

SPRAY OF THE FALLS.

WEDNESDAY'S DAILY.

The management of the New York Bazaar desires to announce to the people of Great Falls that their stock of millinery has all arrived and embraces the finest and best selected class ever displayed behind their counters.

The latest novelties and designs, in sweet shades and patterns can now be seen by calling at the New York Cash Bazaar. The public generally and the ladies in particular are invited to inspect the new goods.

The case of Hinderanger vs. The Butte Canal Company finally arrived at a decision yesterday. It was a technical case. Plaintiff brought in for $500 and defendant offset by a counter-claim of $2,000 on the ground of overcharges and wrong estimates.

The new school house is slowly but surely growing upward. The brickwork now above the second story and the general outlines of the building are plainly discernible. It presents a very handsome picture from the front, with a high stone foundation supporting a wall of brick.

J. Cornelius is authority for the statement that work on the smelter processes at a most encouraging rate. At the electric light power house machinery being lowered daily. On the Fifteenth street bridge a great deal has also been accomplished.

A new two-story frame is being built on Second avenue south, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, by Mrs. Margaret Murray, who resides in Selkirk, Scotland, and is the mother of Mrs. James Lawler. Mrs. Murray expects to arrive in Great Falls this fall, and will in future make it her home.

Dr. C. E. Clingan and wife of Sioux City, Iowa, who have been visiting E. R. Clingan, the well-known Belt merchant, left yesterday for the coast. The doctor has here five years ago and it is needless to say he finds that the city has made rapid strides in that brief period.

J. A. Carrier has returned from a trip to his mine, the Eureka on Dry Wolf. He reports that it even exceeded his expectations. A large amount of ore is in sight and a great deal on the dump. While there he let a contract to sink it fifty feet deeper.

The Great Northern contemplate improving their station house by putting in four water hydrants. A large chimney also to be built on the south end of the house.

Dr. Toussaint, interested with Messrs. Foley & Conly in the Tiger at Barker, has been spending several days in the city. He leaves for Barker this morning.

A son was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Westcott.

THURSDAY'S DAILY.

At the electric light power house quite extensive changes daily occur. The walls have grown considerably lately and the two ends of the big pen-stock are in. One pair of 20-inch wheels are in and the work of putting in the others begins today. The remainder of the machinery can scarcely be put up in less than three weeks.

Mr. Frank Scotten and Miss Lola White were united in the bonds of holy matrimony at the home of the bride's mother on Eighth avenue and Fourteenth street north yesterday afternoon. Rev. Wm. B. Coombe officiating. The Tribune wishes them bon voyage over the ocean of life.

FRIDAY'S DAILY.

S. MacQueen of Armington, who was in the city yesterday, says that the country about Armington compares quite favorably in the way of crops with its sister sections. Oats are yielding from sixty to seventy bushels to the acre, and one average heard from was seventy-three. On Upper Belt George W. Goodman has kept a crew busy ten days thrashing out his wheat and oats. Mr. MacQueen came to the city on business connected with the May and Edna, over which mine he feels very sanguine. It is expected that ore shipments from this mine to the city will begin next week.

The Home is the name of a private hospital recently opened on Seventh avenue north, Thirteenth street, Nos. 1221 and 1223. The institution is under the immediate supervision of Mrs. Bartlett, matron, assisted by her brother, Mr. Parley Malbon. Patients from the city and surrounding country will be received. Already several have been placed under the kind care and attention of the ever watchful and experienced nurse. The location is a slightly, pleasant, healthy one, and the Tribune predicts that the enterprise, inaugurated in the interests of suffering humanity, will prove a blessing to its patrons.

W. G. Downing, in conversation with a Tribune representative yesterday, said that the deal in progress between the Queen of the Hills company and the English syndicate would probably be completed next week. Mr. Chadbourne, who represents the syndicate, is now in Helena. The extensive electrical machinery, a complete description of which was given in the Tribune several months ago, is now on its way and the work of putting it in the Queen will begin in a few weeks.

The following telegram was received here yesterday afternoon from Jay Gould, the railroad king, which goes to show what confidence a man of his experience and brains has in our city and business houses: "New York, Sept. 24, 1891.—Hon. W. W. Connor, secretary Townsite company, Great Falls.—Please select for me at once twenty of your best lots and a new fall and winter outfit at the Boston clothing house. Draw on me for damages. JAY GOULD."

For the newest thing in ladies' jackets, cloaks, wraps, etc., call at the New York Cash Bazaar. This popular house is now unpacking some very handsome and stylish garments, made up in Astrakhan, plush and beaver. The new dress goods are now placed upon exhibition, and the sight is an endless source of pleasure to the feminine heart. The ladies of the city are invited to inspect the new goods.

