CONFESSION OF GUILT.

THE Bonanza sincerely regrets that the suit of Receiver Wildes claiming $30,000 damages from the Bonanza for exposure of the conduct of the receivership of the State Bank and Trust Company will not come to trial. A hearing of the suit would have been welcomed not only by the Bonanza but by the deluded depositors of Southern Nevada who would have been given a chance to hear for themselves something about the perfidious system that has operated to continue in office a man who has proven derelict to his trust and a traitor to the cause of justice.

Never has such a case of brazen effrontery been cited. The receiver rushed into court with a lame attempt to mould public opinion in advance of the verdict of the State supreme court which, at the time, held under advisement an appeal predicated on precisely the same grounds as the foundation of the charges contained in the Bonanza. The sequel of yesterday proves that the receiver never intended to court a hearing, much less an exposure that certainly would have followed his appearance in court in his puerile pretext at manufacturing a defense for indefensible conduct.

Wildes knew at the time he brought suit against the Bonanza that he was not going to trial, but he made the bluff, and, when he found that the bluff would not work, he crawled into his hole and begged off. This is an act of unmitigated cowardice such as could be expected from a craven who did not have the heart to come out in the open and attack others equally guilty in circulating similar reports. Wildes chose the Bonanza for a target as he regarded the publishers of this paper as the weaker of his adversaries. He knew what the Bonanza had gone through. He realized that the fortunes of a lifetime had been swept away by fire and that the owners of this paper were recuperating losses of a material character. But he did not realize that the Bonanza has never stabbed a man in the dark or taken back a statement which it knew to be true and that behind the paper was the courage of conviction and the approval of thousands of honest men and women whose little savings had been sunk in supporting the extravagances of Receiver Wildes.

In this connection it may be well to recall the statement of Representative Kelliher on the floor of the assembly that "We will have Wildes in stripes," and then let depositors and the public at large ask themselves if this dismissal of a suit is the act of an open, fearless, conscientious officer or the act of a dastard fearful of having the light of investigation thrown on his doings.

By withdrawing his suit Receiver Wildes leaves the defendant to shoulder the costs incurred in the people's interests and the only excuse he offers is contained in a letter to the clerk of the court in which his attorneys say their client is sick and distressed and unable to undertake the arduous journey to Tonopah. No doubt he is sick. He has been sick for some time and the fact that the Nevada supreme court sustained every contention of the Bonanza is not likely to help his case.

Like the writing on the wall that proclaimed the downfall of Belshazzar, let the receiver remember the cogent summary of Representative Kelliher, "We will have Wildes in stripes."

PENDING CONGRESS PROBES.

THE bureau of corporations seems to be swamped with demands for investigations of trusts and monopolies and Commissioner Davies recognizes the difficulty of the task imposed upon him. The chief evil which he recognizes seems to be that some large corporations that are monopolistic in character have been formed by persons desiring to exploit the public by stock jobbing schemes for the immediate profit of the promoters or for the purpose of obtaining control of the market and exacting unduly high prices from the consumer. He mentions no specific instance but some recent exploitations of industries that were prosperous under private control have evidently engaged his attention. He expresses doubt whether large corporations exercise greater economy and efficiency in production than do their smaller competitors. If the bureau undertakes an investigation of the methods by which it is alleged increased profits have been obtained without giving any share thereof to labor in the form of higher wages or to consumers in lower prices or improved quality of goods, the work assumed by it will be of tremendous proportions and will probably never be finished.

Commissioner Davies recognizes that there are limits beyond which inquisitors should not go. Congress should not ask them to pry into trade secrets and other matters that are of no public interest but the revelation of which might inflict great injury upon those whose private affairs were made public. He accordingly recommends that such information should be limited to procuring copies of charters and by-laws, names of directors and officers and details regarding issues of capital stock, bonds and similar obligations, together with ordinary financial statements of assets and liabilities and of profit and loss. Corporations, he believes, should be made to disclose their stock holdings in other companies and agreements with other corporations engaged in a similar or related business whenever such agreements or stock holdings might tend to stifle fair competition.

PORTLAND CEMENT TO BE SHIPPED BY PARCEL POST

Word comes to the city that the building of a large dam is to be commenced at Silver Lake in Mono county this year and that the cement which will be used, amounting to hundreds of tons, will be shipped to the nearest postoffice, which would be that of Crater, by parcel post. This will mean that the stage contractors of that section connecting with the train at Thorne will be put out of business. It will mean that the stage contractors will have to furnish big teams to haul the cement. The freight price on the cement to the destination would be about 3 cents per pound, while by parcel post it would be less than a cent a pound, thus the contractors would make an immense saving by buying postage stamps for 50 pound sacks.—Carson News.
