A BANK'S SURPLUS
WHAT IT IS ?

This bank pays its shareholders each year dividends that are consistent with a safe, well managed business.

The money earned on our capital, above the dividends paid to shareholders is put back into the business. We have recently increased our surplus $5,000.00, making our surplus $45,000.00, every cent of which has been earned, and which, with our capital, represents $95,000.00 of actual working capital.

A growing surplus means a prosperous business; it also gives to depositors increasing safety for funds each year.

Become a customer of the bank with ample capital and a growing surplus; this kind of a bank meets the demands of its customers in a satisfactory manner.