The Great Falls Iron Works have recently added to their establishment a big steam whistle, manufactured at the works. It is said to be the largest in the state and can be heard at a distance of twelve miles when blown at full force.

Miss Annie Kessler, aged 14, a sister of Phil Kessler, died yesterday afternoon at 2:30. The funeral will take place at the residence of Mr. Kessler, 412 Fourth street south, at 3 o'clock today.

J. A. Carrier yesterday let a contract for working the Star, a mining claim in the Nihari region and immediately adjoining the Savage, in which a rich strike was recently made.

Charles Carlson, a Norwegian, who died at the hospital, was buried last Wednesday. It was the first services in the city at which the new minister, Rev. Ufvaaker, officiated.

In yesterday's court report a transfer of the furniture in the Woodriddle was wrongly quoted. By a typographical error William M. was made to read William Um. The transferor was William M. Woodriddle, a son of Mrs. Catharine Woodriddle, to whom the transfer was made.

A marriage license has been issued to Frank Scotten and Miss Lola J. White. John Mitchell vs. Burk and O'Connor continued for term.

E. L. Bishop vs. E. R. Davie et al., default noted.

An assignment of a contract between Mary C. Paul and the Townsite for lot 13, in block 196, to F. P. Atkinson, cashier; consideration, $1,705. This bears date of August 24 and with it is filed a quitclaim from F. P. Atkinson to Mary C. Paul, in effect rescinding the assignment.

State vs. Fred Lohmer; grand larceny; verdict of guilty; to be sentenced today.

Henry P. Berg vs. the Boston & Montana C. S. & M. Co.; on trial.

J. C. Goellert, the murderer, was brought up for sentence. The hardihood maintained at the trial forsook him and his knees smote together. He made a speech denying that he had lived off the woman whom he slew, and affirmed that until recently he had always worked and helped support his mother. He ascribed his downfall to drink, and affirmed that had he been allowed to go on the stand he could have explained many things. He was sentenced to 18 years' imprisonment. By good behavior he can cut this down to ten years and three months.

A RELIC OF THE CHASE.

A Buffalo Head With a History—A Hunter's Predicament.

Most people living in the west have seen mounted buffalo heads in private residences and in hotels and other public places. Beautiful specimens of the taxidermist's art that always elicit the admiration of the observer. With life-like eyes of glass, highly polished horns and clean flowing manes those mounted heads are beautiful to behold. Those of us who came to the west since the buffalo became practically extinct often conclude that the mounted heads are life-like in every respect. Any old buffalo hunter will tell you that the bright eyes are about the only feature that closely resembles the animal when alive.

He will tell you that the horns of a live buffalo were never bright and glossy but the reverse—often scaly and broken as they appear when found on the prairie today; that the hair on the head was tangled and full of burrs and dirt; in fact, the whole head was anything but clean and attractive.

The writer recently had the good fortune to see a head which he was told had about the same appearance as it did when the buffalo was killed thirteen years ago. It is nailed over the door of a barn on the Hay Bros. ranch on Arrow creek, about forty-five miles east of Great Falls, and is worth going to see.

On first appearance one would think a piece of an old robe had been nailed over a weather-worn buffalo head, with holes cut in the skin for the horns to protrude through. Such at least were the conclusions of the writer until informed differently by Mr. John Hay. That gentleman then related the history of the relic, telling how he and his brother Andrew killed the buffalo from whose lifeless carcass the head was cut, and then fastened it upon the side of their barn as a reminder of the days when game was abundant.

It was in the fall of 1878 when the country in that vicinity was sparsely settled, and game of all kinds, excepting buffalo, was very plentiful. To use a western expression, they were out of meat and Andrew started out to kill an antelope or a deer. He had proceeded but a few rods from the ranch when he suddenly came on a big buffalo, a bull, and instantly fired, wounding him.

The enraged animal charged upon Andrew and came near goring his horse. He fired again but with no better result and turning his horse started for the ranch with the buffalo in hot pursuit. Meanwhile John Hay, who had been attracted by the shots, hurried to his brother's rescue and dispatched the bull with a well directed shot. Owing to the great size of the animal they cut off the head and nailed it up in the manner mentioned. From its appearance one can readily see that the buffalo must have been a monster. The hair over the eyes is about five inches long and thickly matted.

That was the last buffalo killed in that part of the country and for that reason the head in its present state is a curiosity of considerable value. The Hay brothers have already refused several flattering offers for it from taxidermist and curio lovers.

Montana Wool.

