

VOLUME 1.

The Avant Courier

ISSUED EVERY WEDNESDAY. AT BOZEMAN, GALLATIN COUNTY, M. T.

JOSEPH WRIGHT, PUBLISHER AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS: One year, in advance for during the first year... $6.00. Six months, in advance... $3.00. Three months, in advance... $1.50.

ADVERTISING RATES: A Card is Five Lines; a Square Ten Lines, of this type.

Legal Notices 25 cents per line for the first insertion and 15 cents for each additional insertion.

DIRECTORY OF FEDERAL OFFICERS OF MONTANA.

Table with columns: OFFICE, NAME, RESIDENCE. Includes Governor, Secretary, Chief Justice, etc.

Times and Places for Holding Courts in the Territory of Montana.

Supreme Court: At Virginia City, first Monday in January and second Monday in August. United States District Courts: First District—At Virginia City, first Monday in July, and second Monday in November.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

A. G. P. GEORGE, ATTORNEY AT LAW. RADERSBURG, M. T. THOMAS R. EDWARDS, ATTORNEY AT LAW. BOZEMAN, M. T. SAMUEL WORD, ATTORNEY AT LAW. VIRGINIA CITY, M. T. J. ALLEN HOSMER, Attorney and Counselor at Law. BOZEMAN, M. T. H. F. WILLIAMS, Attorney and Counselor at Law. BOZEMAN, MONTANA. PAGE & COLEMAN, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. BOZEMAN, M. T. STREET & TURNER, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. BOZEMAN, M. T.

DON L. RYAN, ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN. At his residence on Middle Creek.

WANTED! County Warrants.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that I will pay the Highest Cash Price for GALLATIN COUNTY WARRANTS.

THE BRIDAL CHAMBER. Essays for Young Men, on great SOCIAL VICES and ABUSES, which interfere with marriage.

Job Printing, cheap, neat and expeditious, this office.

LETTER FROM "BUZ."

VIRGINIA CITY, October 30, 1871. MR. EDITOR:—It is written that, "Whom the Gods intend to destroy they first make mad."

Mr. Editor:—It is written that, "Whom the Gods intend to destroy they first make mad." If there be anything of a prophetic character in the foregoing terse and oft-quoted sentence, then have I grave apprehensions as to the future of our wily and indolent District Clerk.

Now, Mr. Editor, I had thought it within the legitimate sphere of public discussion, and peculiarly the province of a public journal to discuss the public acts of public officials; and certainly to discuss the merits and demerits of a law in which the public generally feel an interest.

My love she wore a simple dress, Her hair in ringlets curled. They called her lovely black-eyed Bess, Queen rose among the girls.

My love she had become a "blonde" When next I saw her face; And where the curls once graced her head, Rings, fringes, diamonds, lace.

From a party lately arrived in this city from Dakota, who traveled some days through and along the burning district of Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota, we glean the following: We use the language of our informant:

For some days previous to leaving Cheyenne river, in Dakota, at a point seventy-five miles west of the crossing of the Northern Pacific Railroad at Red river, a dense, smoky atmosphere prevailed, which each day grew more dense, warning us that immense prairie fires were approaching our quarters rapidly, and our party deemed it prudent to move eastward as fast as possible.

After resting at Red river, our party, reduced to three persons, moved on eastward and southward, passing over a district but lately burned. We could not distinguish an object fifty yards away. A great, through all the distance of two hundred and fifty miles we traveled before reaching the Mississippi river, and even there, the smoke was very oppressive.

Quite a number of our citizens have recently left here to visit your place and attend upon your District Court. We observe the absence of Hon. Samuel Word and Capt. H. N. Blake who attend your Court; and Doctors Mussigbrodt, Yager and Morris, who, rumor says, contemplate embarking in business in your section.

Our town is enlivened by the presence of many of its old citizens who for some time past have resided elsewhere, but who return to their old home feeling as though they had only been temporarily absent.

We have recently been visited by some gentlemen from London who represent a large English capital and who were attracted here by the reputation attained abroad by some of our silver leads in this section.

The Red Sea is said to be the hottest place in the world. The atmosphere for about fifty miles on that sea is steamy and sticky. Everything in the shape of iron or steel about a ship takes on a coat of rust.

The New York Standard says of General Butler: "They saw him grow with the prodigious necessities and opportunities of the war, until the shadow of his stature filled all the world."

