THAT OLD GOLD BRICK.

There is no doubt about Nevada going to hold an election next fall. All signs point that way and, if there was any room for speculation on that point it would be dispelled by the activity of Senator Newlands in introducing bills for everybody who has an axe to grind. He is not a bit discriminatory in these attentions for the telegraph reports that he has introduced a bill to provide a home for the Washoe Indians. This is about as likely of accomplishment as many of his periodical reservoir bills, but the average reader has a lurking suspicion that there must be something deeper rooted than what appears on the surface. The Washoes have no votes and nothing can be expected from distributing money to the tribe, but the erection of a building implies employment of contractors and other vote getters who would have to hustle support for the California magnate who seeks the nomination in Nevada.

To prove that Newlands is simply putting up a front and indulging in another of his aerobatic stunts it is well to remind voters that there will be no new buildings undertaken with the sanction of the administration this year. President Wilson has placed his foot firmly down on the numerous devices to drain the treasury and has notified senators and representatives that he will not allow such measures to be intruded on the general appropriations bill as has been the custom of the minority in compelling the passage of pork barrel allotments. With a decline in the general revenues through tariff reductions the Wilson administration realizes that it has to hew close to the line in order to make both ends meet and avoid a deficit. The same may be said of the proposed $25,000,000 appropriation for the building of good roads. All such measures stand as good chance of fulfillment as a snowball on a hot gridle and Nevada voters might as well understand they are being enjined with another one of Newlands' old time bluffs. Nothing doing.

Some idea of the profits accruing to express companies may be conjectured from the recent order of the California Railroad Commission ordering a fifty per cent reduction in shipments of dairy products inside that State. Coming on top of the interstate order for a revision of rates this will bring the express companies down to the level of the railroads as dividend payers.

We respectfully ask the editor of the Bonanza—as an authority upon the subject—just how much more foolishly would the champagne have made Bryan act than his customary grape juice—Carrara Obelisk. It is so long since we drank champagne that we cannot feel able to speak as an authority. In the days before the fire, as they say in Chicago and San Francisco, when we were in the millionaire class—but why look back? The thoughts are too painful.

Probably through an oversight the Nye County Bar Association has overlooked the death of Senator Massey. Every other judicial district has seen fit to hold meetings to express appreciation of the sterling qualities of one of the veterans of the bar but in the sixth judicial district the lawyers seem to have been willing to let others act.

New Hampshire men who invested $15,000 in a mythical Maine gold mine are suing for recovery of their money. Any man who would be so easily gulled does not deserve any sympathy. If he keep outside the insane asylum he is doing well.

Citizens who have the welfare of the schools at heart should bestir themselves. In less than three weeks the school election must be held. This will take place on the first Saturday in April, which falls this year on the fourth of the month.

With three shows and a stellar fistic attraction billed in one week it must be said that Tonopah has the money and is willing to turn loose once in a while.

Suffragettes say they are not in politics but still they are going to down Underwood in Alabama—if they can.

A New York court discovers that two reports were in contempt and fines them. Reporters are frequently in that condition, but are not often discovered.

How Newlands Killed Sugar

If we were to insinuate that the tariff had anything to do with the determination of the stock holders of the Fallon sugar factory to keep that institution closed during the coming season and to pass over the purchase of sugar beets from the farmers of the State of Nevada, our Democratic friends would raise their hands in holy horror and immediately claim that there was another cause and that the tariff had nothing whatever to do with it.

If we were to also state that the action of Senator Newlands in voting for the reduction of the tariff on sugar had anything to do with the closing of the Fallon sugar factory, we would likewise be termed a knocker and jumping at a trifle to say a word against the senior Democratic Senator.

At any rate there will be no market for sugar beets in Nevada this fall and the acres which have been planted to them in the past will be sowed to some other seed. The men who were employed working in the fields in thinning and caring for the sugar beets will have to find other employment, those who worked in the sugar factory at Fallon will no longer answer the whistle's call and will have to join the numbers hunting for work; the men who invested their money in the building of the factory and the purchasing of the machinery under a Republican administration when all appeared to be well and the country was prosperous, will have to swallow their loss and wait for a better day.

When Mr. Newlands voted for the reduction of the sugar tariff he struck a knife in the heart of a Nevada industry. We wonder if the people will remember what Mr. Newlands did for the beet sugar industry when they cast their ballots this coming election?

GLIMPSE AT MANUAL TRAINING PRACTICED IN TONOPAH SCHOOLS

At 9 o'clock on every school day a class of boys may be seen passing from the new school building across the street into the old grade building. Their faces are bright and happy, shining in anticipation of a good time coming.

Following them the observer will find them diligently employed in the manual training shops. As one watches the boys at work they will see the explanation of the joy and hurry they have shown. Here they are really doing something that they consider worth while.

Some of the boys are making drawings of articles they wish to construct, more are busy with saws, planes and hammers, fashioning the articles they have drawn, and some are painting the work they have finished.

The work of the boys covers a wide range. Smaller pieces, such as end-sticks, book troughs, towel racks, are made by the grade boys. The high school boys make lockers, umbrella stands, music racks and writing desks. Many of these articles show much skill on the part of the maker.

The manual training department looks after the small repairs in and about the school buildings. They have made holders and drawing boards for the drawing department. At present the boys are making the apparatus they will need in their track athletics.

The purpose of the manual training course is to teach the rudiments of carpentry and painting, so that the boys will be prepared to do the ordinary repair work that often needs to be done in any home.

To this end the boys are instructed in the use and care of tools. They are taught to make and read working drawings and blue prints. Every boy is required to make a drawing of the article he wishes to construct. Elementary mechanical drawing is also a part of the course.

All grades above the fourth have one period a week in the shop. In the high school the boys taking this subject spend two periods a day in the work.

About 90 grade and a dozen high school boys are taking the course this year. This being the first year of manual training work in the Tonopah schools the results obtained are surprising to most people.

All citizens, whether patrons of the school or not, are cordially invised to visit the shop at any time during school hours and see for themselves what is being done to make the boys more self-reliant and better prepared to make their way in life after leaving school.

PIONEER WOMAN OF MASON VALLEY DEAD

Mrs. W. R. Lee, a pioneer woman of this State, passed away at her home in Churchill county the latter part of last month. She was a native of Ohio, born in 1844. In 1862, when 18 years of age, she crossed the plains by ox team. She settled in Dayton, Nevada, and was there married to W. R. Lee. Some weeks ago she and Mr. Lee celebrated their golden wedding. Mr. Lee and several sons and two daughters survive her. In early days Mr. and Mrs. Lee resided in Mason valley and Mr. Lee built the first flour mill here.—Yerington Times.
