EDITORIAL COMMENT.

MONEY IN ABUNDANCE.

A resume of the large amounts to be disbursed by corporations of various kinds at the beginning of the fiscal year and other intelligence points to an abundance, if not a plethora, of money. It is estimated that the disbursements of interests and dividends, which represent semi-annual payments, will exceed $195,000,000, all of which will soon be seeking an investment if the prosperity clubs formed throughout the country succeed in creating the state of mind which makes the possessors of ready money desirous of increasing their wealth and incidentally the amount available for expenditure, says the San Francisco Chronicle.

Much confidence is expressed in Eastern financial circles that this desired feeling will soon become general, but it is qualified in some cases by the opinion that there can be no revival of the activity which prevailed in all branches of industry prior to the money stringency which set in and continued during a couple of months last winter, until the political uncertainty is ended by the election of Taft. Little doubt concerning the outcome finds expression in well-informed quarters, but the fact is not lost sight of that there is a large part of the population which does not come in that category, and fears are entertained that the threat to disturb the existing tariff laws may be carried out with disastrous effect to manufacturing and other industries.

Of course, there is no possibility of any scheme of revision along the lines demanded by the free traders being put through. The Republican majority in the Senate insures the country against such a calamity; but the fact cannot be concealed that the agitation which would result if by any chance the Democrats secured control of the House would create that excess of caution which inevitably results in an arrest of progress in this country.

The material prosperity of the United States depends upon the restoration of complete confidence. The formation of clubs to bring about that feeling, testifies to the existence of this belief, and while economists may question the soundness of the assumption that it is as important a factor as many business men assume it to be, they will not, on the other hand, dispute the proposition that distrust is absolutely fatal to efforts, which, like most large undertakings of the present age, depend upon stability of conditions for their success.

This being the case, it seems almost unthinkable that the American people will deliberately vote to bring about an era of uncertainty by electing a majority of Democrats to the lower house of Congress. The inevitable result of such a partial success would be continued agitation for a change of the nation's fiscal policy and incessant political squabbles of the kind which cause uneasiness in business circles and bring about a national state of mind incomparable with the modern scheme of the rapid development of resources.

Editor Wattersdn talks editorially of the sheath skirt, and says: "Generally speaking, the abbreviations in costume which awaken protest from the pulpit are those grossly exaggerated by the press. Just as the cartoonist makes a 'Merry Widow' hat nine yards wide, instead of nine and a half feet—the exact measurement—the humorist's pen punches a great many extra air holes in the peek-a-boo shirtwaist and reams out the same until the garment appears, in print, shockingly immodest. The mind of the habitual 'kicker,' gradually absorbing caricature rather than truth, becomes possessed of the idea that the peek-a-boo shirtwaist constitutes a national scandal in summer, as great as that created in winter by the ball gown that is cut a few degrees lower by the humorist than it is by the modiste. The world will not be sent helter-skelter to the devil by the change of the cut of a skirt, or the fabric of a shirtwaist.

ROGERS TALKS OF HIS CANDIDACY

GOLDFIELD, June 30.—A special to the Reno Gazette says: Attorney Rogers, who is better known as Rogers of the Rogers Leasing Syndicate, which has made phenomenal strikes in its ground recently, announced today that he is definitely in the fight for the Republican nomination for Congress.

"I think the South is entitled to the nomination this time, as two years ago it went to Washoe," said Mr. Rogers. "I am desirous of obtaining the nomination and believe that I can be elected. I understand that Washoe is claiming the honor, but I have assurance from the South and from the eastern part of the State that they will stand for me. I also heard that there was a little division in the ranks of the Washoe Republicans on this question, and have had advices to the effect that they will be willing to compromise on a Southern man.

"In regard to a joking statement made by me a couple of weeks ago about suing the Southern Pacific for $50,000,000, I wish to state that the interview was grossly twisted. I made a statement in a joking manner, and upon that a garbled serious interview was published. I shall not make my campaign on any radical platform.

"I expect soon to go to Reno, and may also visit other parts of the State."

SAN FRANCISCO MAN IN HUMBOLDT

John J. Lynch, a San Francisco mining promoter, was in the city over Sunday. Seen at the Lafayette Saturday by the Silver State News regarding his proposed operations in Humboldt County, Mr. Lynch said:

"For several years I have confined my operations in Southern Nevada, but after several visits to this section I have decided to change my base of operations to Humboldt County, and shall shortly establish headquarters in Winnemucca. My first venture will be in Spaulding Canyon, in the East range, 35 miles south of town. Here a party of San Francisco and Eastern capitalists, whom I represent, will establish a new mining district, which will, in all probability, be named the Yellowstone. Mr. Fox, a Tonopah civil engineer, will join me here tomorrow and we shall immediately start for the canyon, where we shall make surveys and establish a new townsite.

In my judgment Humboldt County is on the eve of a great mineral development. I expect to see more money invested in development work in this country within the next year than the aggregate of the present investment. By this I do not mean a speculation in stocks, but money spent for actual work."

"Upon what do you base your opinion, Mr. Lynch?" queried the scribe.

"I have just returned from a trip through the East and Middle States," was the reply, "and found that the eyes of the mining world were focused on this State. Some time ago it was impossible to secure attention from any one when you commenced to talk Nevada, but on this trip I found that moneyed men everywhere evinced a deep interest in the State and its mining resources."

"How did you find times generally in the East, Mr. Lynch?"

"Very much improved, especially in the States of the Middle West, which are in better shape than those in the far East or on the Pacific Coast."

"How do the people in the country like the nominations at Chicago?" was the next question.

"In the case of the Presidential nomination the expected happened, and all Republicans, at least, seem satisfied. Taft's nomination was a landslide, and while I have always been a Democrat, I look for another landslide in November that will land him in the White House."

Messrs. Lynch and Fox left for Spaulding Canyon Sunday.

TAKE LEASE ON AN OLD PROPERTY

The old Willard-McDonald Mine, near Mountain House, has been leased again, this time by Rawhide mining men who are preparing to work the property on an extensive scale. They expect to begin active operations within a week and push them rapidly. Ed Donovan, well known in this city, recently had a lease on the property and took out some ore, running it through the two stamp mill at the place, but he could not get pay stuff, and threw up the job in disgust.

The mine is one of the best-known in the State of Nevada, and according to the stories told, the original owners, Willard and McDonald, both old prospectors of Nevada and now dead, took out at least $150,000 from the property. Their wealth slipped rapidly through their fingers; in fact, neither of the owners appeared to care for an accumulation of the lucre as whenever they secured a small amount of cash, the distribution began lavishly and continued until the funds were exhausted. Then it was back to the mine to stamp out more bullion. The rich ore was found in streaks and kidneys, and it is claimed that for several days at one time the little two-stamp mill pounded away incessantly turning out the golden product at the rate of $100 the hour. A. W. Clark, of this city, was engineer at the mine during that period.

But McDonald and Willard, well known here, where they were frequent visitors during the old days, have long since passed over the great range and the property passed into other hands. At present the mine is owned by J. R. Johnson, C. W. Dake, J. Simons and Frank Fettle, all of Genoa, and is regarded as one of the best-looking properties in the State. —Carson News.
