Sends the Convention Into Riot of Tumult and Wild Enthusiasm--Timid Ones Feared Stampede

Chairman Lodge In His Address Referred to President When the Thousands in the Coliseum Raised Din that Lasted Three-Quarters of an Hour.

This signal was long-awaited. Instantly a shout broke from the galleries, which was echoed back from the floor. After a tempest of detached yells, cat calls and shouts of "Teddy" the whole gathering gradually joined in the outbreak.

Some one threw a large Teddy Bear among the press seats. The assemblage became wild with its enthusiasm. The bear was tossed about by delegates amidst a terrific uproar and shouts of "Four years more." It was taken up on the floor and rolled back and forth in the galleries, accompanied by a monotonous chant. Fully three-quarters of an hour passed in this bewildering confusion of sight and sound. For a time the fear was felt by some that a stampede was imminent. Frank Hitchcock, Taft's manager, moved about the floor smiling as the tumult was at its height. "The cheers for Roosevelt today will be for Taft tomorrow," said he with confidence. With a subsidence of the Roosevelt storm

Senator Lodge completed his stirring speech, in which he made the statement that any one attempting to use the name of the President for renomination was no friend of Theodore Roosevelt's. The full force of the demonstration lasted forty-five minutes. Then the convention turned to the reports of other committees. That on rules and order of business brought a majority report against a resolution offered by James Burke, of Pennsylvania, reducing the representation in States to a basis of the Republican vote by those States. A sharp contest occurred on this question. The resolution was finally defeated by a vote of 506 against 471. Tomorrow's session opens at 10 o'clock in the morning instead of noon, as heretofore, so that a full day may be had for a discussion of principles and men. The platform is expected to go before the convention early in the day, and its adoption will be followed by speeches placing in nomination candidates for President.

[By Associated Press.]
CHICAGO, June 17.—The second day of the Republican National Convention brought the long-expected Roosevelt yell, amid a whirlwind of enthusiasm which raged within the vast amphitheater of the Coliseum for fully forty-five minutes today, for the time presenting to the timid the specter of a Roosevelt stampede. This demonstration was decidedly the feature of the day, otherwise notable for the stirring speech of the permanent chairman of the convention, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts.

Probably the most important act of the day, and one having the greatest significance on the final result of the convention was the adoption of the report of the committee on credentials, seating Taft delegations practically in toto. Equally important and even more remarkable was the final acceptance of this result by the "allies" without the formality of dissenting minority report and without carrying the question to the floor of the convention for open fight which has long been threatened. Favorite sons still have, however, their hands of steadfast supporters, who will show loyalty when the first ballot is taken.

SIGNIFICANT STATEMENT IS PUT FORWARD

CHICAGO, June 17.—"If the Republican convention deliberately refuses to adopt a platform on which Secretary Taft feels he can make a winning race, the Republican convention will have to nominate a man who needs no platform to win." While this statement is not put forward as an actual ultimatum, it is the principal weapon which the advocates of the injunction plank are using to compel such a declaration. It is their last resort, and the momentous import of the alternative implied presents more strikingly than could anything else the desperate straits to which the supporters of the injunction declaration have been driven by the persistent fight that has been made against it. The statement quoted was made tonight by a member of the subcommittee which is preparing the platform, who is both friendly to Roosevelt and Taft. It was the result of a careful analysis of the situation made after twenty-four hours of almost continuous service in the committee rooms and undoubtedly presented his view of the situation. Beginning at 10 o'clock today, the subcommittee resumed its work in the hope of completing it by 4 o'clock, the time set for the meeting of the full committee, but when the time came the subcommittee was compelled to report that it was unprepared to present a report, and the full committee took an adjournment until 9 o'clock. At time the subcommittee was found to be still undecided, and another adjournment was taken. A modified injunction plank was agreed to by the subcommittee on resolutions at 10 o'clock tonight which completed the platform and the full committee immediately was called into session to consider the document as perfected. The phraseology of its provisions are somewhat changed, but not so as to materially alter its purport. The subcommittee decided not to recommend a plank favoring the admission of Arizona and New Mexico as States.

FAIRBANKS OR CUMMINS PREDICTED

CHICAGO, June 17.—The promulgation of a letter from Vice-President Fairbanks to Joseph Keating, his political manager, reiterating his "irrevocable determination" not to be again a candidate for the office he now holds was the most important development of the day with the Vice-Presidential nomination. A similar letter was written by the Vice-President to Senator Hemenway. Accordingly there were many prophecies after the promulgation of the letter, as before that it was thought the Vice-President would in the end be called to succeed himself. It is confidently asserted he would decline a unanimous nomination.

MINERS MAY TAKE DARK HORSE

(By Associated Press.)
GRAND JUNCTION, Colo., June 17.—Replying to a rumor that he and William D. Haywood were rivals for the office of president of the Western Federation of Miners, Charles H. Moyer, who now holds the office, said yesterday that he was not a candidate for re-election. "I am not," said Moyer, "a candidate for re-election, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding. I am on the best of terms with Haywood and I am not sure that Haywood is running and incline to the belief that a third man—a dark horse—will be named."

ARGUMENTS IN RAILROAD CASES

Both the Government and defendants will file briefs covering the legal points raised during the arguments.