The movement in wool, says the Boston Weekly Advertiser, still runs largely to territory grades, while these wools show the largest selections for manufacturers to pick from. Many of these wools show a great improvement in breeding, and for nearly all kinds of fine goods they can be worked in to advantage as a mixture. Montana wools are doing well and some lots show a very good staple, which makes them popular, to the disadvantage of domestic fleeces. The scored range for fine lots of strong warp territory wools is about 60¢@62¢, with some fancy lots doing even better while fine medium are steady at 58¢@60¢.

In the grease, fine medium Montana wools sell at about 19¢@21¢ with occasional light lots at 22¢. The sales of territory wools during the week ending September 18 are reported as follows: Territory—500,000 lbs. Ter., 19¢@24¢; 6,000 lbs do, 17¢; 76,000 lbs do on p. t.; 35,000 lbs do, 17¢@22¢; 150,000 lbs do on p. t. Total, 567,000 lbs.

Montana Horses for England.

J. H. Truman & Sons are the first men we have heard of to ship Montana-bred horses to England. Mr. J. H. Truman, who has just returned from Montana where he has large horse interests, reports that his son, John G., is now on the Atlantic with sixty head of choice 10-hand horses, sired by the $2,500 trotting stallion, Treasure Box, owned by Mrs. Farrington of Lima, Mont. They are out of high grade Oregon mares, and Mr. Truman thinks they will make excellent hunters when properly trained. They will be taken to his farm at Whittelesca, England.

Mr. John G. Truman will bring back an importation of Shire and Harney horses.—Drovers' Journal.

Taxes Reduced.

The county commissioners have passed the following resolution. In effect it reduces taxes by two mills by repealing this amount levied for a sinking fund. It means a difference in the levy of about $25,000.

WHEREAS, In making the annual levy of taxes of August 10, 1889, the board levied two mills for a sinking fund, and the board has since been advised by the attorney general in opinion on file that the statute does not authorize such levy, and that the same is illegal; now, therefore,

Resolved, That the levy of two mills aforesaid for a sinking fund be rescinded and vacated, and the county clerk be and he is hereby instructed to disregard the same in extending the taxes on the duplicate assessment book, and if the same shall in any form have been extended upon such book, such extension shall be corrected by deducting therefrom the amount of such two mills levy. The clerk is instructed and authorized to comply with this resolution and to employ the necessary help to make such correction.

COUNCIL HOLDS A MEETING.

A Quorum Secured—The Levy Reduced—No Jail Contract Let.

Council met Wednesday and held an adjourned session. There were present Mayor Hotchkiss and Aldermen Gaunt, Beachley, Tracy, Carrier, Burghardt and Fletcher. Quite a number of citizens were also present, so that the room was fairly well filled.

The mayor announced the appointment of S. B. Porter as poundmaster and the appointment was duly confirmed.

The committee on board of prisoners reported the payment of $1 a day and for each part of a day for board of prisoners. This was thought too high and the committee recommended that their boarding be let out to the lowest bidder. The committee's suggestion was acted on and bids directed to be advertised for.

A petition was presented asking the appointment of Geo. Enfield as policeman for the west side; James Casey was also recommended by petition.

Also one asking the extension of water mains from Ninth street to Park drive on Seventh avenue north.

Mr. Enfield was then appointed policeman of West Great Falls.

The auditing committee reported the following bills: Matt Dunn, $50.00; George Treat, 25.20; J. W. Sullivan, 66.14; W. F. Burg, 44.20; TRIBUNE, 33.68; Boston & Great Falls, 270.00; Electric Light company, 2.00; Barnett Bros., 100.00; David Rice, 261.00; Boston & Great Falls, 7.50; Nelson Logerstadt, 175.00; George Marks, 50.00; Albert Olson, 35.00; Pat Holland, 12.50; S. P. Johnson, 62.25; James Mansfield, 65.00; Holter Lumber company, 47.77; E. A. Ringwald, 14.75.

The report was accepted and warrants ordered drawn. The matter of amending a number of ordinances was referred to the ordinance committee in connection with the city attorney.

The tax question was then brought before the council by J. W. Bookwalter. Council, after some discussion on the tax question, passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That the rate of assessment for the city of Great Falls for the ensuing year, as fixed by resolution passed August 3d, 1891, be modified so as to read as follows: The levy and assessment on the taxable property within the city of Great Falls for the next ensuing year is hereby levied and fixed at 7 mills on the dollar of all taxable property within said city and the same apportioned as follows: Water fund 2 mills, general fund 4 mills, street fund 1 mill and out of the general fund, when collected, there is hereby appropriated $3,000 to provide a sinking fund with which to pay interest on bonds, and $1,000 for a park fund.

