Correspondence of the Associated Press

DUNKIRK, Sept. 30.—The remarkable development in technique and training of the French artillery service is indicated by the fact that all British artillery recruits newly arrived in France are sent first of all for a week's training with French batteries.

A British general, writing to a French newspaper, describes the methods of training by the British staff. "Each fresh British infantry brigade," he says, "joins a British division for a period of ten days to familiarize itself with trench work, but our artillery is turned over to the French gunners for its preliminary instruction. The French artillerymen are as charming as possible. The French officers neglect nothing in order to make the work as agreeable and instructive as possible to our men of all ranks. This is how we spent yesterday:

"One of my guns was carefully drawn to the position at present occupied by a French gun, in the center of a French battery. Our men worked their best to do things smoothly and well under the eyes of the French gunners. After having placed the British gun in the right spot, our officer obtained from the French observation post the exact location of a machine gun emplacement situated at a range of about 1800 yards. The French know this emplacement and were able to help us to time our fuses with great accuracy. Indeed, they showed themselves masters in the art of making our men believe that they were doing the things themselves. Then we fired our gun, and at the second shot to our great joy the German emplacement was destroyed. The French gunners congratulated us heartily.

"After our practice was over, tea was served on a white cloth in a refuge down below in the depth of the earth, secure against shrapnel.

"Today the same position will be occupied by three French guns and one English gun; tomorrow by two French guns and two English; next by three English and one French. All this time the battery will be commanded by a French battery commander, who hitherto has never seen British gunners. Only when the battery consists of four English guns will a British officer take command of it. Until then he will remain as long as necessary receiving with his British gunners, indications and instructions with regard to the country drawn from the experience of the French gunners, who have held the position since November, 1914. Only one man can command a battery of four guns, and that is always the man who has been longest on the spot, without respect to nationality or seniority.

"I need not tell you that the French are most agreeable comrades, and our men will be genuinely sorry when they leave us. In the meantime nothing could be better than the instruction given to our gunners, who are still inexperienced. Twelve of my sixteen batteries are now subject to the conditions I have described."

WAR BRINGS ADVANTAGE AS WELL AS TROUBLE

(By Associated Press.)
BERLIN, Sept. 30.—The war has brought great difficulties to the flower growers of Germany, but also great opportunities. For years France and Italy have been the chief markets for cut flowers, and even the duties imposed by Germany have not protected the native merchants.

At the recent annual meeting of the various gardening associations in the empire, it was resolved to ask the government to make special efforts to keep out of Germany during the coming winter any cut flowers that might otherwise find their way in, via Switzerland, from either France or Italy.

Belgium, however, also grows flowers in great quantities. The flower growers therefore decided to urge on the government a duty to protect them against competition from this quarter, after agreeing that it was urgently necessary.

The members of the associations represented agreed to undertake to decorate the graves of fallen soldiers through volunteer donations of flowers.

POLISH UNIVERSITY PLANNED FOR WARSAW

(By Associated Press.)
WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 30.—Less than a month after the occupation of Warsaw by the Germans, plans have been all but completed for the creation of a Polish university, designed to attract the young Poles who heretofore have always sought foreign institutions of learning because they would not or could not attend the old Russian university here.

The German authorities have readily agreed to the proposal of the citizens' committee which is now conducting the city's affairs, allowing the return to Warsaw of Poles who are now in foreign countries. This includes students of all ages. Meanwhile it is arranged for all educational institutions up to the university to open on schedule time.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIP

Six men will try for the Rhodes scholarships when the examinations are held at Reno October 1 and 3. This scholarship is the meek of many young men who earn their own way through college and, as Nevada has as many to offer to the students as the densely populated states of the east, the examinations are particularly attractive because of the small amount of competition the men have to face.

In February, 1913, the first shipments of BRASCOLITES were made. These shipments were purely local. One year later, or in February, 1914, shipments showed an increase of 3496 per cent and these shipments were made to all parts of the United States and Canada. In February, 1915, shipments showed an increase of 8578 per cent based upon the first month's business, and these shipments went to all of the continents and to nearly every country on the globe. This phenomenal increase is conclusive proof of the superiority of the system. Try a Brascolite at our expense.
