

BACK ON THE RANGE

"Teddy" Arrives In Cheyenne for Cowboys' Carnival and Engages In Old Time Sports

ANOTHER ONE AGAINST UNIONS

By Associated Press
NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Parades of protest broke out all over the East Side this afternoon on receipt of the news that Justice Goff had ruled in the state supreme court today that a strike which demanded a "closed shop" is a conspiracy in restraint of trade. The band of 60,000 cloakmakers now on strike marched through the streets and then to the city hall, shouting, "Closed shop!" at every step. There was no violence.

Justice Goff's decision granted injunctions to members of the Manufacturers' Protective association to restrain acts of violence and threats of picketing and patrolling by the strikers.

"The primary purpose of this strike," reads the decision, "is not to better the condition of the workmen, but is to deprive other men of an opportunity of their right to work."

RICH SWINDLERS MUST COME TO TRIAL AT ONCE

By Associated Press
CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Attorneys for three high officials of the Illinois Central railroad, Frank B. Harriman, John W. Taylor and Charles L. Ewing, received a setback the first day of their criminal trial today when Judge Bruggenmeyer refused them a bill of particulars on a charge of venue. The men are charged with having mulcted the railroad of more than a million dollars through inflated car repair bills.

SHOWERS BOUQUETS ON PRESIDENT TAFT

Behind His Pleasant Smile, These is Courage, Stability and Firmness, Says Sherman.

By Associated Press
CLINTON, Ill., Aug. 27.—Vice President Sherman made this city his first stopping place on the trip which is to carry him through Missouri and Oklahoma. He declined to talk politics, but eulogized Taft as a patriot.

OKLAHOMA CONGRESSMAN IS AMPLY VINDICATED

By Associated Press
PAWHUSKA, Okla., Aug. 27.—At the conclusion of the hearing today the special house committee investigating Indian affairs, issued a letter to Congressman B. S. McGuire of Oklahoma, exonerating him and setting forth that "there was no evidence whatever to sustain any charge or suggestion that you had or have any interest whatever in the so-called McMurray contracts or in any other Indian contracts."

NYE COUNTY BALLOTS WILL BE CORRECT

The official ballots for some of the larger counties of the state have already been printed, and by the latest decision of the supreme court, they must be printed over again if the mandates of the court have not been followed. To do this now, and get them distributed to the various precincts in time for the election is a task that will require the fastest automobile in Nevada. It is also doubtful if there is enough official ballot paper to duplicate the job in some of the counties.

LABOR DAY.

The Sparks Labor day committee has hung up a prize of $400 for the drilling contest; double-handed, $300, and single-handed, $100. All entries close September 3. Entry fees, $5 per team. For information, address J. H. Crowley, Sparks, Nevada. J. H. Murray, president of the Reno Central Trades and Labor council, who was chosen grand marshal of the day, has appointed the presidents of all organizations to act as his aides.

Rides Bronchos for Awhile and Makes One of the Speeches of His Career.

By Associated Press

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 27.—I'm here to see what you fellows can do on the hurricane deck of a broncho," Roosevelt said today as a group of cowboys, the hardest riders of the West, gathered about him mounted on their horses. The colonel saw all that the wild West today had to show him in the way of deeds of skill and daring and he said that the spirit of the West was still alive. As the colonel watched the cowboys at work, heard the Indians yell and saw familiar sights of more than a score of years ago, when he was a plainsman, the spirit of it all came over him again as he climbed from the flag-draped reviewing stand and mounted a big white horse. He galloped around the half-mile track of Frontier park once and then dismounted and went back to his place to see the rest of the fun.

There was no formality about Roosevelt day at Cheyenne. Thousands of cowboys, cowgirls and many Indians—some came hundreds of miles away to the thronged streets, which were crowded with men and women on horseback.

Roosevelt arrived shortly after 9 this morning, when a parade was held in his honor; an exhibition at the park followed, then came the dinner which Governor Brooks gave the former president. A smoker at the Industrial club and a theater party, both of which the colonel attended, wound up the day.

