

Fight Like Demons On Kaiser's Orders

(By International News Service.)
PARIS, Oct. 16.—Fighting under orders that are said to come direct from Emperor William "to cut a path to the coast," the German troops in the north along the Belgian border are battling like demons to stem the advance of the allies. Heavy rain storms have broken over northeastern France and northwestern Belgium, drenching the soldiers, filling the trenches with water and turning the roads to deep swamps of mire. Both sides are rushing reinforcements of artillery to the front, but progress of the guns is slow and painful, owing to the condition of the highways. Although the Germans lost ground along the Albert, Arras, Estaires and Ypres line, their retirement has not developed into a retreat. The invaders have fallen back into strong positions where defensive works were previously prepared. Allies seem to be on the offensive all along the mighty battle line with the exception of the center, where the German lines are too strong to be taken by storm.

(By International News Service.)
PETROGRAD, Oct. 16.—After having advanced to within seven miles of Warsaw, the Germans were repulsed and driven back. They are now thirty miles from that city. Heavy fighting is going on, with the advantage in our favor.

Another Big British Cruiser Sunk In North Sea by German Submarine

(By International News Service.)
LONDON, Oct. 16.—The British cruiser Hawke was sunk yesterday in the North sea by a German submarine in another daring raid. News of this latest German triumph was given out by the admiralty today. The Hawke was 7,350 tons, had a crew of 544 men, was 360 feet long, 60 feet beam, with a speed of 19 knots. Only fifty of the crew escaped. The Hawke and Thesus, sister cruisers of the same class, were on patrol duty when the attack was launched. The German submarine aimed a torpedo at the Thesus but missed and the cruiser escaped. The admiralty refused to give the location of the disaster.

Of the crew 450 were rescued. The loss of the Hawke totals six British cruisers destroyed by Germans in the North sea. The Hawke collided with the White Star liner Olympic, September, 1911, near the Isle of Wight, and was seriously damaged.

West End Claims $360,000 From Butler On Fraction Apex

An order was issued last night by Judge Averill in the district court on complaint of the west end Consolidated Mining company, containing the injunction restraining the east end Fraction Mining company from continuing to extract ore from the Fraction ledge. The complaint was filed by Horatio Alling, of counsel for the West End, who came up from Oakland a week ago for this purpose, but who was kept busy with the attachment issued by the Butler company to defer filing the new suit until the last moment of his stay in Tonopah. Attorney Alling left for Bakersfield this morning. To gain a hearing in the district court Mr. Alling had to arrange with Judge Averill to come over from Goldfield, where he was hearing a divorce suit for Judge Somers.

Court convened at 7:30 o'clock, but the Butler company, defendant, entered any counsel as representing it at the hearing. Mr. Evans declining to be named as appearing. The writ is made returnable November 26th at 10 o'clock.

The complaint demands $360,000 damages for trespass, alleging defendant company has extracted and converted to its own use ore valued at $120,000. The complaint asks for an injunction pendente lite and for general suitable relief. The suit is the outcome of the litigation begun by the Butler company alleging the West End had taken ore from the Eureka and Curtis claims of their property through following the West End-MacNamara ledge beyond their side lines. The district court issued an order in that case authorizing certain work by experts, geologists and engineers for the purpose of establishing the facts connected with the trend of the disputed ore bodies. In doing this work the West End engineers found they had what they claim to be a clearly defined apex within the boundaries of the West End claim, which had never been dreamed of by that company.

It was for the purpose of filing this suit that Attorney Horatio Alling came to Tonopah October 8th, to find himself confronted with the attachment proceedings for $1,200,000.

After setting forth the metes and bounds of the claims of both companies the complaint goes on as follows:

That there is a vein or lode of rock in place bearing gold, silver and other valuable metals, which, at its top or apex, and on its course or strike, crosses the easterly end line of said West End mining claim, and thence, at its top or apex, and on its course or strike, continues westerly between the side lines of said mining claim for a distance of 1,175 feet. That said vein or lode is called and known as the "West End" vein or lode. That the original discovery of rock in place bearing gold, silver, or other valuable metals on said West End mining claim was made, and discovery shaft was sunk on said West End vein or lode, and said vein or lode was, and at all times has been, and now is, the discovery and location and primary vein or lode of said West End mining claim.

That there is another vein or lode of rock in place, bearing gold, silver and other valuable metals, which, at its top or apex, and on its course or strike, crosses the easterly end line of said West End mining claim, and thence, at its top or apex, and on its course or strike, continues westerly between the side lines of said mining claim for a distance of 1,175 feet. That said vein or lode is called and known as the "West End" vein or lode. That the original discovery of rock in place bearing gold, silver, or other valuable metals on said West End mining claim was made, and discovery shaft was sunk on said West End vein or lode, and said vein or lode was, and at all times has been, and now is, the discovery and location and primary vein or lode of said West End mining claim.

of said West End mining claim and thence at its top or apex and on its course or strike, continues in a westerly direction between the side lines of said claim for a distance of 500 feet as thus far disclosed. That said vein or lode is called and known as the "Fraction" vein or lode. That said "Fraction" vein or lode in said West End mining claim, dips in a southerly direction and on its course downward so far departs from the perpendicular as to extend outside and beyond a vertical plane drawn downward through the southerly side line of said West End mining claim, and continues in its course under and beneath the surface of said mining claims of defendant, namely, the Eureka and Curtis mining claims.

