

SUFFERING FROM HALLUCINATIONS BUTCHER COMMITS SUICIDE

John D. Mollar Ends Existence Yesterday Morning by Hanging Himself.

Suffering from hallucinations that he was in danger of being arrested and prosecuted for a trivial act that occurred several years ago, John D. Mollar suicided yesterday morning by hanging himself in the rear of the Metropolitan market. The body, still warm, was discovered by Frank B. Hill, an employee of the market at 6:30 o'clock, who immediately notified Chief of Police Malley and coroner H. H. Atkinson. An inquest was held yesterday afternoon and a verdict returned stating that the deceased had killed himself while temporarily insane.

Mollar was aged about 45 years and was a native of Germany, his parents residing in the land of his birth. For the past ten days he has been worrying and about a week ago he confided his imaginary troubles to J. Stenuff, manager of the Metropolitan. Mollar said that five or six years ago when he was employed by a cattle firm near Stockton, Cal., he lost his situation by a strike and in anger against his employers, who hired Japanese, he slashed a number of hides which were completely ruined. He feared that the owners of the hides were seeking revenge and labored under the impression that he was being spied upon. He asked advice as to whether he could be indicted and punished for the act and was told to let the cattle men take such action as they deemed best. Several days ago he stated that he had a dream in which someone had told him that he was crazy. He asked Mr. Stenuff regarding his mental condition and was assured that no one about the place charged him with being mentally deranged. Mollar then said that he was going to quit and go to Stockton to pay for the damage to the hides, but a day or so after this declaration, he changed his mind.

Yesterday morning he arose at the usual time and after eating his breakfast, left the Montana cafe a few minutes before 8 o'clock. It is supposed that he went straight to the market where his mind became suddenly deranged. Mollar secured a rope and after tying one end to a rafter, mounted a barrel, adjusted the noose around his neck and then jumped to his death. A laceration on the throat lead several to believe that the deceased first attempted to cut his throat, but the wound was not of sufficient depth to resemble an incision made by a knife. It is thought to have been made by the rope. Mollar's parents in Germany were notified of the death and the authorities will wait several days before making the funeral arrangements. About $190 was found in the pockets of the deceased.

MANY JOIN IN THE SEARCH FOR MISSING HAT

MYSTERY SURROUNDS SUDDEN DISAPPEARANCE OF CHERISHED BONNET.

While the party of local men were exploring the underground workings of the Belmont mine yesterday an unfortunate accident happened that marred the enjoyment of the afternoon. James Morris of the Miner was among those present, and as the journey through the different drifts progressed, James continued to shed his clothing. After dispensing with the use of his three shirts he finally decided to continue on without his hat and left that article in one of the drifts, or at least thought he did. When the return journey commenced Mr. Morris started to gather up his articles of clothing. He found everything except his hat. The drifts were searched with no result. A careful investigation of the station revealed no hat. And even on the surface no trace could be found of the head gear. At last Jimmy was forced to return home in a borrowed sky piece that resembled one of the little dinky lids usually worn by the rah rah boys.

Late last night one of the Belmont employees telephoned Mr. Morris that an assay had just been received that showed a trace of hat, and this may possibly lead to the recovery of the missing lid.

L. GUFFA BRINGS A SUIT TO RECOVER ALLEGED BILL FOR SERVICES.

Claiming that he was engaged by John Salsbery of the Tonopah Lumber company at a monthly salary of $150 and that he was directed to sell two automobiles, for which he was to receive $200 commission, L. Guffa, a chauffeur, is represented by his attorneys today in the district court before Judge Pike, in the trial of the case of L. Guffa against John Salsbery, says the Gazette.

Argument is being made upon a motion to strike out certain portions of the amended answer and the demurrer to the defendant's answer and counter claim, and the issue is being vigorously fought by counsel representing both parties to the action.

Guffa claims that he was employed under that contract for 11 months and that Salsbery owes him $1,371.75 or about half of the total amount due him for the entire time. He also alleges that the $100 for selling the machines have not as yet been paid him.

This case is yet being fought at every stage of the proceedings and will undoubtedly occupy the attention of the court for some time.