After the first few numbers on the program at Frontier park, Colonel Roosevelt was introduced by the governor. Roosevelt spoke of the old West now passing away and of the men it had developed. He told the people of the new West that they must preserve the same enthusiasm if the nation is to endure. He urged them to be progressive and remember, whether from the East or West, that every man must be a true American. "It will be a bad day for America—the end of America—if the average American loses the quality of being a dead game man." That caught the fancy of the cowboys, who cheered him.

Following in part is the ex-president's address:

"When, at the close of my hunting trip in Africa, I reached the borders of civilization, the first invitation I accepted was this, to visit the capital of Wyoming on the day when the people of the frontier came together to commemorate their achievements; I was glad it was so, because I have a peculiar feeling for the men and women of what used to be called the 'Far West,' and especially for those of the cattle country. For a number of years I lived on a ranch on the Little Missouri, sharing work and play, good fortune and bad fortune, with my neighbors; working on the roundup, serving as delegate from the Little Missouri roundup district to the Montana Stock Growers' association, and even at times acting as deputy sheriff at my end of the county. I count those years as among the most valuable of my life, because nothing breeds such community of feeling as to work with one's fellow men at their life tasks, and to learn to know their feelings by actually sharing them. The man of the West, throughout the successive stages of western growth, has always been one of the two or three most typical figures—indeed, I am tempted to say, the most typical figure—in American life, and no man can really understand our country and appreciate what it really is and what it promises, unless he has the fullest and closest sympathy with the ideals and aspirations of the West. The prime reason for this is to be found in the fact that the westerner is so good an American. He is an American first and foremost; for this is the great lesson, friends, that all of us need to learn and to keep—the lesson that it is unimportant whether a man lives north or south, east or west, provided he is genuinely and in good faith an American, that he feels every part of the United States as his own, and that he is honestly desirous to uphold the interests of all other Americans in whatever sections of the country they may dwell.

"A hundred years ago when men spoke of the West they meant the country between the Alleghanies and the Mississippi. Fifty years ago the white man's West took in Minnesota, Iowa and Kansas, and then skipped across to California and Oregon. The country of the great plains and the Rockies, the country in which you whom I am now addressing lead your lives and do your work, has grown up within my own lifetime. I myself saw and took part in the closing years of the pioneer period, and it was my great privilege to work side by side with the pioneers—the ranchmen, the miners, the cowpunchers, the muleskinners, the bullwhackers—who actually opened up the country. I have seen the herds and flocks of the cattlemen and sheepmen supplant the game; I have seen the fortunate movement by which the small farm has tended to gradually take the place of the great unfenced ranch. I now travel in every comfort on railroads across lands which when I first rode across them, were still the home of the Indian and the buffalo; and I find cities where one can obtain not merely comfort, but luxury, in the places where thirty years ago there was not a building beyond a log hut or adobe house. The men who did this work were engaged in the final stages of conquering the continent; and it was their privilege to do one of the great works of all time, to do their part in the performance of an epic feat in the history of the progress of mankind.

"I have used the word progress. The West stands for growth, for progress. So must the whole American people stand. A great democracy must be progressive, or it will soon cease to be either great or democratic. No nation, no state, no party, can stand still. It must either go forward or go backward; and it becomes useless if it goes backward. Therefore I greet you, men of the West, and I stand for progress as all men must stand who are progressive.

