DEAD OR ALIVE.

THE veracious chronicler of the National League of American Humorists gravely announces that Villa is planning an attack on the outposts of the American army on the Mexican border. Impossible! Villa is dead, or, if he isn't a corpus de facto he should be. In the estimation of President Wilson it amounts to the same thing. Didn't the Honorable Mr. Wilson make much speech last March in which he said many dire threats against bandits in general and this one in particular? Fee, fo, fum, he leaped from his nursery rhymes, in solemn imprecation against the popular Mexican custom of shooting a few Americans before breakfast each morning. Forthwith he ordered that Villa's head be delivered to the American nation at the first opportunity. There was no temporizing or makeshift. The order was mandatory and without equivocation. The outlaw's death was decreed by the president of the United States, therefore, inferentially, the order and the culprit were executed simultaneously without even the modest epitaph of "Hic jacet, Pancho," to designate his final resting place.

This might have happened had other than Woodrow Wilson occupied the White House, or somebody else had issued the order. But the stubborn fact remains that Wilson is in the White House and the announcement that Villa is on the warpath is not such ghastly gasconade as a jocular person might make it appear. Wilson is the most bloodthirsty peace promoter of his age, barring the kaiser and King Edward.

Official reports have advised the nation repeatedly that Villa was dead in a dozen different forms of violent dissolution, therefore the average American must be pardoned for accepting these stories for anything but jest. No corpse could dissemble to the extent of attacking the American army, although the latter is an emasculated entity deprived of virility and initiative.

The boys in khaki are aching for a go at the elusive Villa and we only hope an accidental shot may be fired that will set in motion the whole American patrol until the 150,000 determined men surge over the border for a final reckoning. Such an overflow would be distasteful to the administration; it might even peeve the peace envoys at Portsmouth, Conn., but it would be a mighty satisfaction to the army and all its admirers.

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED

THERE is such a matter as getting too much publicity, and no place knows that better today than Colorado Springs, which was the scene of a fistic event last Monday. A virtuous and God fearing hamlet in the heart of Colorado lusted for the fleshpots of the Egyptians, so to speak. The highbrow inhabitants gazed ruefully at the prosperity hailed to their homes by the roughneck, sun blistered miners of the adjacent gold camp, and they yearned for the glory that comes from basking in the sunlight of publicity. Their modest lives had not been torn with scandal, and the divorcee and divorcee were not of the inner circle. The natives were a law unto themselves, reeking of culture and Browning and Emerson until the ennu of self adulation cloyed their souls and they sighed for fresh fields of conquest. They had exploited tennis and gorged themselves with golf, and some of the more strenuous even indulged in the parlous pastime of polo, which the yokels of the vicinity said was shiny on horseback. There hidden aspirations led them into the devious paths frequented by mitt artists, and they gave ear to the honeyed words of the swat promoters until they grew juicy enough to be stung. The buff brethren treated them to a lemon from the Garden of Allah, whereupon they organized a Hundred Million Dollar club. Then they blew the hautboy from the housetops and sounded the loud timbrel from the surrounding crags and peaks that the world might know they were men of kale, with bales of green goods, with capital Cs strewn all over their beautifully engraved faces, which they were eager to barter with the buff bang gentry for an exhibition that would convince the world at one fell swoop that Colorado Springs was human enough to make the pugs and dead game sports eat out of its hands. Little Lunnon grew chesty and organized a Hundred Million Dollar club to give the glad hand to the big jowled jays from the purlieus of the west.

When all had assembled the visitors took a tumble and got a bad jolt. The good book saith that pride goeth before a fall, but in this case the fallen have pried the promoters loose from some of their ill gotten gains and the club with the big name stands to lose all it owns in satisfying damage demands of the vulgar herd that came to see the cutting of a melon and was treated to a lemon.

The Hundred Million Dollar club wishes it had not boasted of its resources or established a credit in the AAAI class by boastfully advertising its oodles of filthy lucre that is now the magnet for ambulance chasers and compromise lawyers to levy upon. Next time Colorado Springs stages a prize fight an amphitheater au naturel on the hard rock hills of the Garden of the Gods with non-collapsible grandstands will be favorably considered.

JAPAN TO BUY BRITISH BONDS

(By Associated Press.) TOKIO, Sept. 7.—The Japanese government has officially announced that with its gold specie reserve on deposit in American banks it will purchase British exchequer bonds to the amount of 100,000,000 yen, or about $50,000,000. The term is one year and the rate of interest six per cent. It is understood here that the British government will use the gold in payment for munitions of war purchased in the United States. It is understood that the Japanese specie will be transferred to the British government by degrees as necessity arises. The advantages of this investment are said to be manifold. In the first place, by converting government specie which cannot derive greater profit than 1 1/2 per cent interest in the United States, into the 6 per cent British exchequer notes, Japan will be able to realize a net gain of 4 1/2 per cent interest per annum. Secondly, in case the Japanese government is confronted with need of specie in America the British government will purchase the exchequer notes from the Japanese and furnish the required amount. Thirdly, the Japanese government will lose nothing from the disparity of the proportionate rate between the British currency (pounds) and the American currency (dollars) in paying the price of the British exchequer notes.

REMITTANCE MAN IS NOW PUBLIC CHARGE

(By Associated Press.) AUCKLAND, N. Z., Sept. 7.—Maximilian Ballin, the brother of the great German shipping magnate who is president of the Hamburg-American line, has been sent to jail for three months at his own request. "Maximilian Ballin," says the Auckland Weekly News, "has been in New Zealand for many years. He worked as a bookkeeper and received remittances from his brother. After the outbreak of the war the remittance money stopped, and, being a foreigner, he could not get the class of work he was capable of doing. He gradually drifted, became ill, and after being unemployed for a considerable time, he went to the police station and asked to be arrested. The court said the sentence was not punishment but charity to a man who was helpless to look after himself in the community."

TEMPERATURE REPORT

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT FRENCH ARMY

(By Associated Press.) PARIS, Sept. 7.—Each soldier in the French army has consumed half a ton of bread since the beginning of the war, according to the Army Bulletin. It required 75,000,000 yards of stuff to clothe the army. The cost of feeding the men has been figured at 40 cents per day. It costs almost as much to clothe them when they are at the front, while those at the rear are clad at an average cost of eight cents per day.

SEARCHING FOR SHIRKERS IN THE LODGING HOUSES

(By Associated Press.) LONDON, Sept. 7.—Steps are now being taken by the recruiting authorities to examine the floating population of London in lodging houses and elsewhere for the purpose of finding shirkers from army service. Calls are being made at private houses for the same purpose. The shirkers are said to form a small minority, but there are believed to be enough of them in London alone to make up an army corps.
