WEEKLY CHRONICLE.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1883.

The Barber brothers, the notorious Iowa outlaws have at last been captured, but not until they had seriously wounded four of their captors, two of them mortally. A short shrift will in all probability be given to these noted desperadoes.

The Iowa State Democratic convention met June 6th and nominated L. G. Kinnor of Des Moines for governor, Julian C. Clark, Lieut. Governor, Walter T. Hayes, Supreme Judge and Edgar B. Farr, Superintendent of Public Instruction. The Democrats of Iowa feel hopeful of carrying this intensely Republican state.

Gallatin county seems to be the only one willing to contract for keeping territorial convicts at the price offered. Unless the present court makes a pretty clean sweep of these now confined, we are unable to see how many could be accommodated here. Cannot some arrangements be made by which their labor could be turned to some advantage?

Judge Forsker has been nominated by the Republican party, of Ohio, as their candidate for Governor, and Wm. G. Rose, of Cleveland, as Lieut. Governor. Candidates for Supreme Judges, Auditor, Treasurer, etc., were also nominated. It will be in order now for the Democratic convention to name the different gentlemen who will fill these positions "in the sweat and by the sword."

The Helena Independent in the absence of Governor Crosby has sent the following dispatch to the Postmaster General: HELENA, MONT., June 5th, 1883.

To the Postmaster General: Post-office Inspector Seybolt arrested the Republican deputy postmaster at Woodville, Montana, to-day. Government fuel must be scarce, as he was caught robbing the United States mail. There is a vacancy now in that office.

John Howard Payne, the author of "Home, Sweet Home," after thirty years' sojourn in a land of exile has been laid to rest in the soil of his native land, with imposing ceremonies. On the front of the shaft of the simple monument is the following immortal epitaph: "John Howard Payne author of 'Home, Sweet Home,' was born June 9th 1812, and died April 10th, 1852. On the back of the inscription which was on the tombstone that marked his grave in Tunis, as follows: "Sure when thy gentle spirit fled To realms above the aureole said With arms outstretched God's angel said Welcome to heaven's home, sweet home."

Under article five of the act to incorporate the town of Bozeman and defining the powers of the city council. Section twenty-five reads as follows: "To license, tax and regulate taverns, merchants, peddlers, retailers, taverns, hotels, bakeries, restaurants, drinking saloons, billiard halls, lawns, bookers, poolrooms, gambling houses, bankers, assay offices, professional men, barber shops, jewelry stores, wash houses or laundries, insurance agencies, photograph galleries, and theatrical and other exhibitions, and other amusements, and all branches of business. Provided, No license levied or imposed by the city council shall exceed in amount one-fourth of the license required to be paid by the statutes of this Territory for like business." We have called attention to this because a business man showed us his license for doing business, which is identical to the one as that charged by the Territory. While the license collected was the same as that provided for by ordinance No. 12, it is clear that the Territory have not charged enough or that the ordinance in that particular is in conflict with the act of incorporation. We hope the city council will look into this matter and so amend ordinance No. 12, as to comply with the authority granted them.

Hon. Martin Maginnis and wife resided at Bozeman on Thursday and were guests at the house of Walter Cooper. They left for their residence in Helena on Friday. The Hon. gentleman expressed great surprise at the rapid growth and development of the county since last here. He will go east again in July to meet the commission appointed to visit Montana, to look into the condition of the different Indian reservations. It will be his aim to make such arrangements to cut down the Crow reservation as to throw it entirely east of the Big Horn; also reduce the Flathead and Blackfeet reservations, thereby throwing a large amount of land open for settlement. We trust that the visit of this commission will result in great good to our Territory and have the effect above stated of adding a great deal more land to the public domain. The Indian reservations of Montana comprise a valuable land of no practical value to the Indian, in fact much more than they have any use for. It is only a question of time when they will have to adapt themselves to habits of civilization and lands allotted to them for farming and grazing purposes.

The greatest difficulty has been encountered in the efforts of the officers to enforce the law in regard to opium smoking. The rule has been that one is entitled to smoke opium in his own house without interference, and when one has been caught in the act, unless he is a white man, it is hard to prove it is not his residence. The Chinese are accustomed to living in large numbers in small tenements, and when arrested they swear that they live there. No white man caught in such a place can swear to such a thing. The evil is getting a strong hold in America, and from all accounts is more demoralizing and dangerous in its effects than alcohol. We think an officer who has marked out such a place and satisfied himself that it is used as an opium den is entirely justifiable, if refused immediate admittance, in breaking down the doors, and in using all means at his disposal to enforce the law and arrest this growing tendency to use the fatal drug. Like the efforts of temperance reformers to banish alcohol it cannot be expected to utterly destroy the vice, but they can reduce the opportunities of indulging in it. There is a vast difference between the two. One is licensed and recognized by law; the other is an imposition of a Pagan rite and placed under the ban of the law.

