

STRIKE BREAKERS FIRE INTO CROWDS INJURING SIX PERSONS

Nonunion Laborers Nearly Incite Riot by Shooting Inoffensive Bystanders Stated that Many Union Men Return to Work Disappointed at the Failure of the General Strike.

By Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, March 8.—Six persons, including a young girl, were wounded tonight by bullets fired by a party of strike breakers who rode wildly up and down Frankfort avenue on a trolley car and shot into the crowds. After a lull in the rioting the stoning of the cars was renewed tonight. A stone thrown from a crowd injured a strike breaker. Infuriated at this fifteen of his comrades took out a car, all the windows of which they broke. As the car sped down the avenue bullets were rained at the jeering crowd. Helen May, aged 14, was struck in the leg by a bullet; John Maloney, aged 18, and Michael Osborn, aged 24, were also shot in the legs. Frank Bremley, aged 23, received a bullet in the foot. The strike breakers escaped to the car barn. The shooting of inoffensive bystanders worked the crowd to a high pitch of excitement and as other cars came along the mob wrecked several. There were a few minor outbreaks in the down town district. The announcement that the plants, representing seventy-five percent of the hosiery manufactures of Philadelphia would close Monday was the most important development in the strike situation today. It was followed by the intimation that if the employees did not return to work by that time the mills might remain closed down until fall.

While accessions to the strikers were reported from manufacturing plants there were many reports of strikers returning to work. Manufacturers have declared that many of the union men were disappointed by the failure of a general strike to make the car company arbitrate. The union leaders have denied this. C. O. Pratt, the car men's leader, addressed a crowd of several hundred today. He declared that if an outdoor demonstration was allowed it would assume proportions that would surprise the country. One interesting development today was the appeal by the officials of the Philadelphia baseball club to the strike leaders. They asked that the union men employed on the ball grounds making improvements be allowed to continue. The petition is being considered.

AYLWARD STRIKES ORE IN LEASE.

Jack Aylward, manager of the lease on the Mayflower, lately has been doing the work of his life. With the aid of the compressor and drills of the Mayflower, he has made 72 feet in 14 days with two shifts of men, and is now about five feet within the limits of his leased block. He not only has done good work for the company, but also for the Mayflower company; for he has opened a good grade of milling ore within Mayflower territory and also has it in his lease, and it seems that it will only be a question of a little distance when he will open high-grade. There is none more steady and persistent upon a well studied theory than Jack, unless it be Rube Bryan. And success waits upon both of them.—Rhyolite Herald.

Witnesses before Senate Committee Deny Agreement Between Packers

New York Businessmen Say that Competition is so Keen Retailers Cannot Keep Pace With Prices.

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 8.—Retail meat dealers today placed upon the farmers and packers the responsibility for the high price of meat in giving testimony before the senate committee investigating the increased cost of living. All the retailers called as witnesses admitted that competition made prices low and denied that there was any agreement between the retailers. It was declared there is no competition between the packers.
John Robinson, who conducts a market in New York, told the committee that competition was so keen in New York between the retailers that they were unable to keep pace with the steadily increased prices which the wholesalers forced upon them. He said the increases in the last fifteen years had amounted to four cents a pound on beef both to retailers and consumers. When questioned regarding the price of staple groceries S. H. Harrison, of Baltimore, said it had increased. When he suggested that he had been forced to quit handling a cheaper grade of green tea because of the tariff, Smoot interrupted. "The tariff had nothing to do with it, it was the pure food laws."

The witness said there had been a ten per cent increase in groceries in which his firm dealt, during the last five years. Harrison said the Elgin market controlled the butter prices. He declared the price recently dropped six cents a pound without any explanation but had again advanced two cents.

"Goodness!" he exclaimed, "what an awful waste!"
The stout woman turned round and glared at the little man and said sternly, "Mind your own business!"

The next president may be elected on the vegetarian ticket.

CARNEGIE DISCUSSES FUTURE EXISTENCE

By Associated Press.
SANTA BARBARA, Cal., March 8.—Andrew Carnegie discussed the future life in an interview just before his departure for Del Monte, where he is to stay a few days.

"I highly disapprove of the recent utterances upon future life," said he, referring to the symposium by Henry James, W. D. Howells and others. "I was asked to contribute to that series, but refused. My great teacher on that is Plato, who described vividly what was then thought would happen after death, and then say that 'to affirm that all these things will take place just as I have recorded them would not become a man of sense, but we should cherish ideas of immunity, alluring ourselves as with enchantments, as the reward is noble and the hope great.'"

"Our duties lie in this world, and the man who performs them has nothing to fear hereafter. It is too bad to say anything to shatter the hope of any man or woman who prays that faith in future life be strengthened."
Carnegie said the world no longer believed in God, who told us to love our enemies while damning his. The old testament was written by the Jews, who described God as they saw him.

Carnegie declared any break between Roosevelt and Taft because of the Pinchot affair was out of the question. He said: "Pinchot is well meaning, zealous, and self-sacrificing and a fine type. We need more like him, but he does not seem to have much of the give and take"

He predicted that Roosevelt would not become the speaker of the house or accept any office, as he could be more useful as a private citizen.

Carnegie declared he often had considered an endowed newspaper, as advocated by Professor Ross of Wisconsin university in a recent article. He said he had turned it down, as no one would read an endowed paper as the element of personality in a newspaper is too important. "If I went into newspaper work I would own and edit my own paper."

Mr. Carnegie will speak at a chamber of commerce banquet in San Francisco Friday night and will leave Monday for Pasadena, where he will remain for one week before starting east.