That plaintiff is, and for more than three years last past, has been the owner of said "Fraction" vein or lode, the top or apex of which is found within the exterior boundaries extended vertically downward of said West End mining claim, throughout its entire depth, between planes, one drawn vertically downward through the easterly end line of said West End mining claim, and continued indefinitely in its own direction southerly, and another, parallel thereto, drawn vertically downward through a point 500 feet west of said easterly end line, continued indefinitely in its own direction southerly.

INSURANCE MAN ENDS HIS LIFE WITH BULLET THROUGH THE HEAD

James D. Parsons, Jr., aged 36, was found dead in bed in his room in the Nycro building on Main street, last evening at 7 o'clock. A revolver grasped in his right hand and a bullet hole through the right temple told the story of suicide. The ball had gone through the head and lodged in the wall of the bedchamber. Deceased had carefully prepared for the journey into the beyond, as he had bathed himself, donned fresh underwear and attired himself in his best clothes. Then he laid down on the bed with his head resting on the pillow and his feet crossed in an easy position. Death must have been instantaneous, for there was no sign of pain and the body reposed as easily as though the man had fallen asleep.

Parsons was engaged in the insurance business, representing a number of the leading non-board companies, and enjoyed a lucrative practice. His accounts with his companies are said to be all right. He came here from Goldfield two years ago opened an office at the old Justice court at the junction of Main and Florence avenue. Later he removed to the Nycro building. He had been on a month's vacation on the coast and only returned a week ago. When he left he was troubled with a slight cough which was aggravated when he came back. He was not tubercular, but since his return he acted strangely, giving the impression that his mind was affected. In fact, those who were thrown in daily contact with him thought seriously of placing him under surveillance until they could determine if it were safe to allow him to continue without treatment.

panies, and enjoyed a lucrative practice. His accounts with his companies are said to be all right. He came here from Goldfield two years ago opened an office at the old Justice court at the junction of Main and Florence avenue. Later he removed to the Nycro building. He had been on a month's vacation on the coast and only returned a week ago. When he left he was troubled with a slight cough which was aggravated when he came back. He was not tubercular, but since his return he acted strangely, giving the impression that his mind was affected. In fact, those who were thrown in daily contact with him thought seriously of placing him under surveillance until they could determine if it were safe to allow him to continue without treatment.

Yesterday morning Parsons called at the post office and registered three letters which are supposed to contain the story of his intention to take himself off. Then he returned to the Nycro building and entered the offices of Drs. Cowden and Masterman, where he engaged in general conversation. Afterwards he spoke to Charles Starr, an insurance agent having offices in the same building. Mr. Starr was so deeply impressed by the wild appearance of the man's eyes that he was strangely affected all day. Several times he knocked at the door of Parsons' room and failed to receive any answer. After dark he knocked again and failing to get any response, summoned witnesses and climbed up to look over the transom. Then he saw the body lying on the bed with blood trickling over the pillow and gave the alarm. Coroner Dunneath arrived a few minutes before seven o'clock and after examination decided life had been extinct for at least three hours. Undertaker Cavanaugh was of the opinion that the man had been dead for seven hours. An inquest will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The only motive for the crime is the fear of sickness, of which deceased had a great horror. His affairs were all in excellent shape, but there was not a scrap of paper to throw any light on the circumstances. It is reported that Parsons carried $15,000 life insurance.

In the effects of the dead man were found papers bearing the name of Miss Susie Panecak, Ramney, W. Va., a cousin to whom his policies were made payable. A wire was sent last night and the answer received this morning by Justice Dunneath stated the father of the suicide was living at Gunnison, Colo. A message was sent him apprising him of the death and asking for instructions.

James D. Parsons came to Goldfield from Gunnison, Colo., in 1906 and opened an office as accountant and auditor, also handling fire insurance. When the interior department allowed the recovery of a Goldfield town site, and appointed Theron Stevens trustee for the lot owners, Parsons was employed by Stevens, who once occupied the bench in the judicial district including Gunnison, Ouray and Montrose, and Parsons remained with him until the work was completed. Then he resumed his old insurance business and when Goldfield declined he had been deputy clerk and recorder and acquired quite a reputation as an abstractor and investigator of titles. He was born in West Virginia. He was a member of the Masons, Moose, Eagles, Knights of Pythias and Woodmen of the World.

A telegram received this morning from the father of deceased, asked that the remains be forwarded to Gunnison, to arrive Monday morning. In compliance with this request the body will be shipped by express tomorrow morning.

MR. KAY IS NOT RUNNING

The Republicans should remember that the name of Mr. McKay should not have an X marked after it for the office of attorney-general, for the reason that Mr. McKay himself desired to withdraw, leaving a clear field for George Spragmeyer, but the supreme court ruled that the name could not be taken off the official ballot, and must therefore remain. However, Mr. McKay desires to have all his friends vote for Mr. Spragmeyer, the progressive Republican nominee, and the voters should remember this when they go into the booth on election day.

Mr. Spragmeyer is an able and fearless young man and if elected to the office of attorney-general he can be depended upon to make a strong fight for the best interests of the people in every phase of official duty.
