ONE SIDE ONLY.

Edward H. Harriman has completed his trip from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic and naturally has left a wake of newspaper interviews and comments. Perhaps there was nothing the railroad magnate said that stands out more prominently than his interview in Chicago. In the windy city the head of the great Harriman system calmly informed the country that its greatest need is not railroad regulation, but government regulation. There is nothing the matter with the railroads, according to the Little Wizard. The entire fault lies with the government and once the government is remodeled to run without conflicting with the rights of the railroads all will be lovely.

Possibly were we in Mr. Harriman's shoes our opinion, as well as those of a few other million of individual citizens, would coincide with his. The only fault to find with the Harriman argument is the fact of his looking at the question from one side only.

The first thing Edward H. would do if he could superintend the job of remodeling this government of ours would be to provide us with some other kind of a senate than "a senate of inebriates" and "a house of demagogues." He would correct some abuses in the office of the attorney general, too. The head of the legal department under Roosevelt was anarchistic. Edward H. says so.

Mr. Harriman might have saved a lot of breath if he had done less criticizing and confined himself to the simple statement that the only thing the matter with the country is that the government is attempting to control the railroads when the only plan to follow—from his viewpoint—is to have the railroads run the government. There is another change which he seems to have overlooked, but that might benefit the country if given a fair trial and that is a little more representation for the people and a little less for "special interests."—Ely Expositor.

JUST SUPPOSING.

Supposing that you had purchased one of those latest creations in millinery and thought it to be the swellest thing in existence?

Supposing you had called in all of your near and dear friends and had exhibited this wonderful piece of head gear.

Supposing they just simply raved over it and asked the price, where you purchased it and said you looked just too sweet for anything when you tried it on.

Supposing you donned that lid a dozen times a day and posed before the mirror and wondered what the men folks would say when you appeared on the streets Easter day.

Supposing you called on your lady friends and admired their Easter bonnets just the same as they did yours.

And then suppose that the minister issued an order that all ladies would have to ditch their sky pieces when they attend the Easter services.

SAY—Wouldn't that make you rave.

FLORISTS ARE HAVING HARD TIME FILLING ORDERS

LARGE DEMAND DOES NOT KEEP TONOPAH FROM RECEIVING SHARE.

Rotholtz brothers have received the most complete and choice assortment of Easter flowers ever placed on sale in this city. They state that the demand for flowers this year is nearly twice that of last year and the florists in California are having a hard time filling orders, but owing to having placed their requisition some time in advance, they received the best in the market. Another large assortment will be received on the noon train today and all orders will be filled promptly. The flowers will also be delivered to any part of the town.

JEFFRIES WILL RE-ENTER RING IN SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—Jack Gleason, the fight promoter, received a telegram tonight that Jeffries will fight first in this city if he re-enters the ring.

DOCTOR DON'TS.

Don't breathe through your mouth. The nose is the natural organ for breathing. The air becomes modified before it gets to the lungs, where if you breathe through the mouth it goes direct to the lungs, and may produce catarrh, tonsillitis or pneumonia.

Don't read in bed with a light burning, as the light burns up all the oxygen and renders the air very impure. The blood and nerves require plenty of oxygen to keep them in a healthy condition.

Don't sleep over a damp cellar with decomposing articles in it, as it will surely produce sickness.

Don't sleep in a room that has not been thoroughly aired and the dust removed. The sunlight destroys the germs. Rooms should have plenty of air at night. If you sleep in a cold room you are not so liable to take cold when you get out.

Don't be an idler. Have something to do and aim to do it well. Don't take your troubles to bed with you and don't take them up in the morning. Live to do good; try to make those around you happy, and in doing so make yourself happy.

U. S. SECRETARY OF WAR RESPONDS

letter to the queen of Netherlands. Twenty-six nations participated, represented by 100 members. The first convention was "for the peaceful adjustment of international difference." The signatory powers to the convention agreed to use their best efforts to insure the pacific settlement of international differences.

"All the powers represented at the conference," he said, "signed it. They govern nine-tenths of the world, representing a population of 1,400,000,000 out of the total of 1,600,000,000 of the earth's inhabitants.

"As Americans, whose government has always been in the advance guard contending for humanitarian principles," continued the secretary, "we take a laudable pride in the fact that the United States proposed to our sister republic of Mexico to submit to the Hague tribunal the Pious fund controversy, the first case brought under its authority. That Japan and Russia, two of the signatory powers, plunged into war without resorting to the Hague tribunal, gives no ground for serious concern as to the future of arbitration. No one but a dreamer ever expected all war to be abolished. It was manifest that there was no place for arbitration between Russia and Japan."

Speaking of the Hague conference of 1907 which was called by the czar of Russia upon the initiative of President Roosevelt, the secretary of war said it was participated in by forty-four sovereigns, and was the first general conference of practically all the powers of the world. At this conference thirteen conventions, four declarations and three wishes were adopted. Mr. Dickinson discussed the recent conventions, one of which was that signed in February, 1909, at London by delegates of ten of the principal maritime powers of the world which was for the regulation of warfare at sea. A distinct triumph for the cause of international arbitration, continued the war secretary, was gained when France and Germany agreed to submit to the Hague the questions arising out of the Casablanca affair. The questions involved were more or less of what is termed "national honor." A special agreement was signed by the United States and Great Britain on January 27, 1909, submitting to arbitration to the Hague the controversy as to the north Atlantic coast (or north-eastern) fisheries.

"There can be no disarmament until the greater powers agree upon a system of concurrent action," said Secretary Dickinson, in concluding. "The tide of public sentiment all over the world is setting strongly in this direction. Looking to the progress in peace measures of the last hundred, and especially the last twenty years, the hope may well be entertained that disarmament will become a reality, and that the people may enjoy not only the blessings of peace, but the blessings of peace without the crushing burden of preparedness for war.

GOOD PROGRAM PRESENTED AT THE BUTLER

HOUSE WAS PACKED AT LAST EVENING'S PERFORMANCE.

The Butler theater was packed to the doors last evening by an appreciative audience to witness the change of program. The show that was put on Monday night was regarded by theater-goers as the best ever presented in Tonopah and one that would do credit to a large city. The change last evening is considered equal to the performance of the early part of the week and is one that will draw crowded houses. Manager Bayliss has installed a handsome electrical display over the front part of the house, and the building now resembles the play houses of the metropolitan cities.

HAS HIS FOOT CRUSHED BY A HEAVY IRON DOOR

EMPLOYEE OF MONTANA-TONOPAH MILL RECEIVES PAINFUL INJURY.

While at work cleaning one of the tube mills at the Montana-Tonopah mill yesterday afternoon George Miller had his left foot and ankle seriously crushed by having one of the iron tube mill doors fall upon his foot, the door falling from the top of the mill where it had been placed. Miller was immediately taken to the Miners' Union hospital, where the injured limb was dressed by Dr. Maxon. As a result he will be confined to his bed for a number of weeks.
