ROUNDING UP THE ELK; 4000 ARE SCATTERING

CAVALRYMEN TRYING TO PROTECT THEM, BUT HUNTERS ARE SLAUGHTERING

Cavalrymen from Fort Yellowstone, in the Yellowstone national park, are in the mountains near here, endeavoring to turn back about 4000 elk which, forced from their haunts in the Yellowstone park by the heavy snows, have wandered forth into the country bordering on this wonderland, and are falling prey by the wholesale to a small army of hunters. The closed season for Elk under the Montana statutes began Dec. 1, but on Nov. 29 a party of 200 hunters left Livingston, Mont., to intercept herds of Elk near the park boundary, and as a result 500 of the creatures were slain during the day. Pot hunters are to be found on every side, and the slaughter of elk, principally for their heads and the teeth, has been particularly heavy. Herds of magnificent animals are thus robbed of their males, a band of Elk composed of cows being a common sight. To the vigilance of the government troops and the stringent regulations of the Yellowstone park is due the credit for preserving the few remaining big herds of Elk in this country.

Every effort is made to keep the elk within the limits of the Yellowstone park, even to the extent of feeding the animals during the stress of severe winter weather, and patrols keep a sharp lookout for parties of poachers. The traffic in elk teeth is unfortunately heavy, and in the Jackson Hole country, in Wyoming, on the confine limits of the park, the game wardens are kept busy guarding the elk against the ravages of poachers. No sportsmanship is required to bag elk in the Yellowstone or within several miles of the park. The animals travel in herds of from a dozen to as many as a hundred, and as a rule can be shot down like so many cattle. Isolated bull elk show fight when cornered, but the cow elk are as timid as deer.

WEE BABY DOESN'T LIKE TO LIVE IN INCUBATOR

Tipping the scales at one and a half pounds, Joseph Reggs, one of the smallest bits of humanity to ever visit Los Angeles, arrived at the home of his parents, 713 Commercial street, a few days ago and at present is at the children's hospital. Joseph was so small that it was thought best to remove him to an incubator, but when the little fellow was placed in one of the artificial conservatories he raised such a row that he was taken out and placed in a little willow basket and wrapped in a handkerchief. He now promises to be one of the best babies in Los Angeles.

MEN DIE BY INCHES IN "HONEY POTS"

NEW GOLD FIELDS LURE FIVE MINERS TO LINGERING DEATH IN SWAMPS

An Ottawa, Canada, dispatch to the Salt Lake Tribune of Dec. 3, says:

Slowly sinking in a sea of mud, at least five men are known to have gone to death, swallowed up by the "honey pots" that lie around Frederick House lake, in the newly discovered gold mining region of northern Ontario.

The story has been brought from the new gold fields by W. R. McLeay, mining engineer and prospector of Montreal, who has spent the summer in the Timms district, and who, emaciated and gaunt visaged, has come back to civilization to recover his health.

Mr. McLeay says that just before he started outbound for his camp, the fall rains had converted a large of the district into sloughs and wide, deep patches of yielding, shak- ing soil. When he left camp a little more than two weeks ago, nearly everything eatable had been eaten, and starvation stared the miners in the face.

Some of the miners, in desperation, faced the perils of a long walk back to Bisco to bring back food, the general load being 100 pounds of provisions to the man, strapped on the back.

The most difficult and deadly part of the journey was along the shores of Frederick House lake, where there was an old Hudson Bay post.

"It was on this part of the trail," says McLeay, "that I saw, on my way out, two men with loads on their backs, slowly sinking down into the mud and disappearing from sight. Their cries and shrieks were frightful to hear. There were several others around, but we could do nothing for the two unfortunates, who were gradually engulfed before our eyes as we stood nearby absolutely helpless to afford any assistance.

"One man told me that he witnessed two stalwart fellows sink to their deaths under circumstances similar to those I have described, while we were told of a young lad who went to his doom in like manner, lower down the trail. It is quite probable that there were several others who met like fates."

FRANK NICHOLAS LEASES NEVADA HOTEL AT LAS VEGAS

Frank R. Nicholas, former state engineer and democratic candidate for governor before the primaries, has concluded negotiations with J. F. Miller for the lease of the Hotel Nevada, corner Main and Fremont streets.

Mr. Nicholas took over the management last Friday and will at once begin to execute his plans for making it one of the most popular first-class hostleries in the state. By the terms of the lease the new proprietor takes control of the hotel proper, the bar and the store rooms being reserved to the management of the owner. Mr. Nicholas will personally manage the hotel, with the exception of the bar, which he has placed under the management of J. E. Gilnaugh of Reno, who has had years of experience in conducting first-class places. Joe Egan of Carson City, known throughout the state as a sportsman and all-around good fellow, will be one of the employees under the new management.

"Never again!" says Mr. Nicholas in referring to his recent experience as a candidate for governor. "Politics is a delusion and a snare and he who toyeth therewith is a sucker." That isn't just what he said, but a fairly good interpretation of what he meant. "While, as a citizen," he continued, "I shall probably take an interest in politics, I shall hereafter confine my personal ambitions to making a success of my business enterprises. I have cast my lot with Vegas and intend to become an earnest and active 'booster' for this section."—Las Vegas Review.

BOY DIES OF GRIEF OVER DEATH OF CHUM

Two weeks after the death of his cousin and chum, Ross Tindel, who accidentally shot himself while hunting, Ernest King, of Greeley, Colo., aged 19, died Sunday night. Physicians declared the lad's death was due to grief over the loss of his chum. He was taken to the hospital on the day of young Tindel's funeral.

JOSEPHS AND LEGATE COMPARE NOTES

One of the peculiar political fights of the campaign was waged between Joe Josephs and Jack Legate, the opposing nominees for the clerkship of the supreme court. Ever since the returns began to come in the two have wondered where they stood. One day Josephs is ahead, the next brings Legate to the front. Friends of both men have been keeping count and the tallies are so close that neither friend nor foe can claim the election. Legate meets Josephs on the street and asks him how the figures stand. It is a ten to one bet that Joe will say that he believes Jack is elected. The next day Joe meets Jack and on asking how the fight stands is told that he figures that Joe is the winner. The first man to inform Josephs that he was ahead was Legate and he figured out that Joe had him beaten by about fifteen votes in all that were heard from.

They have both settled down to wait for the official canvass which will come off the third Monday of this month. In the meantime, two good fellows meet daily and compare notes.—Carson Appeal.
