Starting Developments in Milwaukee.

We learned of one of the saddest cases of the ruin and death of a bright young girl that has ever been brought to light in this city. Six weeks ago a girl seventeen years of age died at the home of her grandparents of what was alleged to be inflammation of the bowels. At the time of the girl's death her mother was sick in bed at her own home, and was brought to the bedside of her dying girl only a few hours before her death. A few days after the burial of her daughter the mother found that a very handsome bouquet had been sent to be placed on the coffin by some stranger. The bouquet had a card attached, upon which were written those words, "From a sorrowing friend." Being anxious to know who took so much interest in her daughter, the woman set on foot some inquiries, and learned to her dismay that the bouquet had come from a married man of prominence, whose private character was not above reproach. Her suspicions were at once aroused and she began an investigation, the results of which are known to a few detectives, newspaper correspondents and the luckless married man, upon whose head the wrath of the poor mother will soon fall. The result, briefly, is that it is found that the young girl died from the effects of an abortion performed upon her, the prima cause for which is the married man who sent the bouquet. Not the least sensational feature of the case is that the abortion was performed by a young lady, a doctor's daughter, who was a friend of the ruined girl. The married man was informed that a case had been worked up against him and that he would probably have to appear in court. He immediately sought an interview with the mother, but she refused to see him. The mother is very poor and would not have been able to hire a detective to investigate the matter, had not some kind friend assisted her. The body of the young girl will be exhumed and examined, to establish the charges to be made. These are the facts in the case as brought out so far. Other things might be stated which it will be more proper to relate when the case is brought into court.

An Incident in Webster's Life.

Webster's father was a farmer, and he wanted Daniel to become a farmer too. But Daniel did not take to the idea very kindly. One day the old gentleman took Daniel with him to the hay-field and gave him a scythe, and he says: "Now, Daniel, I am going to start off here, and I want you to start right along behind me and mow." Daniel said nothing, but took the scythe, for he always tried to mind his father. The old gent went along right ahead, never looking back, but Dan took one or two strokes and stopped. He looked at his scythe, and began tinkering at it. Meanwhile the old gent went right through with his swath, and when he got to the end of the field he turned around and lo! there was Dan away in the other part of the field. He shouldered his scythe and marched back to where Daniel was, and says he: "Daniel, what is the matter with you?" "Well," Dan says, "this scythe don't hang to suit me." The old man took the scythe and hung it as Dan directed. Several throughs were made in succession, and each time as the old man turned round at the end he would discover Daniel in the same position in the other end, fixing his scythe. Finally the old man, after trying in vain for so many times to hang it to suit Dan's motion, came back, and in angry tone, said: "Daniel, you are lazy. You will never make a farmer. Now, take that scythe and just hang it to suit yourself."

Dan took up the scythe and marched off quietly by the fence and hung it up in a sapling. He looked up in the tree and said: "Well, old fellow, now you hang to suit me."

There are many Websters in the land who could never make successful farmers. But for every Webster we find at the plow we might discover a score of natural-born farmers who are trying to practice law or medicine, or trying to teach school.

Whistling.

Captain Burton tells us how the Arabs dislike to hear a person whistle, called by them of siff. Some maintain that the whistler's mouth is not to be purified for forty days, while, according to the explanation of others, Satan touching a man's body causes him to produce what they consider an offensive sound. The natives of the Tonga Islands, Polynesia, hold it to be wrong to whistle, as this act is thought to be disrespectful to God. In Iceland the whistlers have the same objection to whistling, and so far do they carry their superstitious dread of it that "if one swings about him a stick, whip, wand, or ought that makes a whistling sound, he scares from him the Holy Ghost," while other Icelanders who consider themselves free from superstitious notions cautiously give the advice: "Do it not; for who knoweth what is in the air?"

However eccentric those phases of superstition might appear to us, it is not to be forgotten that very similar notions prevail at the present day in this country. A correspondent of Notes and Queries, for instance, relates how one day, after attempting in vain to get his dog to obey orders to come into the house, his wife tried to coax it by whistling, when she was suddenly interrupted by a servant, a Roman Catholic, who exclaimed in the most piteous accents: "If you please, ma'am, don't whistle—every time a woman whistles the heart of the blessed Virgin bleeds." In some districts of North Germany the villagers say that if one whistles in the evening it makes the angels weep. Speaking, however, of ladies in connection with whistling, it is a widespread superstition that it is at all times unlucky for them to whistle, which, according to one legend, originated in the circumstance that, while the nails for our Lord's cross were being forged a woman stood by and whistled.

Curiously enough, however, one very seldom hears any of the fair sex indulging in this recreation, although there is no reason, as it has been often pointed out, why they should not whistle with as much facility as the opposite sex. One cause, perhaps, of the absence of this custom among women may be, in a measure, due to the distortion to the features which it occasions. Thus we know how Minerva cast away, with an imprecation, the pipe, which afterward proved so fatal to Marsyas, when she beheld in the water the disfigurement of her face, caused by her musical performance. There are numerous instances on record, nevertheless, of ladies whistling at public entertainments and charming their audience with the graceful ease with which they performed such airs as "The Blue Balls of Scotland," or "The Mocking Bird."

The only discoverer of the poisonous uric acid which exists in the blood of rheumatic and gouty patients.
SALICYLICA is known as a common sense remedy for all diseases directly or indirectly caused by Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia, while so many so-called specific and supposed panaceas only treat locally the effects.
It has been conceded by eminent scientists that our best applications, such as rubbing with oils, ointments, liniments, and soothing sitz baths, only palliate these diseases which are the result of the poisoning of the blood with Uric Acid.
SALICYLICA works with marvelous effects on this acid, and so removes the disorder. It is now anxiously used by all celebrated physicians of America and Europe. Highest Medical Academy of Paris reports 95 per cent cures in three days.
REMEMBER that SALICYLICA is a certain cure for RHEUMATISM, GOUT and NEURALGIA. The most inflexible and most stubbornly.