"The pioneers and their immediate successors won victory only by proving that they possessed the great, masterful qualities which lie at the foundation of national greatness. There are certain well-meaning men of intellectual cultivation, but lacking mental and moral robustness, who complain continually that they find American life, and especially the life of those American communities emerging from the pioneer stage, crude and without genius and beauty. Genius is a fine thing for a nation, but character is still a finer thing, and though beauty is good, strength is an even greater thing. The men who made this great republic of the West what it is, and especially the men who have turned it into a continental commonwealth, have possessed in the highest degree the great virtues of strength, courage, energy, and undaunted and unwavering resolution. Their typical leaders—of whom Abraham Lincoln, though the most exceptional, was the most typical—have possessed keen intelligence, and a character not merely strong but lofty, a character exalted by the fact that great power was accompanied by a high and fine determination to use this great power for the common good, for the advancement of mankind. The pioneer days are over, save in a few places; and the more complex life of today calls for a greater variety of good qualities than were needed on the frontier. There is need at present to encourage the development of new abilities which can be brought to high perfection only by a kind of training useless in pioneer times; but these new qualities can only supplement, and never supplant the old, homely virtues; the need for the special and distinctive pioneer virtues is as great as ever. In other words, as our civilization becomes older and more complex, while it is true that we need to develop men whose lives are devoted wholly to the pursuit of special objects, it is yet also true that we need a greater and not a less development of the fundamental frontier virtues. These virtues include the power of self-help, together with the power of joining with others for mutual help, and, what is especially important, the feeling of comradeship, of social good fellowship. Any man who had the good fortune to live among the old frontier conditions must, in looking back, realize how vital was this feeling of general comradeship and social fellowship. There were good men and bad men in the new communities, just as in the old

Minnesota, Iowa and Kansas, and then skipped across to California and Oregon. The country of the great plains and the Rockies, the country in which you whom I am now addressing lead your lives and do your work, has grown up within my own lifetime. I myself saw and took part in the closing years of the pioneer period, and it was my great privilege to work side by side with the pioneers—the ranchmen, the miners, the cowpunchers, the muleskinners, the bullwhackers—who actually opened up the country. I have seen the herds and flocks of the cattlemen and sheepmen supplant the game; I have seen the fortunate movement by which the small farm has tended to gradually take the place of the great unfenced ranch. I now travel in every comfort on railroads across lands which when I first rode across them, were still the home of the Indian and the buffalo; and I find cities where one can obtain not merely comfort, but luxury, in the places where thirty years ago there was not a building beyond a log hut or adobe house. The men who did this work were engaged in the final stages of conquering the continent; and it was their privilege to do one of the great works of all time, to do their part in the performance of an epic feat in the history of the progress of mankind.

"The pioneers and their immediate successors won victory only by proving that they possessed the great, masterful qualities which lie at the foundation of national greatness. There are certain well-meaning men of intellectual cultivation, but lacking mental and moral robustness, who complain continually that they find American life, and especially the life of those American communities emerging from the pioneer stage, crude and without genius and beauty. Genius is a fine thing for a nation, but character is still a finer thing, and though beauty is good, strength is an even greater thing. The men who made this great republic of the West what it is, and especially the men who have turned it into a continental commonwealth, have possessed in the highest degree the great virtues of strength, courage, energy, and undaunted and unwavering resolution. Their typical leaders—of whom Abraham Lincoln, though the most exceptional, was the most typical—have possessed keen intelligence, and a character not merely strong but lofty, a character exalted by the fact that great power was accompanied by a high and fine determination to use this great power for the common good, for the advancement of mankind. The pioneer days are over, save in a few places; and the more complex life of today calls for a greater variety of good qualities than were needed on the frontier. There is need at present to encourage the development of new abilities which can be brought to high perfection only by a kind of training useless in pioneer times; but these new qualities can only supplement, and never supplant the old, homely virtues; the need for the special and distinctive pioneer virtues is as great as ever. In other words, as our civilization becomes older and more complex, while it is true that we need to develop men whose lives are devoted wholly to the pursuit of special objects, it is yet also true that we need a greater and not a less development of the fundamental frontier virtues. These virtues include the power of self-help, together with the power of joining with others for mutual help, and, what is especially important, the feeling of comradeship, of social good fellowship. Any man who had the good fortune to live among the old frontier conditions must, in looking back, realize how vital was this feeling of general comradeship and social fellowship. There were good men and bad men in the new communities, just as in the old

