West End Sends Forth Bullion

- ◆ The West End Consolidated Mining company this morning forwarded by Wells Fargo 24 bars of bullion, the product of the mill for the past 10 days.
- ◆ The consignment weighed 37,273 ounces. Estimating the bullion at the present value of silver and with a gold content on a general average of one per cent in weight, assuming that it was 1,000 fine, this shipment would be worth at 70 cents an ounce $26,091.10, which added to the previously reported shipments for January, totaling $521,595.96, would make a grand total of Tonopah mines since the first of the year of $547,687.06.
- ◆ Inasmuch as the bullion shipped from Tonopah contains 100 parts to the thousand of base, the foregoing figures are high as compared with the worth in refined metal, but, on the other hand, there are products of the camp which are not included in the above figures, making them err on the side of conservatism.

"I don't mind going back with you," said Koch to Meinung, "but I was on my way to see the exposition, and I hate to miss it."

"Same here," said Meinung, and then a great idea struck him. With his prisoner, he took the train for San Francisco, and temporarily lodged him in the city prison. "How about seeing the exposition?" suggested Meinung. "Count me in," said Koch, and Meinung forthwith chartered an automobile for the trip. With his prisoner in tow, Meinung was several hours on a tour of the exposition grounds, and today he will start for Duluth.

- ◆ in a drift that has been running through the fault and which has picked up the vein beyond.
