered from the influence of Mrs. Grundy. If we had better and greater plays—plays of more ambition and more daring—we should probably see an improvement in the mimetic art. It is true that the insular potentate whom we have named does not exercise quite as much authority as she did. Still she has by no means abdicated her position, and it is impossible to predict or foresee at what particular moment she will reassert her imperiled prerogative. The young ladies of the period have, no doubt, burst a good many of the trammels which were endured patiently by their mothers at a similar period of life. But in genuine mimicry is still a personage on this side of the channel, and though she herself may be slow to be shocked her elders and descendants are shocked for her.

It is apparently assumed that nothing is shocking in French, and we have indeed that scores of mothers will take their daughters to Drury Lane to see "Fron Fron" or "Le Monde on Ton s'Ennui" who would ask with horror whether the lord chamberlain was dead if situations at all analogous to those in either of these comedies were represented in honest English. We are a curious people, and it is certain the French think us so. Their best comedies are seen on the stage. Our most amusing ones are to be seen off it. —London Public Opinion.

Worrying Over Trifles.

"My young friend Seth Blooty," said Colonel Calliper, "was healthy and wealthy, and he had nothing to do but to get as much enjoyment out of life as he could. For a time he had great success; then a cloud arose. "Seth was not a tall man—in fact, he was rather short, but he had never thought anything about this one way or the other until men began to wear large pants, and, do you know, he was greatly distressed because he couldn't wear plaid as big as some of his friends could." "Seems foolish, doesn't it, for a man situated as Seth was to fret over such a matter as that? But I venture to say that we all know men with every reason to be happy who make themselves miserable worrying over trifles not worth a moment's consideration." —New York Sun.

Swift never worked at writing. All his works were written more as an amusement than as a serious occupation. Cowper wrote best in his garden, surrounded by his flowers and pets. His favorite season for work was the summer.

The World's Fair—What It Means.

It means that from May 1st until Oct. 31st there will be an exhibition in Chicago the triumphs of all the ages. The rarest and choicest specimens of the handiwork of man from the nations of the earth will be there to instruct and delight.

That for six months Chicago will be the most cosmopolitan spot on the globe. That the American people will have the wonderful opportunity of mingling with and observing the habits and characteristics of the people of every nation in the world.

That "villages" of the different foreign countries, constructed by and made up entirely of people direct from such countries, will be a most interesting feature of the fair.

That the American citizen, of whatever foreign birth or parentage, may carry himself back again to the land of his origin by visiting and studying these foreign "villages."

That a few days or weeks spent at the World's Fair will be worth years of travel.

That this is the grandest opportunity the American people have ever had for interesting study and pleasure, and that a trip to Chicago during the next six months would be the event of a lifetime.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway offers the best and most frequent train service from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Chicago. The only line lighting its trains by electricity. The most perfect dining service and the best sleeping cars in this country. Ask your agent for tickets via "The Milwaukee"—the Government's Fast Mail Line, or address
J. T. CONLEY,
Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt.,
St. Paul, Minn.

NOTE—Write for a C. M. & St. P. World's Fair folder. It gives full particulars as to how to visit the Fair and what it will cost.
