GOLDEN JUBILEE OF PYTHIANISM

By proclamation of Thomas J. Casley, supreme chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, the nineteenth day of February, 1914, is ordained for celebration of the golden jubilee of the founding of the order by Justus Henry Rathbone at Washington, D. C. The term "founding of an order" is bound up with the personalities of the men who were the moving spirits in the formation and the ultimate success depends on whether these moving spirits commenced their work in a selfish or benevolent purpose.

Among the marvelous achievements of the past half century that have signalized the progress of the world, none has been more significant, and, at the same time, more beneficial to mankind than the development of fraternity among men—teaching lessons which inspire manhood, at its highest and best, to nobler efforts in the direction of making this good old world better and brighter.

In the broad field of fraternal endeavor, no institution has been lauded with grander achievements, or has attained more glorious fruition, than has the order of the Knights of Pythias—whose golden esutcheon is proudly borne on a million breasts, and whose mission and influence for good has enshrined the heart and homes of hundreds of thousands of earnest men during the half century of its existence.

Tomorrow night the Knights of Pythias in Tonopah will fittingly commemorate the most important milestone thus far in the life of Pythian Knighthood and upon this golden anniversary the members will pledge anew their love for and loyalty to the exalted principles of Friendship, Charity and Benevolence by testifying to the eternal truths upon which the order is founded.

The order is founded on the characters of Damon and Pythias—the senator and the soldier—and it is universally conceded that it was to Justus Henry Rathbone that the grand central idea of the grand force of friendship, as exemplified by these Syracusans, was brought to the fore. In the noble heart of Rathbone was founded the seed which today has developed into the magnificent tree of Pythian Knighthood. From this little seed planted by Rathbone has grown one of the greatest fraternal orders the world has ever known, and, while its types, mottoes and its exemplars have been borrowed from an ancient civilization, in some respects superior to our modern article, the order flourishes under American auspices and there reaches its greatest perfection.

As the order was instituted for Americans, by Americans and primarily for the benefit of Americans, it may be termed an American institution, and although it has not clustering around its shrine the clinging ivy of centuries' growth, yet having drawn its prototypes from an ancient civilization and built its precepts and lessons from characters of these times, it is thus necessarily connected with those misty ages of the long ago.

REPUDIATION OF A PLATFORM

PERHAPS some long-haired Southern Bourbon will rise to explain to the country what it means to repudiate the platform on which the Democratic party was elected. The fact that President Wilson, chief exponent of the principles of Democracy, has seen fit to take a direct stand against the exemption of American vessels from tolls calls for an explanation, but, it is safe to say, that the rank and file will consent to be led around by the nose so long as the pie counter is not undermined and the distribution of favors continues. There are other things to be asked of the same administration. Among these is why the party, which claims to represent the people, seeks to establish a literary test of the fitness of intending immigrants. If the same test had been applied thirty and forty years ago some of the most rabid advocates of the doctrine of exclusion would never have come into this world under the American flag. The mere fact that a man or woman is able to read and write does not establish the east that they are necessarily immoral or imbued with the principles of liberty and equality. The plan would not exclude anarchists or dynamiters. It would not bar the forger or high-class thief from admission, and, if it were left to a test, it would not be deemed a barrier to Asiatic colonization. Some of the best men of the country came here without education, but they were actuated by lofty principles and firm belief in the existence of a Divinity. They proved good citizens and men whose lives have been most exemplary. They are included in the founders of several of the most progressive colonies in the new world, among which may be cited the Swiss-Italian colony of California, which boasts of owning a bank with deposits of $25,000,000, a railroad and a principality including some of the choicest farm lands of California. The founder of this colony was one of the men whose knowledge of viticulture gave the Golden State a start in the direction of its greatest prosperity. Exclusion of the viciously ignorant is all right, but the Democratic party does not differentiate between the good and bad, but makes the exclusion a sweeping feature that mows down the righteous for the sake of a few demagogues.

SOME TIME IN NEVADA

EDITOR BOOHER, of the Elko Independent, claims prestige from the fact that he has been in Nevada for a period of thirty years. Pshaw! That's nothing to brag about. The editor of the Bonanza on the fifth day of next July will have been forty-nine years in this glorious State of ours, and he is comparatively a young man yet. During these forty-nine years the writer has seen some pretty tough times that tried the souls of men in all sorts of ways. He was a Democrat up to and during the Cleveland administration and walked the railroad tracks in search of employment. Cattlemen were paying stock tenders twenty dollars a month in those days, but ceased to pay even that small sum, as they could not afford to raise beef critters when the market only paid them $16 a head. Employment of any kind could not be had. After the administration of Cleveland he mastered the art of counting 100 without stopping and entered the ranks of the Republican party, and has been there ever since without seeing any return of the Cleveland adversity or a relapse of prosperity. Score one for the Good Old Republican Party. Long may it reign.

The Bonanza says the newly appointed deputy income tax collector for Nye county is not a resident. That might be some advantage, after all, if anybody down that way were so mean as to want to evade the tax.—Elko Free Press.

SICK ROOM SUPPLIES

When sickness comes, nothing that may give comfort or promote recovery should be overlooked. The character of a drug store can usually be judged by the line of sick-room goods carried. The store favored by the patronage of physicians will be found to afford adequate facilities of this kind. When any special item of sick-room supplies is required our stock should be depended upon to supply it. We have everything which the nurse or physician may suggest.