How to Get a Berth in a Sleeping Car. I never left the depot yet that somebody was not put in my care.

Phenomena of the Fire. From the Appleton (Wis.) Times. We had a call from Mr. Blake, of Depere, on Saturday afternoon.

Sensible Words About Advertising. The following is from a financial article of the New York Journal of Commerce: "People, who sit nervously in counting houses, or behind their goods, waiting for customers to take them by storm, and making no efforts to let the world know the bargains they have to offer, will find the season very unpropitious."

Train and the Chicago Conspiracy. On Tuesday evening the 'man of destiny'—George Francis Train—lectured in Omaha, and in the course of his remarks referred to the sensation regarding his connection with the Chicago fire, of which mention was made by telegraph a few days ago.

A Wonderful Balm. A manufacturer and vender of quick medicines for rheumatism and the growth of hair combined, frequently wrote to a friend for a recommendation of his (the manufacturer's) "balm."

UNDEVELOPED WEALTH OF THE WEST.—The editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel, in "A Few Notes on a Visit to California," says: "I speak what I have deliberately considered, when I say that the great mining interests, the real wealth of the Western States and Territories, immense as it has been estimated, lies untouched and unexplored to this day."

Too Good by Half.—A gentleman said at a camp-meeting in Iowa the other day, that he had been married twenty-five years, and during that time he had never given his wife a cross look or an unkind word.

The Equinoctial Storm.—Professor E. Loomis of Yale college, twenty years ago reported, after a thorough examination of the meteorological records of London and the United States, against the common belief in the occurrence of a storm at the time of the autumnal equinox.

"Cornering."

The operation of "cornering," as the term is, is played by brokers in the following manner: Four, five, six or ten (as the case may be) brokers enter into an arrangement with each other to buy and control the entire stock of some company.

Now, Mr. Editor, I had thought it within the legitimate sphere of public discussion, and peculiarly the province of a public journal to discuss the public acts of public officials; and certainly to discuss the merits and demerits of a law in which the public generally feel an interest.

My love she wore a simple dress, Her hair in ringlets curled. They called her lovely black-eyed Bess, Queen rose among the girls.

My love she had become a "blonde" When next I saw her face; And where the curls once graced her head, Rings, fringes, diamonds, lace.

From a party lately arrived in this city from Dakota, who traveled some days through and along the burning district of Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota, we glean the following: We use the language of our informant:

For some days previous to leaving Cheyenne river, in Dakota, at a point seventy-five miles west of the crossing of the Northern Pacific Railroad at Red river, a dense, smoky atmosphere prevailed, which each day grew more dense, warning us that immense prairie fires were approaching our quarters rapidly, and our party deemed it prudent to move eastward as fast as possible.

After resting at Red river, our party, reduced to three persons, moved on eastward and southward, passing over a district but lately burned. We could not distinguish an object fifty yards away. A great, through all the distance of two hundred and fifty miles we traveled before reaching the Mississippi river, and even there, the smoke was very oppressive.

Quite a number of our citizens have recently left here to visit your place and attend upon your District Court. We observe the absence of Hon. Samuel Word and Capt. H. N. Blake who attend your Court; and Doctors Mussigbrodt, Yager and Morris, who, rumor says, contemplate embarking in business in your section.

Our town is enlivened by the presence of many of its old citizens who for some time past have resided elsewhere, but who return to their old home feeling as though they had only been temporarily absent.

We have recently been visited by some gentlemen from London who represent a large English capital and who were attracted here by the reputation attained abroad by some of our silver leads in this section.

The Red Sea is said to be the hottest place in the world. The atmosphere for about fifty miles on that sea is steamy and sticky. Everything in the shape of iron or steel about a ship takes on a coat of rust.

The New York Standard says of General Butler: "They saw him grow with the prodigious necessities and opportunities of the war, until the shadow of his stature filled all the world."

How to Get a Berth in a Sleeping Car. I never left the depot yet that somebody was not put in my care.

Phenomena of the Fire. From the Appleton (Wis.) Times. We had a call from Mr. Blake, of Depere, on Saturday afternoon.

Sensible Words About Advertising. The following is from a financial article of the New York Journal of Commerce: "People, who sit nervously in counting houses, or behind their goods, waiting for customers to take them by storm, and making no efforts to let the world know the bargains they have to offer, will find the season very unpropitious."