"The pioneers and their immediate successors won victory only by proving that they possessed the great, masterful qualities which lie at the foundation of national greatness. There are certain well-meaning men of intellectual cultivation, but lacking mental and moral robustness, who complain continually that they find American life, and especially the life of those American communities emerging from the pioneer stage, crude and without genius and beauty. Genius is a fine thing for a nation, but character is still a finer thing, and though beauty is good, strength is an even greater thing. The men who made this great republic of the West what it is, and especially the men who have turned it into a continental commonwealth, have possessed in the highest degree the great virtues of strength, courage, energy, and undaunted and unwavering resolution. Their typical leaders—of whom Abraham Lincoln, though the most exceptional, was the most typical—have possessed keen intelligence, and a character not merely strong but lofty, a character exalted by the fact that great power was accompanied by a high and fine determination to use this great power for the common good, for the advancement of mankind. The pioneer days are over, save in a few places; and the more complex life of today calls for a greater variety of good qualities than were needed on the frontier. There is need at present to encourage the development of new abilities which can be brought to high perfection only by a kind of training useless in pioneer times; but these new qualities can only supplement, and never supplant the old, homely virtues; the need for the special and distinctive pioneer virtues is as great as ever. In other words, as our civilization becomes older and more complex, while it is true that we need to develop men whose lives are devoted wholly to the pursuit of special objects, it is yet also true that we need a greater and not a less development of the fundamental frontier virtues. These virtues include the power of self-help, together with the power of joining with others for mutual help, and, what is especially important, the feeling of comradeship, of social good fellowship. Any man who had the good fortune to live among the old frontier conditions must, in looking back, realize how vital was this feeling of general comradeship and social fellowship. There were good men and bad men in the new communities, just as in the old

"A hundred years ago when men spoke of the West they meant the country between the Alleghanies and the Mississippi. Fifty years ago the white man's West took in

INJURED WHILE RIDING ON TOP OF PASSENGER CAR

By Associated Press
REDDING, Cal., Aug. 27.—Two boys from Tacoma, George Vallier and Harry Goble, while riding on top of a passenger train on the Southern Pacific, were struck either by a tunnel roof or by some person unknown. Vallier is dead and Goble can give no clue to the cause of their injuries.

MOTHER SAVES INFANT FROM WATERY GRAVE

By Associated Press
SEDAN, Ky., Aug. 27.—For eight hours today Mrs. John Burch held her two-year-old child above the surface of the water in a cistern where the baby had fallen, until the return of the father. The child was not injured but the mother is in a dangerous condition.

FATAL TRAIN WRECK ON THE MISSOURI PACIFIC

By Associated Press
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Aug. 27.—In a head-on collision between two freight trains near Blackwater, west of here, five persons were killed today and one perhaps fatally injured.

MEN ARE LAID OFF.

By Associated Press
MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 27.—Fifteen thousand employes of the Amoskeag Cotton Manufacturing company were thrown out of work today when the seventeen mills of the plant closed down for a period of fifteen days. Curtailment of production was the reason given for the shutdown.

NO EXAGGERATION IN ESTIMATES OF DEAD

Impossible to Get Correct Figures of Fatalities Because of Death of Time-Keepers.

By Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 27.—Two hundred members of the Idaho militia were sent from their camps at Coeur d'Alene today to St. Joe to fight the forest fires which threatened to destroy the town. The railroad has one hundred men engaged and the Coeur d'Alene Timber association has a large force.

The fires on Marble creek, south of St. Joe, are also alarming.

Persons who returned today from the burning country say there is no exaggeration in the newspaper reports of the loss of life and destruction of property in the Montana and Idaho forest fires. On account of a number of time-keepers being burned to death, the forest service is unable to check up the men and say positively how many are missing. Of fifty injured men in the Wallace hospitals all bear scars and other marks which they will carry to their graves. Half of the patients are suffering from broken legs and arms. The number of injured in the whole fire country will run into the hundreds, and while all are said to be recovering from their injuries, in most cases the result will be disfigurement.

TAFT VISITING IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

By Associated Press.
DUBLIN, N. H., Aug. 27.—President Taft, accompanied by his wife and daughter, Miss Helen, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Lewis Moore, and Captain Butt, is the guest tonight of Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh. The trip from Beverly was made by automobile. The party expects to return to Beverly tomorrow afternoon.