On Thursday last we took a ride over to Livingston and had the pleasure of spending an hour or two at that live and enterprising place. We noted a great change since our last visit and were struck with the evidences of substantial prosperity to be seen on every hand. The rude and temporary structures of a few months ago have given place to handsome and imposing business houses. The former town of Clarke City has drifted towards the depot and the streets leading away from the railroad track are being built up into blocks of business houses, as well as the street running parallel with the road. In our great hurry we were not able to make as an extended visit as we would have liked. As it was, we consumed our time in digesting a very good meal at the Merchant Hotel, and then made short calls on our brethren of the quill. C. A. Carson has moved his office near the depot and close to the above named hotel; has more convenient and comfortable quarters and is making the pioneer paper of Livingston a power for good in their midst and while we trust they may fully appreciate his efforts and sustain him cordially, we hope they will not overlook the efforts of Messrs. Wright & Hendry, who have boldly taken the bull by the horns and launched into a daily, the first copy of which reached our sanctum Thursday. We had the pleasure of meeting the gentlemen at their office, which is neat and new, and if we mistake not, they have the qualities necessary to insure success. The Chronicle assures them of its hearty good will. We also met Mr. W. D. Knight of the Yellowstone Journal, who is also on the ground with an outfit, and ere now has launched another aspirant for public favor in the field. His well known versatility as a writer and his pluck and staying qualities are sufficient to guarantee success in the near future. To the citizens of Livingston we would say, Patronize and encourage all these enterprises. They will do you more good than you are aware of. Their influence is widespread and far-reaching. What better advertisement could Livingston have in the east, than to say, it has three newspapers and that they all flourish. May they all prosper and live in peace, harmony and brotherly love.

THE LATEST NEWS.

The wildest excitement still prevails at Billings and speculation in town lots and all kinds of property is increasing every day. Governor Ordway had an informal conference with the capital commissioners, in which he took the ground that advertisements should be published at once for contracts, and that the buildings should be up and occupied before snow flies. He says that the delay in the erection of public buildings is nonsense. President Hughes is of the opinion that they should put men to work on capital grounds, within the next ten days, that the electric light will be procured, and a double force of mechanics should be kept at work until the building is completed. A large number of Chicago and other eastern capitalists are here, and others are constantly arriving. Real estate agencies are overrun with business. To-day the Second National bank received deposits of one hundred and ninety-six thousand dollars. Superintendent Prior, of the Milwaukee road, left after having purchased several sections of land, and it is reported that General Manager Merrill and other officials will arrange for depot buildings, and that his road will be pushed into Billings at once. It is also reported that Major Edwards, proprietor of Fargo Avenue will remove his entire business to Billings at once. Edwards has a good time in Fargo and published a good paper, and his absence will be felt.

CONFIDENCE OF THE FUTURE.

It is gratifying to note the feeling of hope and confidence springing up all around in the future greatness of Montana, and particularly that in which our lines have been cast. We have all appreciated the natural conditions and have looked forward with hope and confidence that they would certainly bring forth legitimate fruits, but natural conditions and resources must be made known and advertised to bring forth speedy results. Life is too short, and in America too real and active and enterprising to await the slow process of natural causes. One must be up and doing and unless enterprise and capital take hold of natural resources and advantages and turn them into available assets we would find ourselves growing poorer, and some less favored locality, possessed of public spirit and enterprise plucking from our grasp the prize which naturally and of right ought to be ours. We are pleased to see that a new order of things is being formulated, that efforts are made to make our county known, that the eyes of the restless tide of immigration is being directed to us, that in fact we are becoming known for what we are and what we ought to be. The N. P. R. company together with some of our live and enterprising citizens are making efforts to advertise us, to build up and these causes produce a feeling of hope and confidence. It is not only directed to us the eye of the agriculturist and stock raiser, but the miner, the manufacturer, and the host who follow in the train of these industries. Under this condition of things there can be no backward step. For the first time in the history of Gallatin county, a leading paper of the Northwest (the Pioneer Press) has a full page advertisement of Bozeman, illustrated by cuts of the principal public and business houses. Even this will prove of more advantage to Gallatin county, than five hundred times its cost. M. W. Alderson has a pamphlet in course of preparation which will be another means of disseminating knowledge of our country. Buy it, read it, send it to your friends; such things will come back to you an hundred fold. Push, energy, public spirit, enterprise, can make prosperity where natural advantages and conditions do not exist; how much more then in a country where these conditions do exist. Let each one then put his shoulder to the wheel and help to keep the ball rolling. Away with fears and doubts, say cowardice.