The petition of J. L. Henry for a building permit was rejected.

The bids for the construction of the new jail were all rejected as being, with few exceptions, irregularly put in.

An ordinance amending the fire limits ordinance and providing for a stricter enforcement of the same was passed.

Council then adjourned to meet next Monday night at 7:30, when the jail contract will be let.

MISPLACED "TAKES."

Terrible Misfortune That Befell Colonel Ochiltree, According to the Types.

One of the best stories about typographical errors is told by a New York newspaper man, who was at the time proofreader on the Dallas Commercial. He lost his job through the carelessness of the forman in marking two sets of "X" copy and hanging it on the hook at the same time. The mistake resulted in about the funniest newspaper "bull" ever heard of, by reason of the fact that the separate takes of the different copy fitted together without a break. Tom Ochiltree, the red haired ex-congressman and famous disciple of the science of hyperbole, made a speech at the opera house on the evening in question, and on the afternoon of the same day a mad dog had been killed in the streets. Perhaps fate recognized an affinity between Ochiltree and a mad dog. At any rate, the first "take" of the Ochiltree report and the second "take" of the mad dog item got mixed, and this is the way two paragraphs appeared in the paper the next morning.

"Hon. Thomas P. Ochiltree lectured at the opera house last night to an audience that was inclined to be indulgent. Before the hour set for the lecture the familiar figure of the eloquent Texan was prominent on the stage, where he sat talking to Colonel ——. Promptly at 8 o'clock the colonel arose, and in a few appropriate remarks introduced the speaker of the evening, who bowed and advanced to the front of the stage.

"With his tail tucked between his legs he began to bow to smart and to snap at everything in sight. He frothed at the mouth, he slobbered and he pouted. His long and ugly tongue hung out nearly a foot over his left jawbone. It was black and heavy. A citizen, recognizing that in such a condition he was a menace to life, fished out a Colt's revolver from his hip pocket and drew a bead on him. A sharp, whip-like report rang out and a pistol ball penetrated the brute's left eye. He gave an agonizing yell, fell over on his left side and expired."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Assaulted a Locksmith.

Mrs. Catharine Woodriddle and Dr. Reid no longer occupy the reciprocal relations of landlady and tenant. The doctor has changed his office, and after some difficulty has taken his furniture with him. The trouble was something like this. The two disagreed as to the rent the doctor owed, Mrs. Woodriddle claiming $49 and the doctor something less. The discussion became animated and the landlady locked the door of the doctor's room and bade him go hence without so much as a silk tie to cover his head. The doctor went, but his Cataline he returned again, and with him came Locksmith Cleeland and a key to unlock the door. But Mrs. Woodriddle was there, and when this daring deed was attempted she pushed the locksmith away in an unfriendly manner. Later, however, the doctor succeeded in removing his furniture and garments.

Mrs. Woodriddle was arrested this morning for assault on the locksmith. After a trial before Judge Race she was compelled to pay a fine of $5 and costs. From this court she went to Judge Morehouse and swore a warrant out against the doctor for using vulgar and obscene language. She said that the doctor said naughty words about her and her house, and announces her intention of vindicating the honor of her hearthstone.

One of Nature's Freaks.

Some mineral specimens of a decidedly unique and rare description are now to be seen at the Townsite office. They are stalactites and stalagmites and were placed there recently by Mr. Charles Gibson. Mr. Gibson returned recently from the head of Wolf creek and here is the somewhat remarkable tale he tells regarding their discovery.

A week ago last Sunday some miners were sinking a shaft in the Sir Walter Raleigh, a mine situated in the Running Wolf district at the head of Wolf creek. The shaft had reached a depth of sixty feet, when to their astonishment the drill broke through the rock and exploration disclosed the existence of a large underground chamber or cave.

Extending from the cave were three arms or halls connecting with and leading to other chambers. The system of chambers leading south extends a distance of about 300 feet. It was explored this far and then the exploring party were forced to stop, owing to a lake of unknown extent which barred further progress. Its dark waters far under the earth's surface may extend miles into its bosom. The floor, walls and ceiling of this section were covered with stalactites and stalagmites of a rich white color, which reflected back the smoky light of the torches like millions of glittering diamonds. The arm running to the north was about 300 feet in length and contained the largest chambers, while that extending westward was only about 200 feet long. In both of these latter chambers the milk-white body of the rock was oddly streaked with coffee-brown stone. All through the system varies in breadth from eight to ten feet to thirty to forty feet. The height also varies in similar dimensions.

Taken altogether it is a wonderful discovery of a strange freak of nature. It is said that indications point to rich mineral discoveries beneath.
