NOT SO BAD AFTER ALL.

It is estimated that now the cost of building the Panama canal will be in the neighborhood of $500,000,000.

At the beginning, when engineers who knew all about it, took the people into their confidence and told them all about it, they made the maximum figures $135,000,000 and said that in all probability the canal cost would not exceed $117,000,000.

How wise these engineers are, and how much they know of their business, and how accurately they can figure expense and cost.

But even so, the canal may not be a bad thing even if it does cost this immense sum.

And the cost of maintenance will be considerable. There will be a great many United States salaried officials drawing big pay down there.

The revenue derived from ships going through, it is reasonable to calculate, will not much more than meet these expenses.

The interest on $500,000,000 at 2 per cent will be $10,000,000 anyway. This, the government will have to pay whether the canal is conducted at a profit or loss.

But in the face of these figures, still we say that the canal may not be a bad thing.

We build annually a couple of battleships, and under modern arrangements, the cost of each is $10,000,000, and apart from that, we have to pay annually, the salaries of the men who man it; keep it in repair; buy coal for it, and pay the operating expenses, so that one battleship a year costs us really more than the Suez canal.

In other words, if Uncle Sam were to create a sinking fund of $500,000,000 for the equipment and maintenance of a navy, if he were to create a sinking fund of five times that amount, the revenue from that fund would not keep up our navy.

We believe the Panama canal will be worth more to the United States and the world, than a battleship, so that if we estimate its value on any theory like that of the creation and maintenance of a navy, the credits will all stand on the canal side.

ANDREW CARNEGIE.

Andrew Carnegie was in Paris recently, and he was feted, wined, and dined, cheered, and medaled, and he was thanked by the president of the republic for his gift of a million dollars to a hero fund, and for his other liberal contributions to French institutions. But it was not Carnegie that earned the honors; it was the dollars that Carnegie gave, and all of the fuss and feathers were occasioned by the gifts, and not by the man who made the gifts.

So many make the mistake of thinking they are loved and respected and honored for what they are, when, as a matter of fact, the attentions paid them are all because of what they have, and what they have given, and what is hoped and expected they have yet to give.

Of course, those who are chasing contributions from rich men, pay this kind of a tribute to one rich man in order that other rich men may be stimulated to generosity.

LA FOLLETTE AND OTHERS.

In all probability La Follette of Wisconsin will be the only Republican in the United States senate who will vote against the Aldrich tariff bill.

In all probability, La Follette will be one of the very few Republican congressmen and senators from the middle west that will be their own successors.

The rates proposed by the Payne-Aldrich bill are higher than those in force now, and for this, in the face of the many promises to reduce the tariff, the people of the country, even the Republicans will not stand.

CONTINUOUS WORK AT HARRIS MILL

SECOND SHIFT WILL BE ADDED TO LIVELY LITTLE PLANT AT DARBY, NEV.

Shipments to the Darby, Nevada, Ore Reduction company, known as the Harris mill, are commencing to come in such quantities as to insure the continuous operation of the mill if no more ore is opened up for months to come. The mill has been running one shift ever since it was completed about a month ago, in order to get it broken in, and the first of the week a second shift will be added. E. H. Simonds, who is temporarily in charge, said yesterday that the third shift will be put on practically simultaneously with the second.

The mill is now running on Florence ore, and judging from the plates the ore is of high grade. Shipments from this mine will continue to come in regularly.

By the first of the week ore teams will start hauling Fairview ore over and at least 1000 tons will be included in this shipment. The ore which is being shipped is locally called “dump ore;” that is, ore that would not stand shipment to the smelter. However, there is some rich rock in it, and the whole lot is of a good milling grade.

Besides these two there is now in the bins, ore from the Hero Nevada and Prior-Chadbourne lease.

While the shipments enumerated have been from the larger properties, yet the results are bound to furnish added incentive to the small holders, and already many of them are having tests made and will make shipments soon.—Seven Troughs Miner.

LOOK OUT FOR MEXICAN.

Handbills were scattered throughout the city yesterday “Look out for the Mexican.” Everybody wanted to know what it meant. But nobody seemed to know the true meaning of the dodger until Charlie Patterson came along and made everybody wise by telling them to watch the columns of the Bonanza in a day or two and they would learn what “Look out for the Mexican” really signified. The Bonanza will tell all its readers. In the meantime prepare your guesses, and see if you are right.

Mrs. H. C. Brougher will arrive from Goldfield this morning, where she has been on a visit to her mother for the past week.

NOTICE

A report has been circulated about town that the cause of the change in the S. F. Examiner agency was the non-payment of bills. I wish to contradict this statement and offer in evidence the bills for the past year regularly and promptly paid. Furthermore the Examiner was protected by a $500 Indemnity Bond and had recourse to same at any time should the bills have become delinquent.
