Store has it.

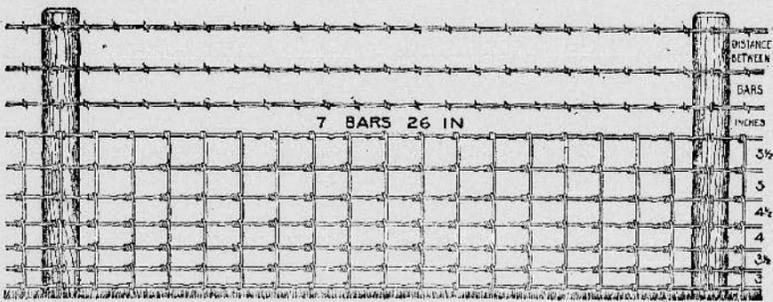

1910 THE BIG STORE 1914

So long as the Big Store
has it, why look elsewhere?

HARVEST TIME

EVERY day is a harvest for the farmer who has cows and chickens. We are paying 24 cents per pound for butter fat and 17 1-2 cents per dozen for eggs. There is no limit to what we will take, and the market is right here at your door. We have been harping on this subject for a long time. Those who have put out alfalfa are getting results beyond expectations. Get into the band wagon and let's make this valley renowned as a dairy, poultry and stock country. This store will specialize on such merchandise as is necessary to bring these conditions about.

A Despondent Family "Made Over"

Wouldn't you rather pay $625 for a Ford 5-passenger touring car, delivered at your door, and put the rest in the bank, than pay $1200 for a heavy car, or a series of hospital or doctor's bills, and be "broke?"

(This story of real life, by an Illinois farmer, E. C. Edwards, given in the American Agriculturist, is short but good. How many other rural families have had the same experience?)

"My wife and daughter had been ailing for years. We had tried all sorts of medicines, "cures" and doctors. They cost awfully, but did no good. The whole family became discouraged. It took the spunk all out of me to see women folks dragging through each day in such a forlorn way. None of us were happy, life was hard, work piled up. We were going backward in more ways than one, although we stuck close to our work on the farm and in the home, and never went anywhere.

Finally I got desperate and bought a Ford touring car. Never said a word about it until I drove into the yard with the new car. My, how my wife did scold for such extravagance! She'd never ride in it, we couldn't afford it, etc. I made no back talk, but after a few days' use of that machine around the farm, carrying milk to the depot, doing twice the business in half the time, my daughter "felt well enough" to take a ride in it. I drove slowly and carefully until she got a little used to it, then I showed her how that car could go! When we got home she rushed into the house full of excitement and enthusiasm, hugged and kissed her mother, and said: "Oh, it's glorious, you simply must go out in our car."

After a few rides, wife liked it as much as daughter. Since then the whole family has driven out almost every day or evening, if only for a short run. Getting outdoors, breathing fresh air, seeing new scenes and faces, creating new interests along with sharp appetites, has cured both wife and daughter, and made a new man of me.

We all feel now like life is worth living, work goes along better in house and field, we are making money again, and prospering in every way. Not a dollar has gone for medicines or doctors since I bought my automobile three years ago.

I understand now what that physician meant who bewailed to a fellow doctor: "When an automobile comes into the home the doctor goes out."

It's true."

The depreciation in a heavy car is three or four times as great as in a Ford; the operating and upkeep expense on a heavy car are four or five times as great as on a Ford.

Why pay more?

Don't forget the family

Leave some in the bank.