Train and the Chicago Conspiracy. On Tuesday evening the 'man of destiny'—George Francis Train—lectured in Omaha, and in the course of his remarks referred to the sensation regarding his connection with the Chicago fire, of which mention was made by telegraph a few days ago.

A Wonderful Balm. A manufacturer and vender of quick medicines for rheumatism and the growth of hair combined, frequently wrote to a friend for a recommendation of his (the manufacturer's) "balm."

UNDEVELOPED WEALTH OF THE WEST.—The editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel, in "A Few Notes on a Visit to California," says: "I speak what I have deliberately considered, when I say that the great mining interests, the real wealth of the Western States and Territories, immense as it has been estimated, lies untouched and unexplored to this day."

Too Good by Half.—A gentleman said at a camp-meeting in Iowa the other day, that he had been married twenty-five years, and during that time he had never given his wife a cross look or an unkind word.

The Equinoctial Storm.—Professor E. Loomis of Yale college, twenty years ago reported, after a thorough examination of the meteorological records of London and the United States, against the common belief in the occurrence of a storm at the time of the autumnal equinox.

The operation of "cornering," as the term is, is played by brokers in the following manner: Four, five, six or ten (as the case may be) brokers enter into an arrangement with each other to buy and control the entire stock of some company.

"Cornering."

The operation of "cornering," as the term is, is played by brokers in the following manner: Four, five, six or ten (as the case may be) brokers enter into an arrangement with each other to buy and control the entire stock of some company.

Now, Mr. Editor, I had thought it within the legitimate sphere of public discussion, and peculiarly the province of a public journal to discuss the public acts of public officials; and certainly to discuss the merits and demerits of a law in which the public generally feel an interest.

My love she wore a simple dress, Her hair in ringlets curled. They called her lovely black-eyed Bess, Queen rose among the girls.

My love she had become a "blonde" When next I saw her face; And where the curls once graced her head, Rings, fringes, diamonds, lace.

From a party lately arrived in this city from Dakota, who traveled some days through and along the burning district of Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota, we glean the following: We use the language of our informant:

For some days previous to leaving Cheyenne river, in Dakota, at a point seventy-five miles west of the crossing of the Northern Pacific Railroad at Red river, a dense, smoky atmosphere prevailed, which each day grew more dense, warning us that immense prairie fires were approaching our quarters rapidly, and our party deemed it prudent to move eastward as fast as possible.

After resting at Red river, our party, reduced to three persons, moved on eastward and southward, passing over a district but lately burned. We could not distinguish an object fifty yards away. A great, through all the distance of two hundred and fifty miles we traveled before reaching the Mississippi river, and even there, the smoke was very oppressive.

Quite a number of our citizens have recently left here to visit your place and attend upon your District Court. We observe the absence of Hon. Samuel Word and Capt. H. N. Blake who attend your Court; and Doctors Mussigbrodt, Yager and Morris, who, rumor says, contemplate embarking in business in your section.

Our town is enlivened by the presence of many of its old citizens who for some time past have resided elsewhere, but who return to their old home feeling as though they had only been temporarily absent.

We have recently been visited by some gentlemen from London who represent a large English capital and who were attracted here by the reputation attained abroad by some of our silver leads in this section.

The Red Sea is said to be the hottest place in the world. The atmosphere for about fifty miles on that sea is steamy and sticky. Everything in the shape of iron or steel about a ship takes on a coat of rust.

The New York Standard says of General Butler: "They saw him grow with the prodigious necessities and opportunities of the war, until the shadow of his stature filled all the world."

How to Get a Berth in a Sleeping Car. I never left the depot yet that somebody was not put in my care.

Phenomena of the Fire. From the Appleton (Wis.) Times. We had a call from Mr. Blake, of Depere, on Saturday afternoon.

Sensible Words About Advertising. The following is from a financial article of the New York Journal of Commerce: "People, who sit nervously in counting houses, or behind their goods, waiting for customers to take them by storm, and making no efforts to let the world know the bargains they have to offer, will find the season very unpropitious."

Train and the Chicago Conspiracy. On Tuesday evening the 'man of destiny'—George Francis Train—lectured in Omaha, and in the course of his remarks referred to the sensation regarding his connection with the Chicago fire, of which mention was made by telegraph a few days ago.