ADVANTAGES OF THE HOME PAPER.

Every sensible and practical business man takes advantage of the local paper to make known his business, the class of goods he has to sell, the class he wants to buy, to take everything which he wishes to meet the eye of the public. The advantages afforded for this, in the local paper, are too well known and appreciated at this day to need any comment. It is too well known that the judicious use of printer's ink has made many a fortune, and success is measured by the amount of judicious advertising done. No paper is so universally read by the immediate neighborhood as the home paper, and none exerts a greater influence. These things being so, we may be pardoned if we do a little judicious advertising for ourselves. The Chronicle has been in existence now nearly five months, in a field where it has been said that another paper could not live. It has prospered as well as the most sanguine of its friends predicted and in doing so it has not expected, nor desired to antagonize or draw patronage away from its neighbor. Our constant advice has been and will be for the people of Gallatin Valley at least, to subscribe for and encourage both. The small sum asked for annual subscription is well spent and of advantage to the subscriber. Our subscription lists are daily increasing, but we wish, of course, to extend it more and more. There is no stopping point in this matter. The larger the list the more we are enabled to give a better paper. The more money we receive the more we can spend in getting news, in supplying our office with approved machinery, with larger stocks of material and cheaper prices. We shall send out from time to time sample copies of the paper and urge upon all who take an interest in building up and fostering such an enterprise to send us their names as subscribers, and not only that but to secure us more among their neighbors and friends. Many persons have said to us, "Why don't you come over in our neighborhood, you could get a good many subscribers there?" This we have intended to do, but our duties have held us here and the weather has been so bleak and unsettled that we have delayed. We intend, however, to get out during the summer, but in the mean-

MONTANA CHRONICLE.

Mr. N. F. Lozier, formerly of Bozeman has opened a select school in Virginia City. C. B. Towers, the famous boot and shoe man of Miles City, has started a store at Livingston. Chas. Savage, the pioneer merchant of Miles City, has established a business at Livingston, giving it his own supervision. Editor Knight, of the Miles City Journal, will issue this week the first number of the National Park Pioneer at Livingston. He has moved his family to that point. Earnest Goettlich, for a long time in the harness business at Miles City, has moved his stock and fixtures to Livingston and started upon his career. Stebbens, Post & Mund, who have a bank in Miles City, have established a branch at Livingston. This makes three banks this firm has in Montana. I. Orzech & Bro., for a long time dealers in whiskey, cigars and general merchandise at Miles City are now prospecting at Livingston with a branch store. Sol. Smith Russell, who is to play five rounds for the title of Miles City, last month had an $1,800 house at Winnipeg last week. It is said to be the best show that has ever visited the west. Miles City has lost a large number of its prominent business men since the town of Livingston has been started. These old time rustlers are determined to keep to the front, and it would not be surprising to find some of them on the west coast in a year. A raid was made on the stock belonging to Joseph Leighton on his Tongue river ranch some few miles from Miles City. Seventeen head of horses are reported to have been stolen. Suspicion attaches itself to certain parties in connection with the theft. J. D. McIntyre, of Bozeman was awarded the contract by the county commissioners of Lewis and Clark county for re-surveying the original townsite of Helena against four or five competitors. His bid was $2,350; the next highest was $3,200 and the highest $5,000. If this year's crops in the Yellowstone valley are to be estimated in proportion to the spring rainfall, the Northern Pacific railroad will have occasion to construct a second track during the summer in order to have facilities for transporting to the east our surplus production in the fall. The land sales of the Northern Pacific land department of land in the eastern division of that road including Minnesota, Dakota and Yellowstone valley in Montana for the month of May amounted $4,915 acres, for a total of $174,000. About $26,000 were derived from the sale of town lots during the same period in the same division. Miss Sallie E. Hosmer's entertainment in Deer Lodge on Monday night was largely attended by the best citizens of the valley town, and proved a splendid and deserved success. The Miles City next week go to Missoula on invitation of the leading citizens, and is sure to receive a royal welcome and a generous patronage, after which she will probably visit her friends in Helena. Mr. Alderson has had a special ticket printed for the street railway service at Billings. It contains a combination of business and pleasure, and entitles the holder to a round trip from Billings to the river and back, and two glasses of beer at the brewery at its terminus. Those Billings people go in for advertising no matter what the cost is. A rather prominent Helena individual was bantering Col. Lamborn, land commissioner of the Northern Pacific, for a pass over that road, when the Colonel very obligingly went and handed him a pass worded as follows: "Road masters will pass—, whose feet fit an eight tie, from Helena to St. Paul, upon condition that he shall never return." Who can he be? The body of a man was found by Mr. Lozier in the rapids opposite Coulson on the 9th inst. The remains were those of a young man of about twenty-five years of age and weighed about 150 pounds. He had sandy chin whiskers and mustache. The clothing consisted of a pair of boots with spurs, and a grey cashmere overshirt. The body has not been in the water over eight or ten days. A young Englishman, employed in a confidential capacity by a prominent official of the Northern Pacific recently made a trip to Montana. While the train which bore him as a passenger was halted at Little Missouri station, the y. m., inspired by the wildness and general savage aspect of the scenery, conceived the brilliant idea of enacting the role of Jesse James for the special benefit of his companions. Stepping out of the train he went through a transformation process which rendered him completely disguised and brandishing a "hoss pistol" aloft he boarded the car. The scheme was a complete success—if one don't care what he says. He was taken for a Missouri outlaw and he such was greeted with a volley of shots, and a lingering sickness if not instant death to the leading character. The joker realized this before hostilities commenced, and dropping his disguise, slid into the car like a weed shaken by the wind and begged the crowd for "God's sake to hold up." The gang held up and the victim of misplaced confidence still lives. It is a sorrowful but nevertheless an undeniable fact that clergymen sent from the east soon find of well doing in the western towns. The Roman Catholics are the only ones that are not. One can tackle the infancy of the west and get away with it. From Missoula comes the wail of a clergyman who says that he had in his life viewed many of the lowest den of infamy in New York and Philadelphia; but that the streets of Missoula after nightfall were hell compared to anything he had ever seen. The Missoulian has the following regarding the remark: "We have among our population persons who will not hesitate to back their opinions upon the relative merits of contestants in a horse-race, or a foot-race, or a match game of ball, and we do not believe Missoula is the only town in the west where such wicked people are allowed to exist. There are perhaps a larger number of courtesans here, in accordance with the population, than in many other towns of equal size and business importance. And they do thrive and wax fat. There are many saloons where gamblers congregate; we have a variety theatre where a pleasant evening can be spent, though ladies do not go, and also a dance hall. These places, however, are supported principally by the floating population, who come and go, amuse themselves and more their hard earnings in a way of which most people do not approve. On the other hand, however, we have about as good order maintained in Missoula as in any town we know of."

