THE TELEPHONE GIRL

MODERN advances have relegated the Paul Revers of history to the grave. No longer have they a place in the annals of fame and the demand for monuments has passed into the echoing halls of time. The telephone girl is the modern heroine. She is Jennie on the job, gifted with a poise and grit that renders her the arbiter of life and death. Enthroned in a lonely office listening to the tingling of the bells or watching the dropping of the little lights that denote calls from distant homes, she is judge and jury at hours of the night when watchmen sleep and guardians of the peace re-lapse into slumber.

Scarcely a day elapses without the wires paying tribute to the resourcefulness of the girl at the switchboard. She does not sleep. Her vigils are long and wearisome, but she is there with intent ear waiting for the patron's every want. Doctor's calls, police demands, fire perils and a thousand and one other urgent appeals find her alert and active. From the day of the Johnstown flood to the present her services have expanded and public appreciation grows until there is less complaint and more appreciation of the real merit of the operator who sits enthroned in a distant office, keeping a watchful eye on the affairs of the community over whose destinies she presides. Frequently, owing to electric disturbances the service is not always of the best and then the customer is prone to blame it on the operator, but inquiry in such cases usually develops the fact that the real trouble is mechanical and not the fault of personal negligence.

The past week has furnished notable examples of quick perception tantamount to intuition that compliments the intelligence of the average operator. In Iowa the other day an operator frustrated six bank robbers by notifying the Sheriff that somebody was cutting the wires. She had no means of knowing this to be a fact, but she heard a certain tingling or vibration that led her to believe that something was wrong at the bank and she acted promptly with an initiative that resulted in saving the bank's funds. Another instance of celerity is found in the case of an express agent in California who had been murdered in the early hours of the morning. The local operator summoned help because she could not gain any reply to a test call and her hunch proved all right, for the man in charge of the station was found weltering in his blood at the last gasp of his life, but able to tell the story of the attack.

The extraordinary floods of the past week in Southern California furnished a test that showed the mettle of many operators who remained at their posts calling aid and issuing warnings to those in the path of destructive storm waters. Some of these girls, self-poised and vigilant, stuck to their posts through a tempest of cyclonic fury that threatened momentarily to compass their destruction, but they never failed. Not one quailed before the duties of the hour and in most cases the girls self-poised and vigilant stuck to their posts through a tempest of cyclonic fury that threatened momentarily to compass their destruction; but they never failed. Not one quailed before the duties of the hour, and in most cases the girls exceeded the requirements of their positions by remaining at their switchboards when all others had fled.

Some day an inspired painter or sculptor will immortalize himself by portraying the heroine of the switchboard instead of the man at the gun.

Nothing is so rare as a day in June, soliloquized a down-east poet. But he should be in Tonopah and praise the local February weather. The only difference is that it is not rare, except in the liberal quantity of ozone, compared with other sections.

GEOLOGISTS GIVE THEIR OPINION OF EARTH'S INSIDE

A strictly scientific contribution to knowledge in the form of a discussion of some of the results incidental to the triangulation work done by the Coast and Geodetic Survey, is presented by Grove Karl Gilbert, of the United States Geological Survey, in a short paper on the "Interpretation of Anomalies of Gravity," recently published by the Geological Survey as Part C of Professional Paper 85. After stating the anomalies of gravity, which are also expressed graphically on the map of the United States accompanying the paper, Mr. Gilbert discusses the interpretation of these anomalies under the assumption of imperfect isostatic adjustment, vertical heterogeneity of the crust, and variation of depth of compensation. The geologic relations suggested by the map showing the geographic distribution of the anomalies are next set forth.

The speculative nature of this scientific contribution is well expressed by Mr. Gilbert in the few sentences that introduce the section discussing interpretation by nuclear heterogeneity:

"The inner earth is the inalienable playground of the imagination. Once it contains the forges of blacksmith gods; or it was the birthplace of our race, ore the home or prison of disembodied spirits. Later Symmes hollowed from it a vast habitable empire, concave like the world of Koresk. Science now claims exclusive title but holds it chiefly for speculative purposes; and the freedom of speculation practically recognizes but two limitations: The inner earth is dense, and it is rigid. As to all other properties opinion is untrammelled.

"It is my own view that the inner part of the nucleus is not merely hot but very hot. If the law of compression by pressure and the law of expansion by heat, as we know them at the surface, apply equally to the nucleus, then the mean temperature of the earth must be enormous in order to afford a mean density so low as 5.6. An enormous temperature implies an enormous store of heat."

SCOTT GUILTY OF WHITE SLAVE CHARGE

(By Associated Press.) CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—The federal grand jury today voted a no bill in the case of Donald Scott, manager of a mine near Durango, Mexico, whose transportation of Senorita Laura Leon to Chicago from Mexico was inquired into. Senorita Leon said that Scott rescued her from bandits who killed her father. United States immigration authorities have formally ordered Senorita Leon deported to Mexico.

SHEARING CORRALS ARE COMPLETED

BETWEEN 50,000 AND 60,000 SHEEP TO BE SHEARED THIS SEASON.

The new sheep corrals north of town have been completed. Besides the 25 shearing pens there are a number of corrals to hold an entire band of sheep while they are being sheared. The work was well done under the supervision of W. F. Pearce and B. J. Loinaz, who raised the required funds by subscriptions from local business men, amounting to about $600. The building of the corrals will result in from 50,000 to 60,000 sheep being sheared here this spring. With favorable weather conditions shearing will begin about March 15th.—Humboldt Star.

DELIC CASE COMING UP IN GOLDFIELD COURT

The case of Mike Delic, indicted for assault with intent to kill will come up in the Goldfield district court tomorrow. It is probable that the indictment will be dismissed and a charge of simple assault placed against Delic.

EYES FAIL AT FORTY-FIVE!

No matter how good the eyes may be, Dr. Robinson, Oculist, is prepared to fit glasses perfectly, at moderate cost, at Sollerder House. Consultation free. 2-27-14

It's of exceptional value at the price. It's sure to be advertised in the Bonanza, else the merchant would be hopelessly unprogressive.