A Wonderful Balm. A manufacturer and vender of quick medicines for rheumatism and the growth of hair combined, frequently wrote to a friend for a recommendation of his (the manufacturer's) "balm."

UNDEVELOPED WEALTH OF THE WEST.—The editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel, in "A Few Notes on a Visit to California," says: "I speak what I have deliberately considered, when I say that the great mining interests, the real wealth of the Western States and Territories, immense as it has been estimated, lies untouched and unexplored to this day."

Too Good by Half.—A gentleman said at a camp-meeting in Iowa the other day, that he had been married twenty-five years, and during that time he had never given his wife a cross look or an unkind word.

The Equinoctial Storm.—Professor E. Loomis of Yale college, twenty years ago reported, after a thorough examination of the meteorological records of London and the United States, against the common belief in the occurrence of a storm at the time of the autumnal equinox.

The operation of "cornering," as the term is, is played by brokers in the following manner: Four, five, six or ten (as the case may be) brokers enter into an arrangement with each other to buy and control the entire stock of some company.

"Cornering."

The operation of "cornering," as the term is, is played by brokers in the following manner: Four, five, six or ten (as the case may be) brokers enter into an arrangement with each other to buy and control the entire stock of some company.

Now, Mr. Editor, I had thought it within the legitimate sphere of public discussion, and peculiarly the province of a public journal to discuss the public acts of public officials; and certainly to discuss the merits and demerits of a law in which the public generally feel an interest.

My love she wore a simple dress, Her hair in ringlets curled. They called her lovely black-eyed Bess, Queen rose among the girls.

My love she had become a "blonde" When next I saw her face; And where the curls once graced her head, Rings, fringes, diamonds, lace.

From a party lately arrived in this city from Dakota, who traveled some days through and along the burning district of Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota, we glean the following: We use the language of our informant:

For some days previous to leaving Cheyenne river, in Dakota, at a point seventy-five miles west of the crossing of the Northern Pacific Railroad at Red river, a dense, smoky atmosphere prevailed, which each day grew more dense, warning us that immense prairie fires were approaching our quarters rapidly, and our party deemed it prudent to move eastward as fast as possible.

After resting at Red river, our party, reduced to three persons, moved on eastward and southward, passing over a district but lately burned. We could not distinguish an object fifty yards away. A great, through all the distance of two hundred and fifty miles we traveled before reaching the Mississippi river, and even there, the smoke was very oppressive.

Quite a number of our citizens have recently left here to visit your place and attend upon your District Court. We observe the absence of Hon. Samuel Word and Capt. H. N. Blake who attend your Court; and Doctors Mussigbrodt, Yager and Morris, who, rumor says, contemplate embarking in business in your section.

Our town is enlivened by the presence of many of its old citizens who for some time past have resided elsewhere, but who return to their old home feeling as though they had only been temporarily absent.

We have recently been visited by some gentlemen from London who represent a large English capital and who were attracted here by the reputation attained abroad by some of our silver leads in this section.

The Red Sea is said to be the hottest place in the world. The atmosphere for about fifty miles on that sea is steamy and sticky. Everything in the shape of iron or steel about a ship takes on a coat of rust.

The New York Standard says of General Butler: "They saw him grow with the prodigious necessities and opportunities of the war, until the shadow of his stature filled all the world."

How to Get a Berth in a Sleeping Car. I never left the depot yet that somebody was not put in my care.

Phenomena of the Fire. From the Appleton (Wis.) Times. We had a call from Mr. Blake, of Depere, on Saturday afternoon.

Sensible Words About Advertising. The following is from a financial article of the New York Journal of Commerce: "People, who sit nervously in counting houses, or behind their goods, waiting for customers to take them by storm, and making no efforts to let the world know the bargains they have to offer, will find the season very unpropitious."

Train and the Chicago Conspiracy. On Tuesday evening the 'man of destiny'—George Francis Train—lectured in Omaha, and in the course of his remarks referred to the sensation regarding his connection with the Chicago fire, of which mention was made by telegraph a few days ago.

A Wonderful Balm. A manufacturer and vender of quick medicines for rheumatism and the growth of hair combined, frequently wrote to a friend for a recommendation of his (the manufacturer's) "balm."

UNDEVELOPED WEALTH OF THE WEST.—The editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel, in "A Few Notes on a Visit to California," says: "I speak what I have deliberately considered, when I say that the great mining interests, the real wealth of the Western States and Territories, immense as it has been estimated, lies untouched and unexplored to this day."