POSTPONES HIS AERIAL FLIGHT

By Associated Press
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.—Captain Ivy Baldwin, who was scheduled to make an aeroplane flight across Golden Gate this morning, postponed the journey on account of high winds. He says he will make the ascent tomorrow morning, the weather permitting.

MIZPAH HOTEL ARRIVALS.

The following registered at the Mizpah yesterday: R. B. Ironside, San Francisco; L. L. Harding Los Angeles; George P. Boynton, Rhyolite; H. F. Garrett, Los Angeles; D. Grant, San Francisco; Mrs. D. S. Llewellyn, Round Mountain; Chas. A. Smith, Liberty.

REPUBLICANS SIT WITH DEMOCRATS

By Associated Press
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27.—The seating of four avowed Republican as delegates in a Democratic county convention today is one of the strange workings in California's first direct primary election law. The names of the men had been written in the districts where there were no Democratic nominees. Although the question was raised the credentials committee decided there was nothing in the primary law that covered the case. One of the delegates, J. R. Calahan, also a delegate to the Socialist convention, indicated today that he would not act. The four Republicans are Lincoln-Roosevelt leaguers.

ISSUE WARRANTS FOR WEALTHY MEN

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 27.—Federal warrants charging conspiracy to use the mails to defraud were issued today for the arrest of Clarence D. Hillman, a millionaire real estate man; Samuel S. Sutter, head salesman employed by Hillman; T. F. Kelley, manager of his Everett office, and H. C. Peet, who conducts another land agency.

Hillman and his associates are well known in local estate circles in the Puget Sound country, having established many townships.

Alleged irregularities in the advertisement of land sales led to an investigation of an inspector, who filed the information upon which the warrants were issued.

SUICIDES IN A FREIGHT CAR

By Associated Press
OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 27.—Lying in a boxcar in the freight yards, the body of J. S. Pond, of the Pacific Coast Artificial Stone company, of Los Angeles, was found tonight, death having resulted from a self-inflicted bullet wound in the head. His identification was made by papers found in his pockets.

ESTRADA RETIRES FROM PRESIDENCY

By Associated Press
MANAGUA, Aug. 27.—Jose Dolores Estrada, to whom President Adriz turned over the administration of the Nicaraguan government before fleeing the country, today retired from the presidency in favor of General Luis Mena, who is designated by him as the acting president of the republic.

ELGIN RACERS SMASH RECORDS

By Associated Press
ELGIN, Ill., August 27.—Ralph Aulford, driving a car that never faltered, won the greatest road race ever seen in the west today. He drove a 50-horse power Lozier 305.03 miles in four hours, fifty-two minutes and twenty-nine seconds, or at an average of 62.5 miles an hour. He ran 203 miles without a stop; then halted only because he was under a misapprehension as to one of his tires.

Albert Livingston and Albert Creiner, both piloting 440-horse power Nationals, finished second and third, respectively. The former's average was 60.2 miles an hour, the latter's 58.4. Eight of the fourteen starters were forced to stop before the finish on account of engine troubles. Among the noted drivers forced to retire were George Robertson, Barney Oldfield and Ray Harroun.

EXPLOSION AND FIRE IN OREGON

By Associated Press
WALLA WALLA, Wash., Aug. 27.—An explosion in the Peacock flour mill at Milton, Oregon, caused a fire tonight which totally destroyed the mill and a number of small buildings. For a time the entire city was threatened. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

SPECIAL LORIMER JURY TO INVESTIGATE BRIBES

By Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—In the trial of Lee O'Neil Browne, Democratic leader, charged with purchasing votes to elect William Lorimer to the United States senate, matters took a new turn yesterday when Judge Bretano ordered a special grand jury to assemble August 30 to investigate "charges of perjury and other matters."

The matter of jury tampering, resulting in extreme difficulty in obtaining a jury for the present case, will be investigated.

For neat printing cry the Bonanza job department.

5857