RAILROAD NEWS.

For the benefit of those seeking information about passenger rates over the Northern Pacific we publish this circular handed us by Mr. Davis Wilson. These rates, however, when the distance by stage is reduced, will be lessened accordingly. In reply to the numerous inquiries we have regarding rates and the route to the Pacific Coast via the Northern Pacific Railroad, I will state that the Northern Pacific, at the present writing, is completed to Townsend, 1,120 miles west of St. Paul, and 35 miles east of Helena, at which point there is a daily line of stages, conveying passengers to Third Crossing, the eastern terminus of the Western Division of the Northern Pacific road, fifty miles west of Missoula. Distance from Townsend to Third Crossing by stage 205 miles. Fare, $29. From the eastern terminus of the Western Division to the following points, the fare is as follows: Spokane Falls, $13.30; Wallula Junction, $23.25; Portland, $35; New Tacoma, $41. The present through rate from St. Paul to Spokane Falls is—first class, $63.30, second class, $76.70; St. Paul to Portland is—first class, $119, second class, $85; St. Paul to New Tacoma is—first class, $125, second class, $180. Time, St. Paul to Portland, about seven days. Of course these figures are comparatively high on account of the long stage haul, but as the road is rapidly progressing between the terminal stations, the rates will be correspondingly reduced as the haul shortens. Tickets are now on sale to all points on Western Division, and points on the Coast. This will give a quick and desirable route to parties desiring to visit the Pacific Coast via the northern route. From present indications the road will be completed from the east end to Helena by June 10th, and from the west end to Missoula at the same time. This will leave an uncompleted gap of only 130 miles. The road will be completed by the last of August. The stage ride is a very pleasant trip at this season of the year, and one to be enjoyed rather than avoided. The Northern Pacific road carries 150 pounds baggage on Eastern Division, 100 pounds on Western Division, and stage company 40 pounds, free. Pullman Sleeping cars, and dining cars, are run between St. Paul and Bozeman, and on the Western Division. Yours, &c., G. K. BARNES, General Passenger and Ticket Agent. The track will reach Helena to-day. "Nig," the horse that has drawn the iron car from Mandan to Helena, will appear in the procession at Helena on the 4th of July. Children's Day.
