BULGARIANS TAKE OUTLYING FORTS AND DURING ENGAGEMENTS CAPTURE OVER 1800 TURKS

(By Associated Press) SOFIA, Oct. 26.—A portion of the city of Adrianople has been set on fire by the Bulgarian artillery. The artillery is now shelling the city and it is believed this important Turkish garrison will soon surrender, or retreat toward Constantinople. Indications point to a retreat, but should the way be cut off by the attacking force, the surrender will result. The Bulgarians have taken the outlying forts of Maras, Harvaras and Sufilar, which were captured after brisk battles. The losses sustained by the Bulgarian forces in light. The railroad station on the outskirts of the town was also captured. During the battles the attacking force took 1800 prisoners. The Bulgarian army has had the advantage all along the line and the succession of successful battles and engagements is believed to have had a discouraging effect upon the Turkish troops. BAD LUCK IN BUNCHES NOW PREVENTING SETTLEMENT OF THE MAYFLOWER MINING TROUBLES

Even where fate is the kindest, going out of her way to assist and to make smooth the way, the task of mining is difficult and full of rough spots and jagged edges. And when something happens to go wrong, everything seems bound in the same direction and it often happens that unless the owners become discouraged and quit in desperation, fate will eventually force them to this consummation. Fate has dealt very severely with the Bullfrog section, showing the disposition of some children who like to dangle a sweet morsel before the watering mouths of a smaller child before swallowing it in selfish glee. Fate seemed to pave the Bullfrog hills with gold, but it was only a pavement evidently, and only pavement deep. But not all the Bullfrog propositions have quit despite difficulties, the statement has been issued by the Mayflower Bullfrog Consolidated Mining company, and the Mayflower Leasing company in which is displayed the determination to keep things going despite hardships and disappointments. This statement illustrates the first point made—that when one thing goes wrong, everything goes the same way. The statement, however, is full of able to speak for itself and it follows: To the stockholders of the Mayflower Bullfrog Consolidated Mining company, and the stockholders of the Mayflower Leasing company: The relation of the above companies being, no doubt, understood by all the stockholders of both companies, it is not considered necessary to go into any lengthy or detailed statement except to mention that the leasing company was organized for the purpose of operating the mining properties of the various damage, the timbers below in said company being nonassessable, with practically no stock remaining in the treasury. Stock in the leasing company was offered to the stockholders of the mining company in proportion to their holdings, but such offer met with a very poor reception. The result was that all of the burden of financing the leasing company had to be borne by one or two stockholders who subscribed what was at the time considered sufficient to assure a successful and unrestricted operation of the mine. The leasing company has met with difficulties from the very first, consisting principally of a dilapidated condition of the entire plant. A large sum of money was expended for needed repairs and improvements, including the retimbering of a great part of the shaft and in settling what seemed to be an endless chain of old debts owed by the mining company, most of which were contracted by the former management prior to the organization of the leasing company. We now assure you with more than reasonable certainty that all of those old claims have been discharged. Such discharge, however, caused a considerable drain on the leasing company and delayed its operation of the mine. Nor was this all it had to contend with. On the second of March of this year, a fire broke out in the mine which necessitated the sealing of the shaft for the purpose of smothering the fire. When the shaft was opened about two months later the fire was found to have done as well as the motor used for pumping the bottom level being burned out, a cave-in having occurred at the bottom level, the water pipes, air pipes and all electric and signal wiring as well as the motor used for pumping at the bottom of the shaft having been destroyed. None of this damage was covered by insurance, the policies carried by the company only covering its property above ground. All of this damage has been repaired and new machinery has been installed, all of which was slow and tedious work and a heavy drain upon the company's financial resources. A new filter was purchased from the Colorado Iron works and is now being installed and also a tube mill to crush and prepare the coarse sands and tailings for the filter. The damage caused by the fire and the necessity for the purchase and installation of this new machinery caused great delay in the work of developing the mine and the resumption of mining operations and the money had to be raised to pay for both the damage and the new machinery. In a letter received from our manager this morning, he writes as follows: "We will be running in a few days after we get this information and I hope not to stop for a long time." Also as follows: "We had to add many things to the plant and it has taken more time than I figured on, but we are getting an ideal plant for this ore in this district. We are rushing as fast as possible to get the plant working and are working the men overtime wherever it will help." The year has been a disappointing one in every respect. To add to our many troubles, a few of which we have endeavored to enumerate, cloud-bursts occurred in the month of July which did considerable damage to the plant and delayed the work. While the extent of these unfortunate occurrences during the past year, and the amount of money required to rehabilitate and put the plant in shape for the operation has been a source of considerable trouble and worry to your Board of directors, yet they do not feel discouraged. You now have a most economical plant, the outlook for the mine is as good as it ever was and should we not meet with any more unfortunate occurrences or delays, the coming year should produce results more satisfactory to all concerned. The present board of directors, if retained in office, will use every effort in their power to promote an energetic and economical operation of the property in a manner most beneficial to the stockholders of both companies, and the protection of the rights of all.

SUFFRAGE SPEAKER DELIVERS ADDRESS TO CROWDED HOUSE LAST NIGHT Mere man, a species of humanity created in the beginning of the world by mistake, and existing with no apparent excuse, came in for a decided trouncing last night when Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gillman addressed a large crowd at the Nevada theater. The meeting was held under the auspices of the local suffrage society and the topic of Mrs. Gillman's address was the right and qualification of women to vote. "Man has been taught by tradition that it is the place for women to serve," declared the speaker, "yet it is she who administers the affairs of the household and of the children, and if she is thus able to administer the family affairs, is she not capable of helping in the administration of political affairs?" Mrs. Gillman pointed out that all the women would be required to do would be to visit the polls every two years and cast a ballot. This duty would not take her away from her home nor cause neglect of children. Frequent applause greeted the speaker.
