LIGHTS AND SHADOWS OF THE WAR

Correspondence of the Associated Press

PARIS, Feb. 8.—"You Americans are selling us immense quantities of supplies—some good, some inferior—at high war prices, but you do it honestly; you tell us what you're going to deliver," said Monsieur E. Almond, head of the senate finance committee, reviewing the present condition of exchange for the Associated Press.

"We are buying perhaps more than $600,000,000 worth of goods a year from you now, while, aside from silks and satins, we are selling you little of anything," he added. "That tremendous balance of trade, with the war still going on explains why the $250,000,000 you loaned us was insufficient to equalize exchange."

"The balance of trade was always in your favor, but you, yourselves, maintained the parity of the franc by spending your dollars in travel through France."

"A billion francs—two hundred million dollars—is what we are losing annually since Americans are spending at home the money they formerly spent here, making a difference against us of something like four billion francs, which of course, a billion and a quarter loan cannot offset."

"Exchange between London and New York is easier because English investors hold American securities to a far greater amount than we. The payments of interest and dividends on those investments relieves the situation. If France had placed in America the fifteen billion francs she has loaned Russia, the interest payments would go far to equal exchange."

"Exchange between Berlin and New York suffers from different causes. The franc it at a discount in New York because the money is continually going that way. Germany has no big payments to make; she is unable to assure transatlantic transportation and can buy in only limited quantities of her adjoining neutral neighbors. She produces her own steel, coal and chemical products, while we must buy them in America. With us the depreciation may be considered a material and accidental circumstance. After the war, or as soon as we have bought all the steel and other war supplies we need from you, the franc will go back to par.

"The war is now costing us two and a half billion francs ($500,000,000) a month, of which one billion 800 million francs are spent in France," said Monsieur Almond, leading up to the question of France's financial requirements.

"At that rate we shall have to issue another loan in the near future. The six and a half billion francs in cash produced by the loan issued in December will be spent by the month of April. By that time nearly five billion francs of the money distributed throughout the country will be available for another loan that will be floated under far more favorable conditions. The Saloniki situation, which was acute at the time of our five cent loan, unquestionably frightened big capital. This is well known in financial circles and is borne out by many facts connected with the loan. For instance, the number of subscribers was greater in proportion to the total amount subscribed than of any government loan issued in France."

"Three and a half million subscribers took fourteen and a half billion in bonds, or an average of about 4,000 francs each. The average of former loans was from 30,000 to 150,000 francs each. This proves that it was largely the small capitalist, the little tradesman, the humble classes with small savings that took up the loan. Another loan, issued under circumstances becoming every day more favorable to France, will produce a greater cash total, as I estimate that there is at the present time 14½ billion francs in circulation in France. Deducting the 6½ billions in cash subscribed to recent loans, there are 7½ billions unsubscribed to add to a considerable portion of the 6½ billions that will be in circulation again before a new loan is issued.

"French loans are subscribed by the people; that fact should be borne in mind in comparing its issues with those of other governments. In England, Germany and Italy it is a banking affair in which the big capital is immediately interested. Our loan was a great success under the circumstances since it brought out scarcely anything more than the small savings. The next one will reach the big investors."

PURCHASE ELKO LAND

Minnesota and Iowa capitalists have recently purchased over 25 sections of land in Independence and Clover valleys. The capitalists plan to colonize the project and have started preparations for clearing the land for settlement. The land was railroad property and has never before been settled but is well adapted to farming of any kind, being in a level valley. More land will be purchased if the first project proves successful. The colonists are expected to arrive within the next few weeks. The land is being sold in all sized tracts.

WENDOVER ROUTE INUNDATED

Reports state that the Wendover branch from the Lincoln highway is entirely covered with water and that all to be seen from the Western Pacific coaches, which travel parallel to the Wendover route, is a sea of mud. This route is the one so highly praised by Salt Lake motorists and which they are endeavoring to have listed as the official Lincoln highway.

SUMMER AND FALL RACES

The Nevada State Agricultural association has granted a lease to J. A. Schas of Tin Juana, who is interested in the big race track across the line south of San Diego, on the race track near Reno for one year. Race meets will be held in Reno in June and in September and the promoter has announced that from 15 to 20 days of racing will be had. This schedule will fit in with the other large meets in the country. The Tin Juana meet will be abandoned for the present because of the storms have left the track under several feet of water.

DANCE A BIG SUCCESS

"Happy" Bowler's first social dance, given in the Miners' Exchange hall Saturday evening, was an immense success. There was a large attendance and the dance continued until a late hour. Mr. Bowler will not give a dance Saturday evening in order not to conflict with the party to be given by the Women's Relief corps.

Coffee

Cheese is good, but not in coffee! The airtight tins in which Schilling's Best is packed not only hold-in its fresh, rich flavor, but keep-out the grocery odors it would absorb eagerly if unprotected.

It is sealed in these tins in the hour of roasting—as soon as it can be evenly ground and freed of bitterish chaff.

If you judge coffee by good-cups-per-pound, Schilling's Best is economical.
