GAG LAW IN NEVADA

THIS is the day of emancipation for the editor of the Tonopah Daily Bonanza. On the day dedicated to the apostle of liberty and free speech, Washington's birthday, the writer was released from the Nye county jail, where he was serving a sentence of six months for an alleged libel which never was proven.

The editor was committed on January 22, 1916, and, after serving five days, was released on a writ of habeas corpus, and later remanded by the supreme court to the county bastille on February 17th, where he remained until noon on February 22, when he was released on parole, which expired with the sentence today at noon.

We were tried for a crime not committed and, through application of the gag law, the court succeeded in shutting out all evidence the defense tried to introduce. The article on which the conviction was obtained was in no sense what the district attorney and the attorney general said it was. The best evidence in support of this contention is the simple fact that when Attorney General Thatcher read the complaint in open court he refrained from reading the "cowardly innuendo" on which he complained was predicated and contented himself with assuring the jury that the defendant was guilty beyond the shadow of a doubt.

The only time this section of the complaint was read was when Milton M. Detch, attorney for the defense, insisted on reading it in his closing address. The state even then essayed to keep the main evidence out of the case, until Detch declared he would read the clause at any peril even though it were the last act of his life. The prosecution had interposed an objection to the reading, but, after the declaration of Detch, the court overruled the state and sustained the defense thus, for the first time, permitting the jurors to hear the real foundation for the complaint. This was the only ruling in favor of the defense during the trial. The article in question did not allege bribery or corruption, but the prosecution dwelt wholly on the "innuendo" implied by the word "grease," which is related in the complaint in the following language:

The board of county commissioners and the district attorney, by name Sanders, have been so diligent in this matter that there is but one conclusion—GREASE. That by the said matter printed and published as aforesaid the said W. W. Booth meant and intended to state and represent to the public, and those to whom said paper is delivered, that the said J. A. Sanders, as the said District Attorney of Nye County, and while in the performance of the duties of his said office, was guilty of bribery and did take and receive money as and for a bribe for the passage and promulgation of an ordinance by the Board of County Commissioners of Nye County intended to prohibit and suppress houses of ill-fame on Corona Avenue, a street in said Town of Tonopah.

The trial was one-sided and the defense was not allowed to prove anything, as the records of the court will show. If ever a damnable outrage was committed under the guise of justice it was the trial and conviction of the editor of the Bonanza, who was fighting the battles of the people in his own fearless way. The district attorney asked for a vindication. If he sought a coat of whitewash, he got it, that was all. The real vindication was given the editor of the Bonanza, whose trial and sentence brought to his side scores of men and women who were not slow in denouncing the trial as a travesty on justice and a gross imposition on the taxpayers, who were compelled to pay thousands and thousands of dollars to gratify the spleen of an office holder who sought under cover of the state to turn the entire legal machinery into an engine of persecution and destruction. The attempt failed and the revulsion of sentiment against this system of using public funds to advance private aims and to punish a political adversary was never shown more strongly than the day when the court pronounced sentence against the editor of the Bonanza.

The editor of the Bonanza was first released from jail the day the flags were flying for the spokesman of liberty, the father of free speech and the compatriot of Ben Franklin, the father of a free and untrammelled press, and the flag that flies from the Bonanza office this afternoon is to celebrate the emancipation, not alone of the editor of the Bonanza, but the emancipation of the press from the enslavement of a partisan judiciary.

OH! THEM POK CHOPS

CALIFORNIA, which has been inveighing against pork barrel legislation, seems to have crawled into the pig sty when nobody was looking and got away with the choicest of the litter. Reports from Washington show the neighboring state got a goodly portion of nice, juicy rind. In the list of appropriations for postoffice buildings there are such beehives of industry as Placerville, Venice, Santa Monica, Susanville, Palo Alto, San Mateo, Modesto and Redlands, to which $600,000 is thrown out as a propitiatory offering. While California's native sons have been preaching reforms they have been keeping an eye on the main chance with the result that they have garnered golden ducats. In the meantime it is enlivening to recall the fact that eight years ago there was talk of appropriating $50,000 for a site and federal building in Tonopah. It was stated that no time would be lost in giving the greatest silver-gold camp in the world the advantage of a building specially designed for the transaction of public business. Nothing was done. That nothing is going to be done is a natural inference since the Treasury department has permitted the bill to remain quiescent and kept the money stowed away where it cannot do any good. Tonopah stands in urgent need of suitable accommodations for the transaction of federal business. This is one of the three official weather stations in Nevada. Tonopah is the headquarters of the internal revenue department for the southern district and the agent of the treasury is not even accorded desk room. Then there is the forest service, represented by the preserves extending through the Toiyabe range,

J. C. Williams, of the executive board of the W. F. M., affiliates the Tonopah Miners' union with the Federation. The union has a membership of 200, with 23 applicants to be acted upon at the next meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Wheece, of Delamar, arrived in Tonopah to make their future home.

Mrs. Jas. Marsh, Miss Myrtle Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Eason and children, Peter O'Brien, Wm. Marsh and T. F. Egan arrived from Austin by private conveyance.

District Mining Recorder Thomas F. Egan returned from Austin, where activities are picking up and promise a boom.

The first bank of Tonopah purchases a new safe, which arrives and is put in commission.

Tonopah now has an estimated population of 650 people, with fine prospects of 1500 by the first of the year.

Turner, Edwards & Cutting open up the first bank. The officers are H. C. Cutting, cashier; O. A. Turner, president, and B. F. Edwards, vice president.

Thomas Dixon, Abe and Robert Laird arrived from Eureka by private conveyance.

which should have an office in a central location like Tonopah. The arguments in favor of a new federal building in Tonopah are more convincing than any of the pretexts that can be advanced in favor of the California towns mentioned above and the fact that nothing has been done may be laid at the door of the administration.

BOUNTIFUL CROP OF BABIES

Last Thursday should go down in the records of the health officer as a red letter day for Tonopah, since it marked the advent into the world of two additions to the respective families of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Prout, of the Rescue mine, and E. W. Hendricks, of the Belmont. The former is a girl and the latter a boy, and all parties concerned and interested are doing well. Dr. McLeod attended.