Too Good by Half.—A gentleman said at a camp-meeting in Iowa the other day, that he had been married twenty-five years, and during that time he had never given his wife a cross look or an unkind word.

The Equinoctial Storm.—Professor E. Loomis of Yale college, twenty years ago reported, after a thorough examination of the meteorological records of London and the United States, against the common belief in the occurrence of a storm at the time of the autumnal equinox.

The operation of "cornering," as the term is, is played by brokers in the following manner: Four, five, six or ten (as the case may be) brokers enter into an arrangement with each other to buy and control the entire stock of some company.

"Cornering."

The operation of "cornering," as the term is, is played by brokers in the following manner: Four, five, six or ten (as the case may be) brokers enter into an arrangement with each other to buy and control the entire stock of some company.

Now, Mr. Editor, I had thought it within the legitimate sphere of public discussion, and peculiarly the province of a public journal to discuss the public acts of public officials; and certainly to discuss the merits and demerits of a law in which the public generally feel an interest.

My love she wore a simple dress, Her hair in ringlets curled. They called her lovely black-eyed Bess, Queen rose among the girls.

My love she had become a "blonde" When next I saw her face; And where the curls once graced her head, Rings, fringes, diamonds, lace.

From a party lately arrived in this city from Dakota, who traveled some days through and along the burning district of Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota, we glean the following: We use the language of our informant:

For some days previous to leaving Cheyenne river, in Dakota, at a point seventy-five miles west of the crossing of the Northern Pacific Railroad at Red river, a dense, smoky atmosphere prevailed, which each day grew more dense, warning us that immense prairie fires were approaching our quarters rapidly, and our party deemed it prudent to move eastward as fast as possible.

After resting at Red river, our party, reduced to three persons, moved on eastward and southward, passing over a district but lately burned. We could not distinguish an object fifty yards away. A great, through all the distance of two hundred and fifty miles we traveled before reaching the Mississippi river, and even there, the smoke was very oppressive.

Quite a number of our citizens have recently left here to visit your place and attend upon your District Court. We observe the absence of Hon. Samuel Word and Capt. H. N. Blake who attend your Court; and Doctors Mussigbrodt, Yager and Morris, who, rumor says, contemplate embarking in business in your section.

Our town is enlivened by the presence of many of its old citizens who for some time past have resided elsewhere, but who return to their old home feeling as though they had only been temporarily absent.

We have recently been visited by some gentlemen from London who represent a large English capital and who were attracted here by the reputation attained abroad by some of our silver leads in this section.

The Red Sea is said to be the hottest place in the world. The atmosphere for about fifty miles on that sea is steamy and sticky. Everything in the shape of iron or steel about a ship takes on a coat of rust.

The New York Standard says of General Butler: "They saw him grow with the prodigious necessities and opportunities of the war, until the shadow of his stature filled all the world."

How to Get a Berth in a Sleeping Car. I never left the depot yet that somebody was not put in my care.

Phenomena of the Fire. From the Appleton (Wis.) Times. We had a call from Mr. Blake, of Depere, on Saturday afternoon.

Sensible Words About Advertising. The following is from a financial article of the New York Journal of Commerce: "People, who sit nervously in counting houses, or behind their goods, waiting for customers to take them by storm, and making no efforts to let the world know the bargains they have to offer, will find the season very unpropitious."

Train and the Chicago Conspiracy. On Tuesday evening the 'man of destiny'—George Francis Train—lectured in Omaha, and in the course of his remarks referred to the sensation regarding his connection with the Chicago fire, of which mention was made by telegraph a few days ago.

A Wonderful Balm. A manufacturer and vender of quick medicines for rheumatism and the growth of hair combined, frequently wrote to a friend for a recommendation of his (the manufacturer's) "balm."

UNDEVELOPED WEALTH OF THE WEST.—The editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel, in "A Few Notes on a Visit to California," says: "I speak what I have deliberately considered, when I say that the great mining interests, the real wealth of the Western States and Territories, immense as it has been estimated, lies untouched and unexplored to this day."

Too Good by Half.—A gentleman said at a camp-meeting in Iowa the other day, that he had been married twenty-five years, and during that time he had never given his wife a cross look or an unkind word.

The Equinoctial Storm.—Professor E. Loomis of Yale college, twenty years ago reported, after a thorough examination of the meteorological records of London and the United States, against the common belief in the occurrence of a storm at the time of the autumnal equinox.

The operation of "cornering," as the term is, is played by brokers in the following manner: Four, five, six or ten (as the case may be) brokers enter into an arrangement with each other to buy and control the entire stock of some company.

"Cornering."

The operation of "cornering," as the term is, is played by brokers in the following manner: Four, five, six or ten (as the case may be) brokers enter into an arrangement with each other to buy and control the entire stock of some company.

Now, Mr. Editor, I had thought it within the legitimate sphere of public discussion, and peculiarly the province of a public journal to discuss the public acts of public officials; and certainly to discuss the merits and demerits of a law in which the public generally feel an interest.

My love she wore a simple dress, Her hair in ringlets curled. They called her lovely black-eyed Bess, Queen rose among the girls.

My love she had become a "blonde" When next I saw her face; And where the curls once graced her head, Rings, fringes, diamonds, lace.

From a party lately arrived in this city from Dakota, who traveled some days through and along the burning district of Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota, we glean the following: We use the language of our informant:

For some days previous to leaving Cheyenne river, in Dakota, at a point seventy-five miles west of the crossing of the Northern Pacific Railroad at Red river, a dense, smoky atmosphere prevailed, which each day grew more dense, warning us that immense prairie fires were approaching our quarters rapidly, and our party deemed it prudent to move eastward as fast as possible.

After resting at Red river, our party, reduced to three persons, moved on eastward and southward, passing over a district but lately burned. We could not distinguish an object fifty yards away. A great, through all the distance of two hundred and fifty miles we traveled before reaching the Mississippi river, and even there, the smoke was very oppressive.

Quite a number of our citizens have recently left here to visit your place and attend upon your District Court. We observe the absence of Hon. Samuel Word and Capt. H. N. Blake who attend your Court; and Doctors Mussigbrodt, Yager and Morris, who, rumor says, contemplate embarking in business in your section.

Our town is enlivened by the presence of many of its old citizens who for some time past have resided elsewhere, but who return to their old home feeling as though they had only been temporarily absent.

We have recently been visited by some gentlemen from London who represent a large English capital and who were attracted here by the reputation attained abroad by some of our silver leads in this section.

The Red Sea is said to be the hottest place in the world. The atmosphere for about fifty miles on that sea is steamy and sticky. Everything in the shape of iron or steel about a ship takes on a coat of rust.

The New York Standard says of General Butler: "They saw him grow with the prodigious necessities and opportunities of the war, until the shadow of his stature filled all the world."

How to Get a Berth in a Sleeping Car. I never left the depot yet that somebody was not put in my care.

Phenomena of the Fire. From the Appleton (Wis.) Times. We had a call from Mr. Blake, of Depere, on Saturday afternoon.

Sensible Words About Advertising. The following is from a financial article of the New York Journal of Commerce: "People, who sit nervously in counting houses, or behind their goods, waiting for customers to take them by storm, and making no efforts to let the world know the bargains they have to offer, will find the season very unpropitious."

Train and the Chicago Conspiracy. On Tuesday evening the 'man of destiny'—George Francis Train—lectured in Omaha, and in the course of his remarks referred to the sensation regarding his connection with the Chicago fire, of which mention was made by telegraph a few days ago.

A Wonderful Balm. A manufacturer and vender of quick medicines for rheumatism and the growth of hair combined, frequently wrote to a friend for a recommendation of his (the manufacturer's) "balm."

UNDEVELOPED WEALTH OF THE WEST.—The editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel, in "A Few Notes on a Visit to California," says: "I speak what I have deliberately considered, when I say that the great mining interests, the real wealth of the Western States and Territories, immense as it has been estimated, lies untouched and unexplored to this day."

Too Good by Half.—A gentleman said at a camp-meeting in Iowa the other day, that he had been married twenty-five years, and during that time he had never given his wife a cross look or an unkind word.

The Equinoctial Storm.—Professor E. Loomis of Yale college, twenty years ago reported, after a thorough examination of the meteorological records of London and the United States, against the common belief in the occurrence of a storm at the time of the autumnal equinox.

The operation of "cornering," as the term is, is played by brokers in the following manner: Four, five, six or ten (as the case may be) brokers enter into an arrangement with each other to buy and control the entire stock of some company.